Businessmen Get Bad Check Facts

By LINDA SULLIVAN
Star Staff Writer

Lincoln and Omaha businessmen got an opportunity Wednesday night to hear about the bad check business from guys who know — inmates serving time at the Nebraska State Penitentiary on bad check offenses.

The program was a pilot symposium, sponsored by a penitentiary organization known as "Checks Anonymous," a group banded together to curb the check fraud problem.

The four prison inmates gave the group four rules that, if implemented, should curb the check problem:

—Cash personal checks only for the exact amount of purchase and then only when proper identification is furnished

Only Known Firms

—Cash payroll checks only on known, local companies and then only when proper identification is produced. Payroll checks drawn on accounts of unknown companies should be cashed during normal banking hours, so their validity can be checked.

—Persons cashing checks should present three pieces of identification of the following: driver's license, draft card, employer I.D. card, local or national credit card, local bank identification card and fraternal organization membership card.

—Cash checks for local customers only.

Questions

Several businessmen questioned the effectiveness of the fourth requirement, saying that a check "pro" could pick the name of someone out of the phone book and get I D 's in that name

"But that would be forgery, and most check passers don't want to fool around with that, they know it carries double the wrap," one panelist said.

Another panelist agreed with the first. "And there's always the worry that if you've adopted the name of some local citizen, even if you've cased the town and you know this guy's traveling somewhere else, that someone will know him and know you're a phony."

Hard To Understand

Panelists said it's hard for them to understand why firms accept a driver's license, often requiring nothing else

"A driver's license is one of the easiest things to get a hold of. Now a membership card of some fraternal organization, that's one thing a pro will never have and never be able to get. But no firms require those for identification," one commented.

The panelists generally agreed that having his picture taken when a pro is cashing a check doesn't scare him, although finger-printing sometimes does.

Use Mercury

"The pro knows that all he has to do is rub mercury from any old thermometer between his eyes, and that will over-expose the film and his face will be a blur," said a panelist who tha others called a "big-timer from the Bronx who worked only in banks."

Most check pros do their business on weekends, according to the panel. The average pro will come into town on a Friday, deposit about $500 in a bank to open a checking account and be 500 miles away by Monday morning, they said.

"But between Friday afternoon and Monday morning, he can make twenty, thirty, forty thousand dollars in that town."

One merchant at the meeting said that the real check problem is not caused by the pros, but the every-day customer who writes insufficient funds check.

"You know the pros are going to hit you good, but only once. But it's the customer who writes the check on Thursday and plans to get to the bank and make it good on Tuesday who causes all the problems," he said.

Moscow — The Soviet Union suggested Wednesday that President Nixon's planned visit to Peking was the result of anti-Soviet maneuvering by both the United States and China.

The commentary on Chinese-American relations was carried in the weekly Literaturnaya Gazeta. It was the reprint of an original commentary distributed by the Bulgarian telegraph agency. It is common Soviet practice to publish the views of an allied country when an issue is regarded as too sensitive for a direct Soviet comment. It was the first substantive comment published here since the announcement of Nixon's plans last week.

Peking Silence Noted

The article noted that Nixon, in his announcement of the visit, said it was not directed against any country. But the silence of Peking on the subject "puts in another light the assurances of Nixon," the editorial said.

Better relations between Peking and Washington, the commentary said, reflect the anti-Soviet positions of both countries.

"On one side, this is the purposeful, anti-Communist policy of the United States, which is based on contents which, as in the entire policy of imperialism as a whole, appears aggressive in its relations with its (anti-imperialism's) leading detachment — the Soviet Union," it said.

Chinese Policy Hit

"On the other side, this is the policy of the Chinese leaders, which is characterized by an unbridled anti-Soviet propaganda, introduction of a split in the international Communist and workers' movement, in the ranks of the socialist countries, and by attempts to weaken the anti-imperialist front," the commentary said.

Therefore, it went on, "the goals which both Peking and Washington pursue, and their expressing suddenly a desire to 'normalize relations' cannot but call for serious questions from all people interested in peace."

"There are no signs that either the United States or the Chinese leaders have changed or are prepared to change in any basic way the policy carried on up to now or to alter in a positive way their attitude toward preserving peace in the whole world," it said.

'Collusion with Imperialism'

The Bulgarian commentary said the Chinese-American communique issued last week on the Nixon visit "quite clearly shows the secret collusion with imperialism" carried out by the Chinese.

The Bulgarian report, and the publicity given it here, probably reflects a decision by Soviet authorities to use the improvement in Chinese-American relations as a propaganda instrument against both its rivals, but more specifically against the Chinese.

In private, American visitors have found in the past few days, in talks with Soviet officials considerable concern on the Soviet side, and skepticism about Nixon's motives.

Officially, Soviet officials say they are not opposed to any country normalizing relations with another, and Tuesday, the Soviet government again went on record supporting China's entry into the United Nations.

But there seems a psychological uneasiness about China's receiving the world limelight, and a concern about the effect this will have on Moscow's leadership in the Communist movement.

Franco Gets 'Voice'

Madrid (AP) — Spain's chief of state, Gen. Francisco Franco, has inaugurated a 2,100-kilowatt shortwave broadcasting station. "The Voice of Spain" is to beam its six-hour daily program to Latin America and some Southern U.S. states.

Governors Oppose Use Of Direct Grant Plan

South Sioux City (AP) — Midwestern governors went on record Wednesday as opposing direct grants to cities and counties as substitutes for federal revenue sharing administered through the states.

The same resolution, adopted in the windup to a three-day annual Midwestern Governors Conference, also "cordially invited and urgently requested" Rep. Wilbur Mills, D-Ark., to attend the September National Governors Conference in Puerto Rico to discuss "an equitable state and local revenue sharing plan."

Mills, chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, has proposed federal grants to cities and counties, bypassing the states.

Not Unanimous

The midwestern governors, representing a 15-state area, were less than unanimous on the resolution.

Gov. John J. Gilligan, D-Ohio, unsuccessfully sought to revise the resolution on grounds "it misrepresents the situation and is a bit abrasive." He asked to delete a section which identified the Mills plan as a substitute for a President Nixon-type proposal, and which expressed "unalterable" opposition to any plan "which does not build in participation by the states as well as their constitutent units."

Gilligan also wanted Rep Mills simply to be invited rather than "urgently requested" to attend the national conference, but assented to compromise language.

'Need To Be Blunt'

"I was prepared to go much stronger," countered Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie, R-Ill. "I think we're going to have to be very blunt in talking to Mr. Mills."

Also adopted was a resolution on agriculture, a subject which, with revenue sharing, had received major conference attention.

Offered by Gov. Richard F. Kneip, D-S.D., the agriculture resolution said farm and rural residents have not shared in the nation's economic and social progress. It said midwestern governors "must assume a national leadership role in the formulation and implementation of innovative farm policies."

To North Dakota

The invitation of Gov. William, Guy, D-N.D., to hold next year's conference in North Dakota — at a site to be chosen later — was accepted.

Gov. Richard B. Docking, D-Kan., was elected chairman with Gov. Robert D. Ray, R-Iowa, as vice chairman. Docking was elected vice chairman last year but has served as top man since the election defeat of last year's elected chairman, former Gov. Norbert T. Tiemann, R-Neb.

Another resolution called on the states to consider legislation which would lower the age of majority — or legal age — to 18, now that the voting age has been dropped to that level.

Urge Chopper Use

At the suggestion of Gov. Guy, the governors also approved a resolution advocating expanded use of helicopters by the Defense Department for peace time and humanitarian missions.

Choppers could be used to provide regional emergency ambulance service and serve Civil Defense purposes by providing rapid mobility in case of widespread disaster, the resolution said.

Woman Locates Brothers, Sisters; 40-Year Search Proves Successful

By LINDA SULLIVAN
Star Staff Writer

About a month ago, a Lincoln woman put in a long distance phone call to her twin sisters at Marquette. The woman, Mrs. Genevieve Hayes McCulley, was nervous, and with good reason. She hadn't seen or spoken to the twins since 1931, when she was seven years old.

Mrs. McCulley had last seen the twins that year when her parents, Henry and Emma Hayes of Utica, began to feel the deadening squeeze of the depression and Emma was pregnant with their twelfth child.

When Mr. Hayes realized the hopelessness of trying to find work in Utica, he left the family to work in the beet fields of western Nebraska. But the money he made there and the small Hayes garden still wasn't enough to support the family, according to Mrs. McCulley.

State Steps In

Sometime around the fall of 1931, the state stepped in. Two sets of twins, five-year old Arlene and Darlene, and three-year old Floyd and Lloyd, were taken to Whitehall Orphanage in Lincoln. Genevieve, 12-year-old Robert, and 10-year-old Virgil were also taken.

When Emma Hayes delivered her child, she was allowed to take the infant home to show it to her husband and children. The child, Donna Jean, was then also taken and placed in a foster home.

Robert and Virgil, now deceased, were put in Boys Town, but soon ran away and returned to the Hayes home.

MRS. GENEVIEVE McCULLEY

Mrs. McCulley also returned. But the whereabouts of the other five children were unknown to their family for many years.

Donna Jean was found in California in 1959, living only a few miles from two Hayes brothers and one sister. Donna Jean met her natural mother in February of 1959, two months before Mrs. Hayes died.

Search Continued

The search for the other four brothers and sisters continued. Since the phone call in June to her twin sisters in Marquette, Mrs. McCulley and her sister, Mrs. Dorothy Hayes Smith of Lincoln, have located the twin boys, one in Omaha and one in Minnesota, ending at last a forty year search.

None of the five sought-for brothers and sisters ever married. Arlene and Darlene (Hayes) Lindquist still live with their adopted mother, Mrs. Arvid Lindquist at Marquette. Floyd and Lloyd, now William and Robert Sonder, are also bachelors.

Mrs. McCulley said the twin boys had just been located within the last two weeks, and that she has not yet met them. She has received two letters from her brother Robert in Minnesota, she said.

52 Pages Long

"The first letter was 52 pages long . . . there are so many questions, so many answers, so much to say."

Mrs. McCulley explained that the Hayes children have never found out whether the family separation was a court ruling or a case of the parents turning the children over for adoption.

"It always hurt mom too much to talk about it, so we never did. Dad, though, he says he doesn't remember ever signing any papers," leading the Hayes children to believe it was a court ruling to place them in foster homes.

'Strange Feeling'

The search is over, and not without great relief to the family, she added. "It was a strange feeling. Sometimes I'd be shopping downtown and I'd see someone who bore some kind of resemblance to us, and I'd always be wondering 'is that one of them?'"

All of the Hayes children except the two sets of twins, Mrs. McCulley and her sister Dorothy, live on the West Coast. Because of this, Mrs. McCulley doubts there will ever be a time when they can all be together at once.

"But just knowing where everyone is, that's something. Like my father said when we told him we'd found the last two: 'My God, my prayers have been answered.'"

Congress Urged To Set Up Nationwide Power Hookup

Washington (AP) — Congress was urged Wednesday to establish a national power grid, an interstate hookup system for electricity that sponsors say will curb pollution and reduce the danger of blackouts.

They also say it would infuriate private utilities.

Such a grid, financed by tax-exempt bonds and run by an independent nonprofit corporation, would connect major power systems so that when necessary Times Square could be lit with California electricity.

Thus, advocates say, new power plants could be located away from population centers, localized blackouts and brownouts would be eliminated and electricity could be imported to smogged-in cities which then could clear their air by temporarily shutting down coal —and oil-burning generating plants.

With such a grid New York could import power during peak morning hours from California, three time zones away. The South could export power to the North during winter, and import it during the summer.

Introducing the power-grid proposal were Reps. Robert O. Tiernan, D-R.I. James Abourezk, D-S.D., and Herman Badillo, D-N.Y., and Sen. Lee Metcalf, D-Mont.

At a news conference, Tiernan predicted private power interests would oppose the bill, as they have in the past opposed such suggestions outside Congress. "We anticipate the reaction will be violent, maybe," Tiernan said.

Sen. Metcalf said the idea of a national power grid goes back 20 years, but had never been placed before Congress because private interests opposed it and because the public had not become concerned about where new power plants are built

Besides, he said, only recently have engineers begun to move toward techniques of ultra-high-voltage transmission that are efficient enough for a coast-to-coast grid.

Tiernan estimated a grid would take up to seven years to complete, and would cost up to $8 billion or more. Some of the cost would be in research and development of new transmission techniques, he said.

Private utilities say grids unfairly force them to compete directly with cheap public power, because both public and private utilities become wired together.

Tiernan and Metcalf predicted the proposal would receive early hearings in both houses, but chances for passage, Tiernan admitted, are clouded.

Russia Suspects Anti-Soviet Maneuver

(c) New York Times News Service

Moscow — The Soviet Union Wednesday reprinted a Bulgarian commentary suggesting that anti-Soviet maneuvering by the United States and China was the real reason for President Nixon's planned visit to Peking. Sophisticated readers said the commentary was endorsed by Soviet leaders or it would not have been reprinted. (More on Page 1.)

Formosa Resolution Repeal OKd

Washington — In an action that Sen. William J. Fulbright, D-Ark., said was consistent with President Nixon's policy of seeking better relations with Peking, the Senate Foreign Relations Committee voted unanimously to repeal a 1955 resolution empowering the President to use American forces to defend Taiwan and the Pescadores Islands. The move, likely to be endorsed by the full Senate but not the House, would not change the American defense commitment to Taiwan.

Lockheed Bill Scores Gains

Washington (UPI) — Legislation designed to save the Lockheed Aircraft Corp. from bankruptcy with a government-guaranteed loan won crucial victories Wednesday in the House and the Senate.

With Daniel J. Haughton, Lockheed's chairman, keeping tabs in the vice president's office just off the Senate floor, the Senate refused on a 56-36 roll call to send the Lockheed bill back to committee for further hearings. Nebraska Rebpublican Sens. Carl Curtis and Roman Hruska voted with the majority.

The House Banking Committee acted with unexpected haste a few hours earlier in endorsing a bill identical to the Senate measure over the opposition of its chairman, Rep. Wright Patman, D-Tex. In the committee, the Lockheed victory came on successive votes of 17-14, 18-16 and 23-11.

Up to $2 Billion

Both the Senate and House bills would authorize up to $2 billion in government-guaranteed loans for failing corporations whose collapse would hurt the economy of the nation or of a region. Lockheed would be the first firm to seek such a loan guarantee.

The firm, 33rd largest in the nation, says it needs $250 million to avert bankruptcy. It ran into financing problems in building the L1011 TriStar, a 400-passenger intermediate-range jetliner in which it has already invested $1.4 billion.

Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., the chief opponent of "bailing out Lockheed's mismanagement" was defeated in his attempt to send the bill back to the Senate Banking Committee until July 29 for further hearings.

But Proxmire, held out the prospect that he may filibuster the bill until Aug. 8, when Congress is scheduled to start a month-long summer recess.

Proxmire said he was pleased with the 36 votes for his effort to recommit the bill. "I didn't think I could get 36 votes," he said.

Ultimate Failure

The rejection of Proxmire's motion to send the bill back to committee signaled ultimate failure for his effort to defeat the measure on the Senate floor.

But Proxmire and other opponents still planned to offer a number of amendments that would tighten up the terms under which a loan guarantee could be extended to a troubled corporation.

They hoped to make it so difficult to get a government-backed loan that Lockheed would not qualify.

Volpe Warns Of Intervention In Selective Railway Strikes

Washington (UPI) — Transportation Secretary John A. Volpe threatened possible government intervention Wednesday if selective railroad strikes become so widespread they "impinge on the nation's ability to move its commerce."

Volpe spoke out at a news conference as negotiators for the railroads and the United Transportation Union (UTU) met again, but reported no progress in the work rules dispute that has idled the Southern and Union Pacific Railroads for six days.

Meantime, most of the nation's half million telephone operators, repairmen and installers ended their week-long strike against the Bell System following a tentative contract settlement.

But scattered locals — the principal ones were in and around New York City — refused to go back on the job. Although some local officials said members would not return until the contract was formally ratified, a process which will take about two weeks, an American Telephone and Telegraph Co. spokesman said "by and large, it looks good."

And as Volpe issued his warning, Commerce Secretary Maurice H. Stans urged management and labor to settle the west coast dock strike "for the sake of the country."

The UTU, fighting changes in work rules the railroads claim are necessary to improve efficiency, threatened to expand the walkout to at least two more lines Saturday and six more railroads Friday, July 30, if no settlement is reached.

"There may come a point" when strikes would "impinge on the nation's ability to move its commerce," Volpe said.

That could create a "situation that would require more substantive action," he said and noted that "it was no secret that on three occasions in the last 2 months" Congress had passed emergency legislation ending disputes that threatened the nation's economy.

West German Train Jumps Tracks, Killing 25 Persons

Karlsruhe, Germany (AP) — The eight-coach Switzerland Express, carrying between 300 and 400 passengers, jumped the tracks on a curve Wednesday, killing 25 persons and injuring about 100, police said.

Holger Boener, head of the police detachment supervising rescue operations, and a spokesman for the federal Traffic Ministry said two or three more dead may still be in the wreckage.

The electric locomotive and the next six cars plunged down an embankment and hurtled into a house, killing a child and injuring two adults in the dwelling. The house was demolished.

10,000 Viets Maneuver In Eastern Cambodia

Saigon (AP) — Covered by U.S. air power, a 10,000-man South Vietnamese force maneuvered across a large section of eastern Cambodia Wednesday in a new drive to check North Vietnamese infiltration.

By the end of the first day, the troops had yet to brush with enemy units.

One South Vietnamese field commander said the North Vietnamese may have pulled out in the face of tremendous allied air and artillery strikes that preceded the operation.

For three days before the drive kicked off at daybreak, U.S. B52 bombers pounded suspected enemy rear bases.

The operation area covered 370 square miles of eastern Cambodia to the north and West of Highway 7 about 20 miles inside Cambodia.

A major objective, said Lt. Gen. Nguyen Van Minh, was to provide security for the southern part of South Vietnam and prevent the enemy from disrupting impending national elections.

"Our mission is to cut off North Vietnamese infiltration into South Vietnam to prevent the enemy from sabotaging the elections," the commander of the operation told Associated Press correspondent George Esper at a forward base.

The South Vietnamese will vote Aug. 29 for members of the National Assembly and will elect a president Oct. 3.

Minh said he expected the operation to last three days, but added that it could run longer depending on whether there is contact and how heavy it is.

Minh also is commander of the 3rd Military Region encompassing the 11 provinces around Saigon. It is his biggest operation since he assumed the command last February.

Troop Lift Missions

U.S. helicopters flew 330 missions in eastern Cambodia Tuesday, nearly all of them troop lift missions, the U.S. command reported. Presumably, the troop lift missions involved ferrying South Vietnamese troops into position at forward staging areas for the operation.

Minh said the 10,000 troops were already positioned inside Cambodia when the operation started and were "maneuvering very carefully."

The infantry was reinforced by a 200-vehicle armored column and backed up by 66 artillery pieces firing from bases strung along Highway 7.

In addition the South Vietnamese were supported by high-flying B52 bombers, smaller U.S. tactical bombers striking from midlevel and rocket-firing Cobra gunship helicopters, which swoop in at low levels.

Sato Willing To Visit China To Discuss Normalization

Tokyo (AP) — Prime Minister Eisaku Sato, put on the defensive by President Nixon's planned trip to Communist China, said Wednesday he too is willing to go to Peking to discuss normalization of relations.

Several opposition party leaders renewed their attack on the Japanese government earlier this week, calling on Sato to resign immediately unless he goes to Peking himself to improve Japanese-Chinese relations.

One even declared the United States has now achieved a diplomatic breakthrough "over our shoulder."

Similar clamor arose from former government officials of Sato's own party.

Sato told questioners at a budget committee meeting of the House of Representatives Wednesday that he had no specific date in mind for a visit to Peking, but would go "whenever I decide conditions permit."

Democrats Control California Senate

©The New York Times

Los Angeles—Democrats have won control of the state legislature in time to draw reapportionment lines for California's five new congressional districts.

Assemblyman David A. Roberti, D-Los Angeles, defeated his Republican opponent, economist Bill Brophy, in a special election in the 27th State Senate District, tipping the Democrats' majority to 21-19 in the upper house. The Democrats retain a 42-37 majority in the assembly.

Thousands of volunteers of both parties helped secure a 48% turnout of the downtown Los Angeles district's 130,421 registered voters.

Republicans, with only 32% of the registered voters, tallied 38% of the final vote but failed to extend their eight-straight victories in special elections. With 61% of the registration in the heavily Mexican-American area, the Democrats won 58% of the votes.

Grinning Buckley Admits 'Secret Papers'

New York (AP) — With a broad grin, editor William F. Buckley Jr. revealed Wednesday that publication in his National Review of so-called secret Vietnam documents was a hoax.

Buckley said the documents were composed by editors of the magazine "ex nihilo" — out of nothing.

The intended purpose, Buckley told a news conference, was to demonstrate in regard to the earlier Pentagon papers "that the Pentagon and the CIA are not composed of incompetents . . . that forged documents would be widely accepted as genuine provided their content was inherently plausible . . . that the challenge in Southeast Asia was an aspect of the global challenge to the West, not a local affair."

Advice

Later, Buckley told a reporter at his Manhattan apartment: "If the advice given in the magazine had been followed, we wouldn't be in Vietnam today. The point is that the papers, or something like them, must have been written. Therefore, one concludes that the difficulty was not that the Pentagon and the CIA gave LBJ bad advice, but that LBJ didn't take good advice."

Buckley's revelation of the hoax came after suspicion arose when several persons listed as authors of the printed documents couldn't recall writing them. One flatly denied authorship credited to his name.

It was not the first put-on staged by the 45-year-old Buckley, brother of New York's conservative Sen. James L. Buckley. In 1965, William Buckley ran unsuccessfully for mayor of New York, stringing together long and little-known words, but summing up by saying that if elected he would "demand a recount."

Radical Conservative

Buckley founded the National Review in 1954 to further his political outlook, which he described as radical conservative.

Referring to the secret document hoax, Buckley said: "The idea arose at an editorial meeting two weeks ago yesterday. We were discussing the Pentagon papers as released and the fact they were ideologically tendentious.

"I, in fact, initiated the idea. I said, 'Hey, team, what do you think about this—?' We were remarking on the point Maxwell Taylor made that the papers were fragmentary.

"We reasoned that others at that time saw what was actually happening and gave appropriate advice to the government. We then created th

The move, likely to be endorsed by the full Senate but not the House, would not change the American defense commitment to Taiwan.

Both the Senate and House bills would authorize up to $2 billion in government-guaranteed loans for failing corporations whose collapse would hurt the economy of the nation or of a region. Lockheed would be the first firm to seek such a loan guarantee.

Grinning Buckley Admits 'Secret Papers' Hoax

New York (AP) — With a broad grin, editor William F. Buckley Jr. revealed Wednesday that publication in his National Review of so-called secret Vietnam documents was a hoax.

Buckley said the documents were composed by editors of the magazine "ex nihilo" — out of nothing.

The intended purpose, Buckley told a news conference, was to demonstrate in regard to the earlier Pentagon papers "that the Pentagon and the CIA are not composed of incompetents . . . that forged documents would be widely accepted as genuine provided their content was inherently plausible . . . that the challenge in Southeast Asia was an aspect of the global challenge to the West, not a local affair."

Advice

Later, Buckley told a reporter at his Manhattan apartment: "If the advice given in the magazine had been followed, we wouldn't be in Vietnam today. The point is that the papers, or something like them, must have been written. Therefore, one concludes that the difficulty was not that the Pentagon and the CIA gave LBJ bad advice, but that LBJ didn't take good advice."

Buckley's revelation of the hoax came after suspicion arose when several persons listed as authors of the printed documents couldn't recall writing them. One flatly denied authorship credited to his name.

It was not the first put-on staged by the 45-year-old Buckley, brother of New York's conservative Sen. James L. Buckley. In 1965, William Buckley ran unsuccessfully for mayor of New York, stringing together long and little-known words, but summing up by saying that if elected he would "demand a recount."

Radical Conservative

Buckley founded the National Review in 1954 to further his political outlook, which he described as radical conservative.

Referring to the secret document hoax, Buckley said: "The idea arose at an editorial meeting two weeks ago yesterday. We were discussing the Pentagon papers as released and the fact they were ideologically tendentious.

"I, in fact, initiated the idea. I said, 'Hey, team, what do you think about this—?' We were remarking on the point Maxwell Taylor made that the papers were fragmentary.

"We reasoned that others at that time saw what was actually happening and gave appropriate advice to the government. We then created them. That step was easy for National Review editors."

Buckley said he had a hand in composing the false documents, but wouldn't say who on the magazine's staff wrote what. On July 16, Buckley went on, the magazine mailed 6,000 letters "to our closest friends and supporters of National Review advising them of what we were doing."

Several subcribers have been contacted but said they had not received such a letter.

Agreement Is Reached For Pollution Control

. . . On North Platte River Near Torrington Holly Plant

Scottsbluff (AP) — Officials of the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) and the Holly Sugar Corporation agreed Wednesday on a program for correction of pollution of the North Platte River near its Torrington, Wyo., plant, which was termed acceptable.

The conclusion followed a hearing held on alleged violations by Holly of the established state water quality standards and the Rivers and Harbors act of 1899.

Thomas Dahl, sanitary engineer with the enforcement division of EPA, read a prepared statement regarding alleged pollution by Holly in the form of fecal coliform and noted discharges in violation of accepted criteria.

It had been alleged that the firm has been making discharges into the river containing bacteria higher than the amounts set by Nebraska, but within Wyoming's water quality standards.

George Miles of Colorado Springs, vice president and general manager of Holly, said "Holly has been and will continue to be vitally concerned about poilution."

He said Holly was practicing control before it became "fashionable" to do so. He pointed out suitable screening procedures — recycling of water and use of clarifiers, which had been used by Holly for a number of years, adding that Holly has applied to the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers for a permit to discharge refuse matter into navigable waters.

Miles said he was concerned that EPA studies were conducted in early December of 1970 and January of 1971, but the company was not informed about the problem until June 15. He said this fact alone makes it difficult to comply with requested measures.

This, coupled with slow delivery of equipment and the railroad strike, he said, may cause some alteration of the timetable.

EPA recommended that Holly adopt an interim system prior to the start of the 1971-72 sugar beet campaign. This would call for separation of condenser and transport water systems and installation of a closed loop for recycle of transport waters.

A complete system is required by the start of the 1972-73 beet campaign. This calls for recycling of transport waters via a clarifier system, suitable disposal of excess water generated in the transport water recycle system and cycling of condenser water via a cooling device.

Miles said 94 cubic yards of concrete was poured Tuesday for installation of the clarifier and that the overflow disposal to a lagoon is waiting on delivery of 3,000 feet of pipe for completion.

Holly and the EPA will meet again at a later date to discuss the mechanics of the program

Immediate Action Urged To End Railroad Strike

Washington (AP)—Sen. Carl T. Curtis, R-Neb., urged Congress and the President to take whatever steps are necessary to end the railroad strike immediately.

In a speech delivered to the Senate, Curtis declared it is time for Congress "to consider a fair and well balanced system of compulsory arbitration in labor-management disputes involving transportation."

"The public good must come first," he said. "I urge immediate action."

Curtis said the rail strike is doing irreparable damage in many parts of the country."

"When the trains do not run the grain elevators cannot ship their grain," he said. "Consequently, they cannot buy the grain from the farmers. In many cases the farmer has no place where he can store his grain.

"I received a report concerning a meat packing plant in western Nebraska. Curtis said "Its entire product is perishable Eighty per cent of its product ordinarily moves by rail. With the rail strike on none of the meat products can move.

"This means that the slaughtering plants will have to cease operation and in turn it means that the farmers and feeders are unable to market their livestock. The damage done is much more than the mere delay. The additional time of feeding the livestock is an item of great expense, as well as the fact that livestock weighing too much goes out of condition from the standpoint of the price."

Curtis declared "Congress should assume its responsibility now The President should act now"

Prostitution Crackdown Is Continuing

Omaha (AP) — Omaha city prosecutor Gary Bucchino said the city is proceeding in the best way possible in its crackdown on prostitution by arresting prostitutes and pimps

He said that 90% of the arrests in prostitution cases are made by vice unit officers who are solicited by the prostitutes

The difficulty in arresting a prostitute's customer, said Bucchino is to prove there has been a verbal contract between the two.

The comments from Bucchino came after City Councilman John Ritums said police should arrest men who seek out prostitutes and crack down on hotels that "cater" to prostitutes

Washington Co. Dana Fund Drive Goes Over Goal

Blair (UPI) — The 1971 all-Washington County appeal for financial support of Dana College has topped its goal of $20,000, according to co-chairmen Ray Hansen and Bob Milek of Blair.

A total of $20,350 was received in cash or pledges to be used in the current operating budget of the college.

The 1971 appeal was some 55% more successful, in terms of dollars raised, than the all-Blair campaign of a year ago, they said.

Blast Destroys Two Grain Bins Holdrege Co-Op

Holdrege (AP) — An explosion destroyed two large grain bins here at the Holdrege Co-op Association late Tuesday night.

Maynard Ortegrem, manager of the co-op, said the cause of the explosion, which scattered 120,000 bushels of grain in the area, has not been determined.

The mainline of the Burlington Northern Railroad was covered with grain but trains were able to move through. An appliance warehouse of a Holdrege firm was also damaged.

Ortegrem said the bins were constructed in 1963 and were valued at between $75,000 and $100,000 He said he could not place a dollar estimate on the loss of the grain contained in the bins

Sutton's 100th Birthday Gala Affair

By DEAN TERRILL
Southeast Nebraska Bureau

Sutton — They weren't all Griesses, 'cause the phone book here lists a mere 85 families by that name.

And it was all of 3,000 folks — the same ones who sweat out the chicken barbecue line the day before — who flocked to Sutton's centennial parade Tuesday night. A lively string of at least 50 floats and other entries held forth the celebration's theme·

"Look back with pride, go forward with spirit."

Both pride and spirit were plainly evident the past three days in everything from ladies' quilt auction to a flower show to a firemen's water fight. Some say the zest stems from a Russian-German heritage.

"We're loaded with Griesses and Nusses and Hubers," said Fred Figi, a stray Swiss banker who heads the sponsoring Sutton Community Club "It took a lot of cooperation from these and other families or our centennial never would have come off."

Reigning over the affair was a royal pair whose names sounded right at home Retired hardwareman Leslie Bauer was crowned king, Mrs. Beulah Ochsner queen. Mona Lemkau was chosen princess.

Ten oldsters, all in the 80-plus bracket, got VIP treatment as convertibles carried them in the parade.

The celebration wound up Wednesday with a children's parade, talent contest and teen dance. An art show was a feature of all three days.

Work To Resume By Thursday On G.I. Bomb Plant

James Cuings, administrative assistant said the management had "sufficient complements on hand to resume normal production July 22, beginning on the No 1 shift"

It had been announced Tuesday that normal work would not be resumed until Friday.

Airman Files $25,000 Suit Against Officers

Omaha (AP) — A 24-year-old Air Force sergeant has filed a suit for $25,000 in U.S. District Court against the City of Omaha and two unnamed policemen as the result of alleged "unprovoked" attacks by officers near Elmwood Park July 8.

Sgt. John Mueller claims he was the target of "an unprovoked" attack after he and his wife, Tanya, 22, had attended a rock concert at the park.

The policemen were listed in the suit as "John Doe and Richard Roe."

In the suit, Sgt. Mueller asserted that one policeman smashed the windshield in his car and broke out another window and that when he got out of his car and asked the reason he was beaten on the head.

The suit says 25 stitches were taken to close the wound in his right eye and Mueller's sight may be permanently impaired. It listed damages to the car of $400.

Mueller said he is a graduate of the University of Missouri Journalism School and lives in Cape Girardeau, Mo. He is a Vietnam veteran.

The suit charges the city is liable because the police were improperly trained and not under control.

The incident occurred on one of three nights of clashes between police and young persons in the park area.

Complete Probe In Alliance Jail Deaths Requested

State Indian Commissioner Robert Mackey said Wednesday he has asked the state attorney general's office for an investigation following the fourth death of an Indian in jails in Box Butte County.

Irene Blackfeather, 43, died last week in the county jail. Three other deaths have occurred in the past year at the Alliance city jail.

Mackey, a Santee Sioux, says the attorney general's office told him earlier when he requested investigations that "they did not have manpower or funds to initiate an investigation. They advised us to communicate ourselves with the county attorneys involved."

"We did this and were met with hostility," Mackey said.

Mackey said that eventually he thinks a grand jury investigation of the situation will be needed.

"When the trains do not run the grain elevators cannot ship their grain," he said. "Consequently, they cannot buy the grain from the farmers. In many cases the farmer has no place where he can store his grain.

"I received a report concerning a meat packing plant in western Nebraska, Curtis said. "Its entire product is perishable. Eighty per cent of its product ordinarily moves by rail. With the rail strike on none of the meat products can move.

"This means that the slaughtering plants will have to cease operation and in turn it means that the farmers and feeders are unable to market their livestock. The damage done is much more than the mere delay. The additional time of feeding the livestock is an item of great expense, as well as the fact that livestock weighing too much goes out of condition from the standpoint of the price."

Curtis declared "Congress should assume its responsibility now. The President should act now."

Prostitution Crackdown Is Continuing

Omaha (AP) — Omaha city prosecutor Gary Bucchino said the city is proceeding in the best way possible in its crackdown on prostitution by arresting prostitutes and pimps.

He said that 90% of the arrests in prostitution cases are made by vice unit officers who are solicited by the prostitutes.

The difficulty in arresting a prostitute's customer, said Bucchino is to prove there has been a verbal contract between the two.

The comments from Bucchino came after City Councilman John Ritums said police should arrest men who seek out prostitutes and crack down on hotels that "cater" to prostitutes.

Washington Co. Dana Fund Drive Goes Over Goal

Blair (UPI) — The 1971 all-Washington County appeal for financial support of Dana College has topped its goal of $20,000, according to co-chairmen Ray Hansen and Bob Milek of Blair.

A total of $20,350 was received in cash or pledges to be used in the current operating budget of the college.

The 1971 appeal was some 55% more successful, in terms of dollars raised, than the all-Blair campaign of a year ago, they said.

Three Refuse To Waive Indictment In Robbery Case

Omaha (AP) — Three men charged in the robbery of the Arlington State Bank at Arlington, Neb., on June 10 declined to waive indictment by a federal grand jury when they appeared Wednesday before U.S. Judge Robert V. Denney.

They are Jack Leroy Holoubek, 38, whose last address was Millard; Robert Flynn, 27, Los Angeles, and James Carillo, Omaha.

Holoubek and Flynn are being held in lieu of $20,000 bond each and Carillo is being held in lieu of $15,000 bond.

A total of $42,000 was taken in the robbery.

Eddie Chambers Decision Likely By End Of July

Omaha (AP) — The Omaha School Board ended its second session of the Eddie Chambers hearing Wednesday, and President Joseph M. Hart Jr. said the board will not reach a decision for at least 1½ weeks on whether to rehire the brother of State Sen. Ernest Chambers.

More than a dozen witnesses testified in a three-hour session that was based largely an character reference for Chambers.

Supt. Owen A. Knutzen said he hasn't changed his decision against rehiring Chambers.

The first part of the hearing was held July 1. Most who testified have described Chambers as a dedicated teacher who held the respect of the students and the community.

Chambers worked as a counselor at Tech Junior High School last year.

6 NU Students Given Stipends

Six Izaak Walton League scholarships totaling $1,484 have been presented to University of Nebraska-Lincoln students. The scholarships were awarded on the basis of good moral character, worthiness of financial assistance, and a promise of leadership and academic ability.

Those receiving the scholarships were Roger C. Holtorf of Malmo; Douglas Schaaf of Beemer; Bruce Zeller of Ravenna; Ronald Heskett of Nemaha; Robert Meduna of Wahoo; and Lee Simmons of Valentine.

To be eligible for the scholarships students must be majoring in Natural Resources with the Wildlife Management option. The scholarships, ranging in value from $167 to $325, are for use during the 1971-72 school year.

Blast Destroys Two Grain Bins Holdrege Co-Op

Holdrege (AP) — An explosion destroyed two large grain bins here at the Holdrege Co-op Association late Tuesday night.

Maynard Ortegrem, manager of the co-op, said the cause of the explosion, which scattered 120,000 bushels of grain in the area, has not been determined.

The mainline of the Burlington Northern Railroad was covered with grain but trains were able to move through. An appliance warehouse of a Holdrege firm was also damaged.

Ortegrem said the bins were constructed in 1963 and were valued at between $75,000 and $100,000. He said he could not place a dollar estimate on the loss of the grain contained in the bins.

Behlen Shipment Of Steel Building Sent To Israel

Columbus (UPI) — C. V. Jones, Behlen Manufacturing Company vice president of foreign sales, announced that a giant 883,000-pound shipment of steel building components is on its way to destination in Tel Aviv, Israel.

Sold to Agrexco, an Israeli farming cooperative, the three-story structure will be erected to serve as an atmosphere-controlled storage terminal.

Various fruits and flowers will be received at the terminal from growers throughout Israel and held for eventual shipment to common market countries.

Two-Car Crash West Of Chappell Fatal To Woman

Chappell (AP) — Dorothy M. Riojas, 45, Ponca City, Okla., was killed in a collision seven miles west of here at the junction of Nebraska 27 and U.S. 30 Wednesday.

The State Patrol said the car which Mrs. Riojas was driving collided with another vehicle driven by Bernard H. Koithahn, Defiance, Ohio.

Troopers said the Riojas vehicle was southbound on Hwy. 27 and the Koithahn vehicle was westbound on U.S. 30 when the two vehicles collided.

A passenger in the Riojas vehicle, Deborah Jo Boyer, 17, Kansas City, Kan., is in fair condition at a Chappell hospital with second and third degree burns, multiple fractures and lacerations.

Koithahn, his son Kevin, 8, and his daughter, Karla, 11, were treated and released from a Chappell hospital. Koithahn's wife Mabel, 46, remains hospitalized at Chappell for treatment of bruises and abrasions.

The death raises the state's traffic fatality toll to 216 for the year, compared with 218 at this time one year ago.

Sutton's 100th Birthday Gala Affair

By DEAN TERRILL
Southeast Nebraska Bureau

Sutton — They weren't all Griesses, 'cause the phone book here lists a mere 85 families by that name.

And it was all of 3,000 folks — the same ones who sweat out the chicken barbecue line the day before — who flocked to Sutton's centennial parade Tuesday night. A lively string of at least 50 floats and other entries held forth the celebration's theme.

"Look back with pride; go forward with spirit."

Both pride and spirit were plainly evident the past three days in everything from ladies' quilt auction to a flower show to a firemen's water fight. Some say the zest stems from a Russian-German heritage.

"We're loaded with Griesses and Nusses and Hubers," said Fred Figi, a stray Swiss banker who heads the sponsoring Sutton Community Club. "It took a lot of cooperation from these and other families or our centennial never would have come off."

Reigning over the affair was a royal pair whose names sounded right at home. Retired hardwareman Leslie Bauer was crowned king, Mrs. Beulah Ochnsner queen. Mona Lemkau was chosen princess.

Ten oldsters, all in the 80-plus bracket, got VIP treatment as convertibles carried them in the parade.

The celebration wound up Wednesday with a children's parade, talent contest and teen dance. An art show was a feature of all three days.

Work To Resume By Thursday On G.I. Bomb Plant

Grand Island (AP) — Work will be resumed at the Cornhusker Army Ammunition Plant with the first shift Thursday, a full 24 hours ahead of the announced resumption when the plant shut down Tuesday.

James Cuings, administrative assistant said the management had "sufficient complements on hand to resume normal production July 22, beginning on the No. 1 shift."

It had been announced Tuesday that normal work would not be resumed until Friday.

Airman Files $25,000 Suit Against Officers

Omaha (AP) — A 24-year-old Air Force sergeant has filed a suit for $25,000 in U.S. District Court against the City of Omaha and two unnamed policemen as the result of alleged "unprovoked" attacks by officers near Elmwood Park July 8.

Sgt. John Mueller claims he was the target of "an unprovoked" attack after he and his wife, Tanya, 22, had attended a rock concert at the park.

The policemen were listed in the suit as "John Doe and Richard Roe."

In the suit, Sgt. Mueller asserted that one policeman smashed the windshield in his car and broke out another window and that when he got out of his car and asked the reason he was beaten on the head.

The suit says 25 stitches were taken to close the wound in his right eye and Mueller's sight may be permanently impaired. It listed damages to the car of $400.

Mueller said he is a graduate of the University of Missouri Journalism School and lives in Cape Girardeau, Mo. He is a Vietnam veteran.

The suit charges the city is liable because the police were improperly trained and not under control.

The incident occurred on one of three nights of clashes between police and young persons in the park area.

A similar suit has been filed by an Omaha TV cameraman.

Complete Probe In Alliance Jail Deaths Requested

State Indian Commissioner Robert Mackey said Wednesday he has asked the state attorney general's office for an investigation following the fourth death of an Indian in jails in Box Butte County.

Irene Blackfeather, 43, died last week in the county jail. Three other deaths have occurred in the past year at the Alliance city jail.

Mackey, a Santee Sioux, says the attorney general's office told him earlier when he requested investigations that "they did not have manpower or funds to initiate an investigation. They advised us to communicate ourselves with the county attorneys involved."

"We did this and were met with hostility," Mackey said.

Mackey said that eventually he thinks a grand jury investigation of the situation will be needed.

EVENTS
IN PERSPECTIVE

By WILLIAM O. DOBLER

They will be coming now in increasing numbers and with growing frequency—the Democratic candidates for their party's presidential nomination, seeking to get a leg up on their colleagues by winning or showing strong in the Cornhusker state's early primary of 1972.

No sooner had Senator George McGovern of South Dakota left Nebraska, than Senator Birch Bayh of Indiana made his appearance. Bayh's appearance was more low-keyed, tied in with a visit to the Midwestern Governors Conference in South Sioux City, Neb., and Sioux City, Ia.

Both aspirants for the highest national office tagged the Nebraska primary as a key one. It is that because it will take the pulse of the Midwest, telling the politicians something about what the people think in the region between the Mississippi and the Rockies.

It will not tell everything, simply because no primary can do this. It cannot do it because it does not match the parties up against one another. It pits the personalities in the parties against each other, thus narrowing the true comparisons that can be made and the conclusions that can be drawn.

Nonetheless, the primary will make for an interesting time, as will the months and days leading up to it. Obviously, campaigning for 1972 has already gotten under way and will be with us from here on through the 1972 general election.

At this point in the race, the Democrats have a long way to go, despite the many difficulties that face the Nixon administration at the moment. If the election were being held today, we would doubt that the Democrats would win and the situation for Nixon is likely to get better rather than worse.

It is not that the nation is without troubles, for it surely has more than its share of them. But what is the true level of expectations of the American people, especially those in the heartland of the nation?

Here in the heartland, agriculture is a big item, as amply demonstrated by the conversation on the subject provoked at the governors' conference. But we have a lot of bumper crops coming along, wheat now being moved to markets and corn, sorghum and other grains in the fields.

A good crop is still the best measure of agriculture's political stance. Prices received by the farmer are not good and he is, just like the rest of us, the victim of alarming inflation, but a good crop is his key to contentment.

Of course, the results in 1972 will hinge upon the crops in 1972, not those of 1971, but the farm program itself is not likely to be the all-decisive factor in the ballot-box decision of farmers.

In general, the Midwest will be looking at all the issues that will be considered by the entire country. This will cover, of course, the international scene and domestic economic affairs. These are the two areas in which the President is now considered the most vulnerable.

But vulnerability is a relative thing. One must relate it to the alternatives. In this situation, you would have to relate it to the Democratic candidates and this is precisely the job the Democratic candidates have cut out for themselves.

It is not an easy job. By election time of 1972, Nixon will probably have made his historic visit to Red China and the entire international scene could be drastically changed. The cause of peace, by the fall of 1972, might look far more promising than it does today.

And even today, it is difficult to say what might have been done better in the past few years and what might be done right now to improve conditions.

Economically, and in other matters of domestic social concern, there are problems, but who has the answers? No Democratic candidate today has yet addressed himself to the problems and whether the answers that will eventually come forth will provide the solid ground for a campaign remains to be seen.

VIRGINIA PAYETTE

The Deep Mystery Of Bank's Interior

NEW YORK — Brace yourself for the latest flash from high finance: Now our bankers want to pay our bills for us.

Not, however, with their money. (And if that thought flashed through your mind, I'd like to meet your banker.) The "sugar daddy" sydrome has not yet overtaken their balanced little souls.

If you really want to know, generosity has nothing to do with it. They just figure it might cut down on the billions of checks a year that come bouncing (oops . . . sorry about that) into the country's clearinghouses.

It's what you might call a banker's dream: a checkless society. Although why they didn't think of that when they invented checking accounts is beyond me.

As a matter of fact, I understand very little of what goes on behind those cages at my friendly neighborhood bank. I know you slide money under the grillwork (and they always seem just as happy to accept checks as cash) . . . an aloof teller tosses it into a drawer . . . and what happens to it after that, I never dared ask.

To tell the truth, banks have a strange way of dampening my bubbly personality and I don't spend more time in them than I have to. As for cross-examining that forbidding female, well . . . one glare from those frosty eyes with the (appropriately) green eyshadow would have me back stuffing my dollar bills in Granny's cracked teapot.

(Drive-in tellers, now, are different. They joke and smile a lot. Maybe because they've escaped the inside of the bank?)

So what happens to my checks after I mail them to the telephone company and the water works and the bank that holds the mortgage is something of a monetary mystery.

I know they go through a clearinghouse (whatever that is). I also know that once in a while, for some strange reason, they come back to me. I am even willing to take the bankers' word that all those checks (not necessarily mine, although Old Dad sometimes gets that feeling) are clogging up the works, bankwise.

But, just the same, I am not particularly anxious to have my banker take over the monthly budget, however tempting it is to think of him battling those credit-card computers instead of me.

What they would like me to do, it turns out, is just tell them which regular bills they could pay out of my checking account and it would all be automatic from there on. Even with my limited banking expertise, I can see trouble ahead already.

Would my banker be as eagle-eyed for foul-ups on department store bills as he is in spotting overdrafts? And what if a call to Hong Kong shows up on the phone bills? How could HE know I don't know anybody in Hong Kong?

Also, there's just a chance a month might come along when the money the bank was planning to pay my bills with was money I needed for something else. Could I make it to the windows in time? Would a banker understand the financial somersaults some of us turn toward the end of the month?

Somehow, I doubt it. I'll bet his right hand always knows what his left hand's up to.

On the other and, if he'd like to have a go at straightening up the mess my checkbook's in . .

Can't Help Wondering

When representatives of Lincoln City Libraries appeared before Lancaster County commissioners seeking budgetary support, they presented an interesting set of figures. The figures are not new or surprising but they deserve at least occasional consideration by the people of this area.

Asking for proportionate budget support from the county, the library spokesman figured that this would amount to $55,362. They based the figure on a county-wide population figure of 167,972 and a county figure outside of Lincoln of 18,454. That means that of the total county population, only 18,454 live outside of Lincoln.

What that makes you wonder is why we have a county government. People talk of piece-meal consolidation but we wonder if the facts were squarely faced if we would not want to consider total elimination of county government.

Or, putting it another way, maybe we would want to eliminate city government. It all adds up to the same thing, two governments serving basically the same population group.

It should be remembered that discussion of consolidation is not an indictment of either government per se. It is not to say, in talking about this subject, that one or the other governments is doing a bad job.

The whole point is that both of them seem terribly hard to justify, even if they are both doing a good job. Perhaps the people of Hallam, Firth, Denton, Bennet, Davey, Agnew and other communities on the periphery of Lincoln would rise up in arms against any full consolidation of city and county governments.

Before they do, we would want to take a look at the facts. By sharing in the expenses of Lincoln government, they might expect to pay higher taxes. On the other hand, the savings of total consolidation might be considerable and the net increase outside of Lincoln very small. This is to say nothing of the obvious community of interest and responsibility that exists within the county as a whole.

Man Needs Companionship

Summarizing its first six months of operation for 1971-72, the Lincoln Personal Crisis Service (PCS) reported handling a total of 700 telephone calls. The objective of the service is to give personal assistance by phone to people when they think they need outside assistance.

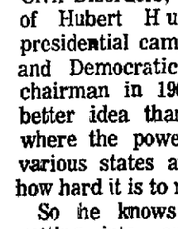

Reasons for calls are many and varied but it was noted that loneliness hits hardest over the holiday periods. Loneliness and its related subjects were also cited in a recent meeting as one of the causes listed by young people for experimenting with drugs.

There is no great point to be made of this but it is well to realize that man is a basically friendly kind of animal. Isolate him and he is likely to develop all kinds of problems, both mental and physical.

This is a vital consideration by people, both as individuals in society and collectively through public programs and agencies. Drugs and alcohol are easily associated with personal problems that could stem from loneliness. Many family problems and the problems of the elderly can be associated with the same matter of loneliness.

Obviously, preventive and rehabilitative programs seeking to deal with these problems need to tackle the matter of loneliness, as well as other things. Personally, individuals should remember that they themselves can often do a lot to remedy the problem of loneliness.

No one will deliberately isolate himself from the rest of society. Some may behave in a manner to encourage such isolation but they are finally left totally to themselves simply as an act of rejection by others. It is an inhuman development and one that all of us would do well to stop whenever we have the opportunity of doing so.

Senator Fred Harris Turning To Populist Style; Thinks Voters Will Respond To 'Straight Talk'

MIAMI — A major trouble with the Democratic presidential candidates is that the only one who can easily be distinguished from the moderate-to-liberal pack is the national defense hard-liner, Sen. Henry Jackson of Washington. Sen. Fred Harris of Oklahoma hopes the populist style will make him another.

This is one of the longest shots currently visible, but a day with the Oklahoma senator, as he did some groundwork here for next March's Florida primary, suggests that it may not be out of the question. And anyway, after Harris's withdrawal from an all-but-hopeless re-election campaign in his home state, he has nowhere to go but up.

Harris has far more national political expertise than most young senators. As a member of the Kerner Commission on Civil Disorders, a co-manager of Hubert Humphrey's presidential campaign in 1968, and Democratic national chairman in 1969, he has a better idea than most as to where the power lies in the various states and cities, and how hard it is to move.

So he knows what he is getting into, and he would hardly have done it without the backing of a first-class fund-raiser — Herbert Allen, the wealthy New York investment banker, but it is the populist style that gives Fred Harris his chance, if any.

This is more than a matter of issues, although he intends to campaign on a platform of "redistribution of wealth, redistribution of power and a foreign policy based on idealism." But also Harris is convinced that even in the age of television, politicians have become too "cool."

"I believe that people feel some lack of emotion on the part of these other fellows," he says of his Democratic rivals. "I believe the people want to touch you and see you. They want to hear some of what we used to call 'red-faced speeches" down in Oklahoma."

So he intends to learn from the tactics of Lawton Chiles, who walked the length of Florida to publicize his successful Senate campaign last year. "The people are sick of slickly manipulated, high-priced advertising campaigns," he told his Florida audiences.

A highly personal campaign of straight talk will get attention because "people just feel so left out," Harris says. "Things seem so impersonal and far away and people feel powerless . . . Decisions are being made that affect their lives that they don't have any control over. And down deep most of them don't believe it makes any difference which politician they elect; they don't believe anything will change."

☆ ☆ ☆

That is right out of George Wallace's book, of course, but Harris has a different intent — one that doesn't fit the "populist" notion. Nineteenth Century populism fell apart on the race question and most "populist" types since then have tended more or less openly toward racism. Harris says instead — probably more bluntly than any other Democrat now running .—"the real issue is not race but economic class."

Health problems affect black and whites alike, he points out. Appalachian whites and southwestern Chicanos alike are out of work. Cubans in Miami and American Indians on the reservation, as well as relatively affluent suburban whites, worry about their children's schools and their own inability to have much effect on the way things go.

If all these and other groups could be united around a populist program — the redistribution of wealth and power — against the powerful exploitative elements of American society, they could be a great political force.

This may be the pipe dream that most American politicians have considered it, but Fred Harris is at least well-suited to pursue it. With his poor Oklahoma beginnings, his southern accent, his occasionally "red-faced" oratory and his fondness for telling stories about his family back home in Oklahoma.

A gregarious mixer with a booming laugh and a quick wit — after suffering a florid introduction at a luncheon here, he rose gravely and said: "That concludes our program for the day" — he looks and sounds like a backwoods radical with an urban education.

Harris was the first candidate on the phone to Harold Hughes after word spread that the Iowan would withdraw from the race. He believes the "populist style" may bring more of Hughes's erstwhile supporters to him than to Sen. George McGovern of South Dakota. He is committed to primaries here and in New Mexico and California, and concedes that circumstances will probably force him into most of the others.

The main problem for the other candidates, he thinks, is to "stop Muskie from overwhelming the field" in the first few primaries. But in the long-run, he believes, the winner at the Democratic convention and over President Nixon is going to be the candidate who "lets the people know that if he's elected, things will change." The populist style is aimed at just that.

Niobrara Reservoir

Ainsworth, Neb.

As a north Nebraskan and one who is interested in its development and its ecology, I would like to reply to the lady canoeist who recently took a trip down Nebraska's Niobrara River.

Many years ago, Dr. Condra of the University of Nebraska likened the Sandhill country to a gigantic sponge absorbing the rainfall generally sparse in this area. A gigantic sponge that carried underground water down to south Nebraska, where it assisted in supplying south Nebraska water for its towns and cities. But today all of that is changed.

Each season more and more pivot irrigation units are being installed. We are hoping that these units will stabilize our rapidly falling population, and perhaps save the family sized stock farm unit in this area.

I would like also to refer the canoeist to the "Nebraska Water Survey Paper No. 28, Ground Water Levels in Nebraska," published by the University of Nebraska Conservation and Survey Division, Lincoln. This calls attention to the rapid fall in our ground water levels in 75 of the 93 counties in Nebraska. The Atkinson-O'Neill area which the Norden dam will serve is one of the areas where the water level is falling the most rapidly, due to the number of pump irrigation units in that area.

The lady canoeist should have visited Merritt Reservoir. Since its completion, trout fishing has improved on the Snake River and also the ecology of the area has been preserved. The Norden Reservoir will be the most beautiful lake in Nebraska.

As a Keya Paha County stock farmer and one whose land will not be irrigated by the O'Neill Project, I am anxious to see the project completed, both to preserve our underground water and for the economic future of our county where most years the rainfall is inadequate and where we have a rapidly falling population.

The land on both sides of the Niobrara River is privately owned, and if the lady canoeist did step ashore, she would be technically trespassing on privately owned land.

I invite her to return to north Nebraska and live among us. Watch our economy thrive where it is irrigated and perhaps she too can assist us in an area where our population is dropping due to the present low farm parity and an area where our young people are leaving us because of a lack of opportunity. This is an area where with pivot irrigation and sufficient underground water, we can become one of the greatest cattle raising and feeding areas in the nation.

Thirty-five years ago, the Army Engineers stated that the Niobrara River is the most constant flowing river in the nation, and there will be good canoeing long after the Norden Reservoir is completed.

Rich And Poor

Fairbury, Neb.

Your editorial page is beginning to look like a section out of the Communist Manifesto. Statements such as the one in "Everybody Ought to Pay" (July 15 Star) in which you state, "Not everyone should have to pay for the support of government and all those who do should pay in relation to their ability to do so," closely resembles the communist ideology.

While you discuss the unfairness of the sales and income tax in relation to your statement about taxes, you fail to mention that not everyone pays the same amount under these taxes. The "rich" buy more and therefore pay more sales tax; they also earn more so they not only pay tax on more earnings but a higher percentage on the money they earn. If there is an inequality in these taxes, you find the "rich" are the abused while the "poor" are favored.

I am generally tired of trying to disseminate your editorials into meaningful information. But then your whole editorial page is so thoroughly liberal, nonfactual, illogical, anti-Nixon, anti-Republican that I'm sure you mean to appeal to a specific interest group of which I am not a part. I am therefore happily switching to a more objective oriented newspaper.

Patchwork Prairie Country

Lingering summer evenings are mellow now with a warmth that gives a long benediction. The swallows stage their evening aerial circus and the katydids fiddle their rasping notes that drift across the heartland. There is a satisfying fragrance of moist earth as the thickening veil of mist settles across the fields. Over the lawn the fireflies stage their on again, off again aerial ballet and the crickets' chirps are distinct. It is good to see the moon rise and moonglow brush the landscape with silvery strokes.

With all this special loveliness, we sense the inevitableness of the seasons and know that we are approaching another segment of the turning year.

☆ ☆ ☆

As I mused upon this quiet evening, I thought of all the vacationers traveling across the country, looking for motels along about this time of evening. While I was thinking of people and places and their difficulty in finding lodging for the night, I thought of how far we have improved upon our overnight accommodations.

A sign hanging in an Eighteenth Century hostelry in New York City reads:

Fourpence a Night for Bed, Sixpence with Supper.

No More Than Five to Sleep in One Bed,

No Boots to be Worn in Bed.

I wondered why the management would have to remind the travelers to remove their boots. Well, perhaps in those days when it was essential for fast getaways, one could not afford to remove his boots. Five in a bed may have been the reason so many carried their own bed rolls.

How the crops do grow when moisture is available at the right time. In our area the corn has been tasseling for a week now and the milo is just ready to thrust up its rugged head. The leaf growth is luxuriant and green, making it a pleasure for a farmer to survey his fields and hope for a good harvest.

I made two apple pies from fruit that had been blown from our apple trees in the last wind and rainstorm that went through our area. The apples would not have been picked for a couple of weeks when I saw them on the ground, a bit smaller than normal, I could not resist the temptation to gather them for pies. First of all, I would have felt uneasy knowing they were going to waste and secondly I was so hungry for fresh apple pie.

I added a bit more sugar than usual for a pie but other than that, the pies were delicious. It is The Farmer's favorite kind of pie and I heard nary a grumble so I know he thought all was well whether the apples had been plucked from the tree or fallen in a gust of wind.

The Farmer spent an afternoon tightening the wires of the fence after the rain. It seems cattle have a way of wanting to eat the grass on the other side of the fence. They will put their heads through, then continue pushing as they keep reaching for a swatch of grass just a bit farther away. Finally the fence stretches and sags which means it is time to take the sag out, rewire and staple it securely again.

An electric fence is one fence livestock respects. The lane is bordered on either side by milo which entices the critters to reach for a leaf or two. After The Farmer strung an electric fence along their pathway, it has put a stop to their habit of trying to reach the milo.

After getting a shock from one of these fences I, too, have great respect for them. The only time it is funny is when someone else gets the shock.

EVENTS
IN PERSPECTIVE

By WILLIAM O. DOBLER

They will be coming now in increasing numbers and with growing frequency—the Democratic candidates for their party's presidential nomination, seeking to get a leg up on their colleagues by winning or showing strong in the Cornhusker state's early primary of 1972.

No sooner had Senator George McGovern of South Dakota left Nebraska, than Senator Birch Bayh of Indiana made his appearance. Bayh's appearance was more low-keyed, tied in with a visit to the Midwestern Governors Conference in South Sioux City, Neb., and Sioux City, Ia.

Both aspirants for the highest national office tagged the Nebraska primary as a key one. It is that because it will take the pulse of the Midwest, telling the politicians something about what the people think in the region between the Mississippi and the Rockies.

It will not tell everything, simply because no primary can do this. It cannot do it because it does not match the parties up against one another. It pits the personalities in the parties against each other, thus narrowing the true comparisons that can be made and the conclusions that can be drawn.

Nonetheless, the primary will make for an interesting time, as will the months and days leading up to it. Obviously, campaigning for 1972 has already gotten under way and will be with us from here on through the 1972 general election.

At this point in the race, the Democrats have a long way to go, despite the many difficulties that face the Nixon administration at the moment. If the election were being held today, we would doubt that the Democrats would win and the situation for Nixon is likely to get better rather than worse.

It is not that the nation is without troubles, for it surely has more than its share of them. But what is the true level of expectations of the American people, especially those in the heartland of the nation?

Here in the heartland, agriculture is a big item, as amply demonstrated by the conversation on the subject provoked at the governors' conference. But we have a lot of bumper crops coming along, wheat now being moved to markets and corn, sorghum and other grains in the fields.

A good crop is still the best measure of agriculture's political stance. Prices received by the farmer are not good and he is, just like the rest of us, the victim of alarming inflation, but a good crop is his key to contentment.

Of course, the results in 1972 will hinge upon the crops in 1972, not those of 1971, but the farm program itself is not likely to be the all-decisive factor in the ballot-box decision of farmers.

In general, the Midwest will be looking at all the issues that will be considered by the entire country. This will cover, of course, the international scene and domestic economic affairs. These are the two areas in which the President is now considered the most vulnerable.

But vulnerability is a relative thing. One must relate it to the alternatives. In this situation, you would have to relate it to the Democratic candidates and this is precisely the job the Democratic candidates have cut out for themselves.

It is not an easy job. By election time of 1972, Nixon will probably have made his historic visit to Red China and the entire international scene could be drastically changed. The cause of peace, by the fall of 1972, might look far more promising than it does today.

And even today, it is difficult to say what might have been done better in the past few years and what might be done right now to improve conditions.

Economically, and in other matters of domestic social concern, there are problems, but who has the answers? No Democratic candidate today has yet addressed himself to the problems and whether the answers that will eventually come forth will provide the solid ground for a campaign remains to be seen.

Can't Help Wondering

When representatives of Lincoln City Libraries appeared before Lancaster County commissioners seeking budgetary support, they presented an interesting set of figures. The figures are not new or surprising but they deserve at least occasional consideration by the people of this area.

Asking for proportionate budget support from the county, the library spokesman figured that this would amount to $55,362. They based the figure on a county-wide population figure of 167,972 and a county figure outside of Lincoln of 18,454. That means that of the total county population, only 18,454 live outside of Lincoln.

What that makes you wonder is why we have a county government. People talk of piece-meal consolidation but we wonder if the facts were squarely faced if we would not want to consider total elimination of county government.

Or, putting it another way, maybe we would want to eliminate city government. It all adds up to the same thing, two governments serving basically the same population group.

It should be remembered that discussion of consolidation is not an indictment of either government per se. It is not to say, in talking about this subject, that one or the other governments is doing a bad job.

The whole point is that both of them seem terribly hard to justify, even if they are both doing a good job. Perhaps the people of Hallam, Firth, Denton, Bennet, Davey, Agnew and other communities on the periphery of Lincoln would rise up in arms against any full consolidation of city and county governments.

Before they do, we would want to take a look at the facts. By sharing in the expenses of Lincoln government, they might expect to pay higher taxes. On the other hand, the savings of total consolidation might be considerable and the net increase outside of Lincoln very small. This is to say nothing of the obvious community of interest and responsibility that exists within the county as a whole.

Man Needs Companionship

Summarizing its first six months of operation for 1971-72, the Lincoln Personal Crisis Service (PCS) reported handling a total of 700 telephone calls. The objective of the service is to give personal assistance by phone to people when they think they need outside assistance.

Reasons for calls are many and varied but it was noted that loneliness hits hardest over the holiday periods. Loneliness and its related subjects were also cited in a recent meeting as one of the causes listed by young people for experimenting with drugs.

There is no great point to be made of this but it is well to realize that man is a basically friendly kind of animal. Isolate him and he is likely to develop all kinds of problems, both mental and physical.

This is a vital consideration by people, both as individuals in society and collectively through public programs and agencies. Drugs and alcohol are easily associated with personal problems that could stem from loneliness. Many family problems and the problems of the elderly can be associated with the same matter of loneliness.

Obviously, preventive and rehabilitative programs seeking to deal with these problems need to tackle the matter of loneliness, as well as other things. Personally, individuals should remember that they themselves can often do a lot to remedy the problem of loneliness.

No one will deliberately isolate himself from the rest of society. Some may behave in a manner to encourage such isolation but they are finally left totally to themselves simply as an act of rejection by others. It is an inhuman development and one that all of us would do well to stop whenever we have the opportunity of doing so.

VIRGINIA PAYETTE
The Deep Mystery Of Bank's Interior

NEW YORK — Brace yourself for the latest flash from high finance: Now our bankers want to pay our bills for us.

Not, however, with their money. (And if that thought flashed through your mind, I'd like to meet your banker.) The "sugar daddy" sydrome has not yet overtaken their balanced little souls.

If you really want to know, generosity has nothing to do with it. They just figure it might cut down on the billions of checks a year that come bouncing (oops . . . sorry about that) into the country's clearinghouses.

It's what you might call a banker's dream: a checkless society. Although why they didn't think of that when they invented checking accounts is beyond me.

As a matter of fact, I understand very little of what goes on behind those cages at my friendly neighborhood bank. I know you slide money under the grillwork (and they always seem just as happy to accept checks as cash) . . . an aloof teller tosses it into a drawer . . . and what happens to it after that, I never dared ask.

To tell the truth, banks have a strange way of dampening my bubbly personality and I don't spend more time in them than I have to. As for cross-examining that forbidding female, well . . . one glare from those frosty eyes with the (appropriately) green eyshadow would have me back stuffing my dollar bills in Granny's cracked teapot.

(Drive-in tellers, now, are different. They joke and smile a lot. Maybe because they've escaped the inside of the bank?)

So what happens to my checks after I mail them to the telephone company and the water works and the bank that holds the mortgage is something of a monetary mystery.

I know they go through a clearinghouse (whatever that is). I also know that once in a while, for some strange reason, they come back to me. I am even willing to take the bankers' word that all those checks (not necessarily mine, although Old Dad sometimes gets that feeling) are clogging up the works, bankwise.

But, just the same, I am not particularly anxious to have my banker take over the monthly budget, however tempting it is to think of him battling those credit-card computers instead of me.

What they would like me to do, it turns out, is just tell them which regular bills they could pay out of my checking account and it would all be automatic from there on. Even with my limited banking expertise, I can see trouble ahead already.

Would my banker be as eagle-eyed for foul-ups on department store bills as he is in spotting overdrafts? And what if a call to Hong Kong shows up on the phone bills? How could HE know I don't know anybody in Hong Kong?

Also, there's just a chance a month might come along when the money the bank was planning to pay my bills with was money I needed for something else. Could I make it to the windows in time? Would a banker understand the financial somersaults some of us turn toward the end of the month?

Somehow, I doubt it. I'll bet his right hand always knows what his left hand's up to.

On the other and, if he'd like to have a go at straightening up the mess my checkbook's in . .

TOM WICKER
Senator Fred Harris Turning To Populist Style; Thinks Voters Will Respond To 'Straight Talk'

MIAMI — A major trouble with the Democratic presidential candidates is that the only one who can easily be distinguished from the moderate-to-liberal pack is the national defense hard-liner, Sen. Henry Jackson of Washington. Sen. Fred Harris of Oklahoma hopes the populist style will make him another.

This is one of the longest shots currently visible, but a day with the Oklahoma senator, as he did some groundwork here for next March's Florida primary, suggests that it may not be out of the question. And anyway, after Harris's withdrawal from an all-but-hopeless re-election campaign in his home state, he has nowhere to go but up.

Harris has far more national political expertise than most young senators. As a member of the Kerner Commission on Civil Disorders, a co-manager of Hubert Humphrey's presidential campaign in 1968, and Democratic national chairman in 1969, he has a better idea than most as to where the power lies in the various states and cities, and how hard it is to move.

So he knows what he is getting into, and he would hardly have done it without the backing of a first-class fund-raiser — Herbert Allen, the wealthy New York investment banker, but it is the populist style that gives Fred Harris his chance, if any.

This is more than a matter of issues, although he intends to campaign on a platform of "redistribution of wealth, redistribution of power and a foreign policy based on idealism." But also Harris is convinced that even in the age of television, politicians have become too "cool."

"I believe that people feel some lack of emotion on the part of these other fellows," he says of his Democratic rivals. "I believe the people want to touch you and see you. They want to hear some of what we used to call 'red-faced speeches" down in Oklahoma."

So he intends to learn from the tactics of Lawton Chiles, who walked the length of Florida to publicize his successful Senate campaign last year. "The people are sick of slickly manipulated, high-priced advertising campaigns," he told his Florida audiences.

A highly personal campaign of straight talk will get attention because "people just feel so left out," Harris says. "Things seem so impersonal and far away and people feel powerless . . . Decisions are being made that affect their lives that they don't have any control over. And down deep most of them don't believe it makes any difference which politician they elect; they don't believe anything will change."

☆ ☆ ☆

That is right out of George Wallace's book, of course, but Harris has a different intent — one that doesn't fit the "populist" notion. Nineteenth Century populism fell apart on the race question and most "populist" types since then have tended more or less openly toward racism. Harris says instead — probably more bluntly than any other Democrat now running .—"the real issue is not race but economic class."

Health problems affect black and whites alike, he points out. Appalachian whites and southwestern Chicanos alike are out of work. Cubans in Miami and American Indians on the reservation, as well as relatively affluent suburban whites, worry about their children's schools and their own inability to have much effect on the way things go.

If all these and other groups could be united around a populist program — the redistribution of wealth and power — against the powerful exploitative elements of American society, they could be a great political force.

This may be the pipe dream that most American politicians have considered it, but Fred Harris is at least well-suited to pursue it. With his poor Oklahoma beginnings, his southern accent, his occasionally "red-faced" oratory and his fondness for telling stories about his family back home in Oklahoma.

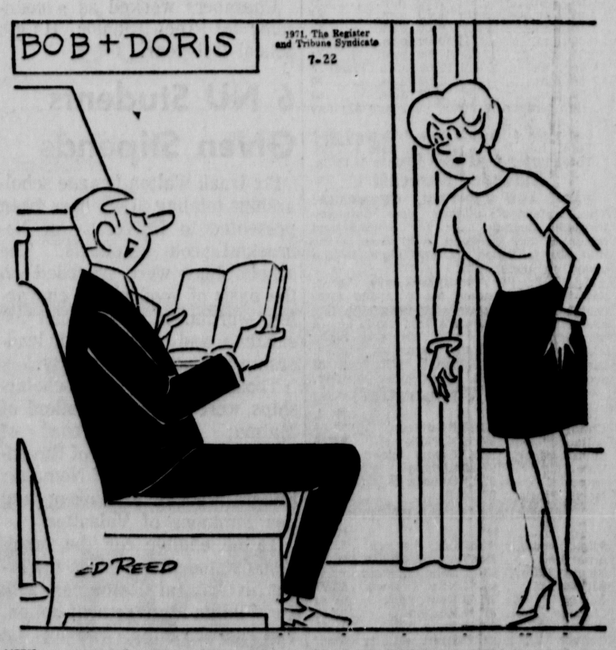

A gregarious mixer with a booming laugh and a quick wit — after suffering a florid introduction at a luncheon here, he rose gravely and said: "That concludes our program for the day" — he looks and sounds like a backwoods radical with an urban education.

Harris was the first candidate on the phone to Harold Hughes after word spread that the Iowan would withdraw from the race. He believes the "populist style" may bring more of Hughes's erstwhile supporters to him than to Sen. George McGovern of South Dakota. He is committed to primaries here and in New Mexico and California, and concedes that circumstances will probably force him into most of the others.

The main problem for the other candidates, he thinks, is to "stop Muskie from overwhelming the field" in the first few primaries. But in the long-run, he believes, the winner at the Democratic convention and over President Nixon is going to be the candidate who "lets the people know that if he's elected, things will change." The populist style is aimed at just that.

Safety Law Into Effect Next Month

Omaha (AP) — A new federal safety law applying to virtually every employer takes effect Aug. 27, but many businesses probably don't even know it's on the books, according to the man who will enforce it.

The law is the Williams-Steiger Occupational Safety and Health Act of 1970, and the man in charge of enforcement in Iowa and Nebraska is Warren Wright, area director of the Occupational Safety and Health Administration.

The Labor Department, which is in charge of administration, has not yet launched formal education programs among the employers involved and although the act was published in the Federal Register on May 29, copies were not sent to the businesses affected. President Nixon signed the act on Dec. 29, 1970.

Wright arrived in Omaha this week to organize a staff and to acquaint employers with the law. Federal, state and local government employes are excluded.

"We will have 10 compliance officers who will make unannounced safety inspection on businesses once the act is implemented," Wright said. His office will be in Omaha.

He said five industries would be the initial enforcement targets because of their previous history of a high amount of job-related injuries and illnesses.

He listed them as dock working, roof and sheet metal, meat and meat products, miscellaneous transportation equipment and lumber and wood products

Bischof Hearing Set August 16 In Accident Case

Preliminary hearing in Lancaster County Court was set Wednesday for Aug. 16 for Geregory Bishof, charged with a felony offense of motor vehicle homicide in connection with the July 15 death of Michael John Anderson.

Bischof, 28, of 6313 Fremont, is specifically charged with the illegal operation of a motor vehicle which caused the death of Mr. Anderson.

Mr. Anderson died of injuries received when the vehicle in which he was riding, which was operated by Bischof, collided with the rear of a truck at 40th and Cornhusker.

VA Will Name Acting Director To Head Hospital

A Veterans Administration official has revealed an acting director would be named for the Lincoln hospital, it was reported Wednesday.

Kenneth Whiteside of Washington, in Lincoln for a conference, said being considered for the post are Gaylord Morton, assistant director of the hospital, and Dr. John Clothier, medical chief of staff.

Earlier this week Dr. Lad J Kucera, who had been named as a replacement for retiring director Dr. J. Melvin Boykin, died from a heart attack. Kucera was previously director of the Grand Island VA hospital.

Boykin is scheduled to retire on July 31. Whiteside said a permanent director would probably not be named until September or October.

Iowa Company Gives Low Bid For Fuel Tank

Pittsburg-Des Moines Co. of Des Moines, Iowa, was the apparent low bidder Wednesday to furnish a 216,000-gallon fuel oil storage tank for Lincoln Electric System's peaking unit for the generation of power.

The firm had bid of $29,317.

Dobson Bros. Construction Co. also submitted the apparent low bids of $12,628 on a paving district in N.W. 13th from West S south 400 feet and $7,560 on a water district in B St. from 23rd to 25th.

Kaiser Reports Loss Of $297,000

Oakland, Calif. (AP) — Kaiser Steel Corp. reported Tuesday that it lost $297,000 in the first half of 1971 on sales of $265 million.

The firm said the losses by Kaiser Resources Ltd. of Canada, a 75% owned subsidiary, had offset earnings from domestic operations and another foreign holding, Hemersley Holdings Ltd.

The 1970 first half earnings were $9,638,000, or $1.30 a share, on sales of $205 million.

Simpson Sees Cuts In ADC As Move To Create Surplus

By United Press International

Lincoln State Sen. Harold Simpson said Wenesday the announced cutbacks in aid to dependent children (ADC) payments could be an attempt to create a surplus to help eliminate a tax increase next year.

Simpson, who lead an unsuccessful attempt during the 1971 Legislature, to block the possibility of ADC payment cutbacks, said he has talked with other lawmakers who share the feeling.

Last month, State Welfare Director Lawrence Graham announced some payments would be cut back by about 9% beginning Aug. 1.

At the time, Gov. J. J. Exon supported the move, and said the decision was based on a choice between making the cuts or deficit spending.

However, Simpson said at the time the appropriations for the department were approved "we were assured the state would not have to prorate."

He noted some $2.2 million had been added to the department's budget to take care of higher ADC payment standards, which were also approved by the Unicameral this year.

The lawmaker also noted it was carryover funds which brought about the reduction in state income tax rates last year from 13% to 10%.

The result of the cutbacks, Simpson also said, goes beyond simply being an economy measure. He said because of the action, some families would be dropped from the roles altogether, and would not be eligible for medical aid.

"Many of these children are sick or retarded, or have problems in addition to lack of money," he said.

Attorneys Request Dismissal Of School Dress Code Suit

Opposing attorneys in a year-old law suit testing the constitutionality of the dress code of the Lincoln Public Schools jointly requested Wednesday its dismissal in the U.S. District Court.

The suit was filed in May, 1970, by Dr. Earl B. Barnawell on behalf of his 11-year-old son, Eric, a student at Randolph Elementary School against Marlin Kaufmann, Randolph School principal, and John Prasch, superintendent of schools.

Barnawell charged his son was suspended from school when he wore a T-shirt and cut-off blue jeans to school.

Federal Judge Warren K. Urbom issued a temporary restraining order permitting Eric to attend sixth grade classes until the end of the term, pending further proceedings in the suit.

The suit had contended the dress code was unconstitutional and the defendants had discriminated against plaintiff's son in its administration.

Nebraska Patrol Seeks Applicants For Vacancies

State Patrol Supt. Col. James Kruger has announced the patrol is now taking applications to fill at least 54 vacancies.

Kruger said there are now 39 vacancies plus another 15 positions authorized by the 1971 Legislature.

Applicants passing the personnel evaluation test will begin classroom training in Lincoln Nov. 5.

Further Probing Planned In Death Of Flowers Baby

Scottsbluff (AP) — Further investigation will be made into the death of nine-day-old Michael John Flowers, the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. John Flowers of Terrytown, Neb., Wednesday.

Scotts Bluff County officials said the baby was dead on arrival at a Scottsbluff hospital after it was first believed he suffocated in his crib under blankets.

However an autopsy report on the incident Wednesday has caused Scotts Bluff County Atty. Marvin Holscher to continue his investigation of the incident.

Holscher declined to release the results of the autopsy report.

Life Begins At 40:

He Feels Critics Should Go

By ROBERT PETERSON

Question: "When people complain about America, why shouldn't we tell them to go elsewhere? When Frenchmen complain I tell them to go back to France. And when blacks complain, I tell them to go to Africa. Same with my aunt. She had no one left in Germany, so my sister and I paid her passage to America five years ago and helped her get citizenship. But she has nothing good to say about America — yaps all the time about crime, poor quality goods, lack of law and order, and even the climate. Yesterday I blew my top and told her if she didn't like it here she should keep quiet or go back to Germany. Now she's mad. But wasn't I right?"

Answer: Seems so to me. When folks find more things about America to criticize than praise, it's logical to suggest they go elsewhere. Of course America is not perfect and occasional criticism may lead to correction of certain faults. But criticism should always be tempered by the realization that whatever her faults this country offers its people greater opportunities for good living than any other nation.

Question: — "My wife and I get by, but we've had problems. I have a bad leg — foot was crushed in an accident five years ago — and contractors would rather not hire me. My wife works part-time but has bad vision. My brother is partner in a big citrus company. What bugs me is he sends us a box of fruit a couple times a year and always encloses a check for a lousy five dollars. We can use the money but it seems such a sniveling gesture for a guy who makes his kind of money. My wife says we should stop accepting these cheap gifts. What do you say?"

Answer: — Folks who spurn small gifts usually stimulate antagonism and end up with nothing. I think you should accept these favors with gratitude and interpret them as a kind and helpful act. This way you can always depend on your brother to assist you in case of emergencies. If you become arrogant and haughty you'll be out in the cold without a kumquat.

Question:—"I'm 42 and have held a routine engineering job with a construction firm since graduating from college. I'll be eligible to retire on a pension if I stick around another 13 years. A friend wants me to resign and join him as a partner in an engineering consulting firm he's starting. It looks like a good opportunity but I hate to lose my rights to that pension. What do you suggest?"

Answer: — If you can visualize greener opportunities and keener satisfactions working in a firm of your own, I'd vote for the partnership. Life is too short to be trapped in a routine job waiting for a pension — especially if you've got real confidence in your abilities. Possibly part of your present pension credits are vested — which means you may be able to cash in on them later. Let's hope legislation will soon be enacted to permit employes in private industry to resign and go into other work without losing accumulated credits.

Jury Selection Slow

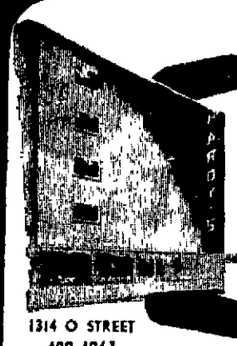

New Orleans (UPI) — Attorneys in the attempted murder trial of 12 black panthers have questioned 356 prospective jurors and seated only eight. Jury selection in the trial began July 8 in the court of Israel Augustine, Louisiana's only Negro district judge. The nine men and three women defendants are charged with trying to kill policemen during a police raid on Panther headquarters last fall.

Which astronaut socked three golf balls on the moon. I would like to win a bet.
—Patty K., Lincoln

ACTION LINE: Hope this keeps you up to par? Alan Shepard, a 15-handicapper on earth, became the first golfer on the moon in February 1971. He hit two six-iron shots in the Fra Mauro Valley of the moon which perhaps travelled some 800 yards due to the lighter gravity.

Earthbound duffers may feel close to Shepard since he missed the first shot he took on the moon and just hit a lot of moon dust. He took three swings, but hit only two golf balls on the moon.

In November 1970, several business places in Geneva ordered telephone book covers from Midland Plastics Co. in Arnold, Mo. Several phone contacts and many months later, we still are without telephone book covers. Help!

Egg Record Cracked

Port MacQuarie, Australia (AP) — Police constable Paul Lassau threw a raw egg 203 feet 9 inches to Constable James Clarke, who caught it unbroken. They claimed a world record. The Guinness Book of Records lists the current mark as 190 feet 10 inches, set by New Zealand students in March 1970.

Permit Is Granted By Banking Dept.

State Banking Director Henry Ley announced Wednesday a permit for operations has been granted to the Great Western Savings and Loan Association at Millard.

The association, according to the terms of the permit, will operate from a location at 132nd and L Sts.—the Millard Shoping Center.

Ley said a permit granted to savings and loan associations is the same thing as a charter, which is awarded to banks.

Strategy Switched

Canandaigua, N.Y. (UPI) — Ontario County sheriff's deputies always get their man, one way or the other. Shortly after deputies set up a radar trap, Seven Derycke, 18, wrote "slow radar" on a shopping bag and began walking along the road with it to warn motorists. When suspicious policemen went to see what his sign said, the teen-ager simply rolled it up and threw it away. He was fined $50 for littering.

Varner Named To Japan-U.S. Cultural Panel

Chancellor D. B. Varner of the University of Nebraska has accepted an appointment from the U.S. Department of State to serve on the 12-member Joint Committee on Japan-U.S. Cooperation.

A major function of the committee is to maintain continuity in educational and cultural activities between biennial conferences that have been held since 1961 as the result of an agreement reached by President Kennedy and Prime Minister Ikeda. The next biennial conference will be held in Washington in 1972.

Varner will serve as a representative of the artistic fields.

This Week's Health Tip

Here is a health tip from the Nebraska State Medical Association:

Knowing the art of mouth to mouth resuscitation may one day help you save a life.

If you are witness to a circumstance in which a victim stops breathing, start immediately. Seconds count so do not spend time moving the victim unless absolutely necessary.

Place him in a face up position and kneel beside him. Lift the victim's neck with one hand and tilt the head back with your other hand. Pull the victim's chin up with the hand that was lifting the neck. Place your mouth over the victim's nose or mouth, make a leak-proof seal and breathe into the victim's lungs until you see the chest rise.

The air you blow into the victim's lungs has enough oxygen to save his life. Remove your mouth and let the victim exhale. The procedure should be repeated 15 times each minute.

Do not wait or look for help, if possible ask someone to summon medical aid. And above all means, do not stop too soon.

Howard Johnson Sales Set Record

Boston (AP) — Howard Johnson Co., roadside restaurant and motel operator, reported record high profits of $5.9 million, or 57 cents per share, on sales of $141.5 million in the first half of 1971.

This compared with earnings of $4.6 million, or 47 cents on sales of $137.8 million a year earlier.

Place him in a face up position and kneel beside him. Lift the victim's neck with one hand and tilt the head back with your other hand. Pull the victim's chin up with the hand that was lifting the neck. Place your mouth over the victim's nose or mouth, make a leak-proof seal and breathe into the victim's lungs until you see the chest rise.

The air you blow into the victim's lungs has enough oxygen to save his life. Remove your mouth and let the victim exhale. The procedure should be repeated 15 times each minute.

Do not wait or look for help, if possible ask someone to summon medical aid. And above all means, do not stop too soon.

Hardin: Horse Sleeping Sickness Confined To One Area

By ODELL HANSON
Associated Press Writer

South Sioux City (AP) — Agriculture Secretary Clifford Hardin said Wednesday he is encouraged by the fact a current outbreak of a horse sleeping sickness has been confined to a part of the Southwest.

But, he said, "we cannot say that the disease is under control. There could be an outbreak outside this area."

Visiting this Missouri River city to breakfast with midwestern governors at their annual conference, Hardin told a news conference the disease, Venezuelan Equine Enceohaloyelitis, was confined as of Wednesday morning to an area north and west of Brownsville, Tex. No confirmed cases have been reported as far north as Houston, he said.

Contract flyers will be joining Air Force flyers in spraying Gulf Coast areas for mosquitoes, the disease carrier

Vaccine Available

And vaccine was on hand in all surrounding states except Oklahoma, where shipments were to arrive Wednesday, Hardin reported.

He said the latest count showed 1,469 horses infected and 1,132 confirmed horse deaths. No human deaths have been noted, he said.

The government stands ready to fly scientists and veterinarians into any area where the disease is suspected, he said

Discussing southern corn leaf blight, which sharply reduced national corn yields last year, Secretary Hardin said Oklahoma was added Tuesday to the states where the infestation has been noted, which means the blight has now been identified in all important corn states. As of Tuesday, he said, "there has been no significant economic damage" from the blight.

Blight Areas

No large areas have been wiped out "but there is no prediction on what might happen a few weeks hence"

Hardin arrived at the governor's conference late Tuesday, was an honored guest at a state dinner Tuesday night, and met privately with governors of the 15-state conference at breakfast before meeting with newsmen.

He avoided comment in detail on agricultural recommendations which various governors had advanced at the conference.

With reference to Nebraska Gov. James J. Exon's suggestion that the USDA disseminate more information to farmers for production planning purposes, Hardin said, "Any way to place reliable, current information in the hands of farmers would be good."

Exon Proposal

Of an Exon proposal to establish a new food and fiber board to direct agricultural policy, Hardin said: "I'm more concerned with functions than with structure."

Of the general farm problem posed by tremendous production capacity in the United States, Hardin said the best solution lies in new markets.

"If we are going to have a great break-through, it's going to have to be in sales abroad."

Britain's entry into the European common market "would constitute a negative factor," he said, because Britain has been an important market for American farm products

It's summer, and the province of Quebec is covered with white daisies. We came steaming down Transcanadian 20. Double-tracked. Divided by a half block strip of green grass. Snowy fields on each side.

The highway was full of hitchhiking kids. There are 400,000 thumbing around Canada Many Americans. And many won't go home.

"The papers say there are 30,000 young Americans here dodging the draft," a French-Canadian told me. "But that can only be an official guess.

"There's no border count—I mean, a man doesn't cross telling the immigration people: 'Look, I'm ducking the draft.' So he only comes to attention if he gets a job. Some social security status.

"But a lot of kids get money from home. Or they work for themselves — they put an ad in the paper and paint houses. Something like that "I would guess there's a lot more than 30,000 Twice that. Maybe three times 30,000"

☆ ☆ ☆

We're having morning coffee at the Hilton Inn. At the airport. Sweating out Air Canada's jet to warm Jamaica.

Ground crews went on strike yesterday all over Canada.

They strike one airport one day. Then they go back to work. And, at another airport, their ground crews strike for a day.

To make Jamaica, I have to clear two airports: Montreal and Toronto.

It's a kind of Russian roulette. At 9 in the morning, check out of the hotel. Get bags to the airport. Check in. Then — if the ground crews show up, you get to Toronto.

Where, if their ground crew showed up, you're away.

The hitchhiking shaggies — beards and backpacks — aren't getting official welcomes. No brass bands and the mayor with the city key.

But they're not being pushed around or hassled by cops.

The local paper put a young reporter on the road and he wrote: "I got one ride on a tractor — the farmer wanted to know what kids were like in the city The next ride was on a truck hauling potato chips

"Then I put my thumb out and a couple picked me up 'Going to Quebec? Jump in' It was as easy as that

About every 30 miles along the highway, a big brown fleur-de-lys points you to government camp grounds. What's offered is in sign language· A picnic table A tent A camper.

They're excellent places. Usually beside a river. White birch trees scattered around. There are well kept toilets and showers and tubs to wash clothing.

Backpacking kids can make it almost anywhere Only a fifth of the province has people living on it

The other four-fifths is natural campground Rivers Lakes Thick with pine, maple and birch

The French-Canadian said "I think some of your people getting away from the draft simply stay on the road all summer There's no cheaper way to live

"Sure, there's some dope problems And some arrests. But most of those who get caught seem to be Canadians. I imagine the Americans are careful. An arrest would put them back across the border."

☆ ☆

I phoned Air Canada. They said: "All we can advise you to do is be at the airport at flight time. Sorry."

Back to the coffee. An uncertain life but a lively one.

Salt Valley Watershed Budget Gets Tentative OK

By TOM EKVALL
Star Staff Writer

The Salt Valley Watershed District Wednesday gave tentative approval to its $871,988 budget for the 1971-72 fiscal year, down from the present budget of $929,700.

District directors set July 29 as the public hearing date on the budget with final action to be taken at the board's Aug. 11 meeting. The hearing will be held at the Lincoln Hotel at 8 p.m.

The budget includes a sizable amount of funds for projects budgeted for but not spent during the present fiscal year budget. To date the board has spent $98,085.

General Manager Hal Schroeder said that a .75 mill levy — the maximum allowed — would result in tax revenues of $347,325.

The budget includes $792,000 for land and construction expenses. Drainage and flood control maintenance accounts for $630,000 of the amount and reflects the rescheduling of some of the items not placed under contract.

The $630,000 figure includes channel stabilization on Antelope Creek between 27th and A for $135,000 and A St. to South St. for $265,000. The two items, figured at $400,000 represent an increase from the original estimates of $255,000, Schroeder reported.

Work is also programmed for Dead Man's Run between 66th and 70th at $140,000 and from 70th to O St. at $90,000.

Directors also learned that an error by a contractor in submitting bids on channel stabilization projects for Antelope Creek will mean that the district will have to pay $18,000 more.

Robert Crosby, legal counsel for the watershed district, said N. L. Cole Construction Co. inadvertently reversed the bid figures for the two projects — one substantially higher than all other bids and one substantially lower.

Crosby said the firm would be the low bidder in both cases had the bids not been in error.

He said that legally on the low bid the district could excuse the bidder for a project between A St. to South St. (the firm had erroneously bid $128,125 with the next highest at $265,600) but could not correct the sums for the two projects.

As a result, Abel Construction Co., was given both contracts. Abel had bid $132,185 on a project from 27th to A St. as compared to a corrected bid of $128,125 for N. L. Cole and $265,600 for that from A to South St. as compared to $250,250.

N. L. Cole was the low bidder on two other projects for Dead Man's Run and was awarded those contracts. The firm had bid $140,041 on that portion from 66th to 70th and $80,626 on that from 70th to O St.

Several board members had suggested rejecting the Antelope Creek bids and readvertising for new bids to save the taxpayers some money.

Earl Luff said and others agreed that costs could go up during the interim period. It was also pointed out that work was intended to be coordinated with work in the area by the city.

Some Governors Hope Nixon Trip May Lead To Selling China Wheat

By The Associated Press

South Sioux City (AP) — Wheat state governors expressed a degree of hope and expectation that President Nixon's promised trip to Red China may lead to the export of American wheat to that nation.

Gov. Robert Docking of Kansas whose state is the nation's premier wheat producer, said he "would assume this new contact will open the door for trade negotiations."

"I certainly hope so," said Minnesota's Gov. Wendell Anderson on prospects of wheat trade with China.

Germany Sells

The Minnesotan, whose state has major wheat processors, noted that the United States sells wheat to Germany which processes it and sells it to China.

"We're not hurting the Chinese by not selling to them," he said in an interview. "We are hurting our own farmers and businessmen."

Gov. J. James Exon of Nebraska, a Democrat, said he commends the president for his initiative and hopes his efforts "will be in the direction of expanding exports of agricultural products.

Views Differ

"I hope he is successful in increasing these exports, but also in the more important problem of bringing world peace."

Views of the sampled governors here for a 15-state Midwestern Governors Conference were less than unanimous.

Missouri Gov. Warren Hearnes said that to anticipate the effects of the President's trip on wheat exports would constitute "the wildest of speculation."

Trade Said Opening

Gov. John J. Gilligan of Ohio said wheat exportation "quite conceivably could" become an effect of the visit.

"Cultural relations and trade are usually the openings," he said, but there are some "sticky wickets" to be encountered.

"It's conceivable that the President could be sipping tea with Red China while our boys are being shot at in Vietnam," Gilligan noted. The trip suggests that the President intends to remove troops from Vietnam by the time of the visit, he said, but the Vietnamese also are involved and the situation is "not completely in the control" of the United States.

"We've got a long, rough road to go before we get there," he said of normal trade with Red China.

Kennedy Aide Hired

Washington (UPI) — Mark Shields, regional coordinator for Sen. Robert F. Kennedy's 1968 presidential campaign, has been appointed co-director of political operations for Sen. Edmund S. Muskie's presidential campaign committee. Shields, 34, a native of Weymouth, Wis., is assistant to Gov. John Gilligan of Ohio.

City Hall Soaked

Dallas (UPI) — Workmen installing air conditioning ducts in city hall figured it had not rained in weeks so they left some holes in the roof where they were working when they went home each day. It finally rained and the water seeped through the building all the way to the city secretary's office on the second floor. A city spokesman said, "Apparently it never occurred to them it might rain."

Phone Operations 'Back To Normal'

Omaha (AP) — Northwestern Bell operations were "back to normal" late Tuesday in Omaha, a company spokesman reported.

Workers on the 11 p.m. shift reported for duty after the last of the pickets for the local chapter of the Communication Workers of America left at 10:59 p.m., said Jim Leuschen.

Union and Bell Telephone negotiators reached a contract agreement Monday.

Union Asks Court For New Trial In Omaha Safety Inspectors Suit

An Omaha union has asked the Court of Industrial Relations for a new trial after the court last week dismissed the union's suit against the city of Omaha.

The suit was brought by Local 251 of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employes over a condition the union says exists in the city's public safety department.

According to the union's suit, about 50 inspectors in the permits and inspection division of the department are required to use their own vehicles and equip the cars with a two-way radio, receiving no compensation.

However, the court held last week that the union, even though it knew of the condition, signed a contract with the city which omitted settlement of the particular issue.

Salt Valley Watershed Budget Gets Tentative OK

By TOM EKVALL
Star Staff Writer

The Salt Valley Watershed District Wednesday gave tentative approval to its $871,988 budget for the 1971-72 fiscal year, down from the present budget of $929,700.

District directors set July 29 as the public hearing date on the budget with final action to be taken at the board's Aug. 11 meeting. The hearing will be held at the Lincoln Hotel at 8 p.m.

The budget includes a sizable amount of funds for projects budgeted for but not spent during the present fiscal year budget. To date the board has spent $98,085.

General Manager Hal Schroeder said that a .75 mill levy — the maximum allowed — would result in tax revenues of $347,325.

The budget includes $792,000 for land and construction expenses. Drainage and flood control maintenance accounts for $630,000 of the amount and reflects the rescheduling of some of the items not placed under contract.

The $630,000 figure includes channel stabilization on Antelope Creek between 27th and A for $135,000 and A St. to South St. for $265,000. The two items, figured at $400,000 represent an increase from the original estimates of $255,000, Schroeder reported.

Work is also programmed for Dead Man's Run between 66th and 70th at $140,000 and from 70th to O St. at $90,000.

Directors also learned that an error by a contractor in submitting bids on channel stabilization projects for Antelope Creek will mean that the district will have to pay $18,000 more.

Robert Crosby, legal counsel for the watershed district, said N. L. Cole Construction Co. inadvertently reversed the bid figures for the two projects — one substantially higher than all other bids and one substantially lower.

Crosby said the firm would be the low bidder in both cases had the bids not been in error.

He said that legally on the low bid the district could excuse the bidder for a project between A St. to South St. (the firm had erroneously bid $128,125 with the next highest at $265,600) but could not correct the sums for the two projects.

As a result, Abel Construction Co., was given both contracts. Abel had bid $132,185 on a project from 27th to A St. as compared to a corrected bid of $128,125 for N. L. Cole and $265,600 for that from A to South St. as compared to $250,250.

N. L. Cole was the low bidder on two other projects for Dead Man's Run and was awarded those contracts. The firm had bid $140,041 on that portion from 66th to 70th and $80,626 on that from 70th to O St.

Several board members had suggested rejecting the Antelope Creek bids and readvertising for new bids to save the taxpayers some money.

Earl Luff said and others agreed that costs could go up during the interim period. It was also pointed out that work was intended to be coordinated with work in the area by the city.

Suburban Hustle and Bustle Never Ceases

There is so much activity in suburbia these days that often it is difficult to step back from the hustle and bustle and reserve a few minutes for thoughts concerning just what has been taking place.

We know for certain that everyone has been on the go to take advantage of the lovely days — and the going has been by land, by water, and even by air.

For example, Mr. and Mrs. Duane Schweitzer of Wedgewood Manor recently returned from a three-day camping trip-retreat to Lake Ericson. Accompanying the Schweitzers were four couples who all had fishing and relaxation on their minds.

The children were left at home and only the adults made their annual retreat to the cabin on the lake. The relaxing tensome included Mr. and Mrs. Gus Jones, Mr. and Mrs. Gary Linebaugh, Mr. and Mrs. Roger Harris and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Alley — in addition of course, to Mr. and Mrs. Schweitzer.

Travels are not limited to the Wedgewood Manor area by any means. We also have news this morning of a trip made by a certain suburban mother who spent a week in Kalamazoo, Mich., where she visited with her daughter.

The mother is Mrs. Clarence Dennis and the daughter is Miss Terry Ann Dennis who is a graduate student at Western Michigan University where she is working toward her Master's degree in special education.

While in the area, Mrs. Dennis and her daughter made their regular journey to Manistee, Mich., and purchased some very special material — Mrs. Dennis is quite a seamstress, by the way.

From another suburban area, we heard about, yes — another reunion. This time, however, the occasion was the family reunion variety rather than a class reunion.

The reunion gathering spot was Tulsa, Okla., so that is exactly where Mr. and Mrs. Fred Witt and their sons, George, and Fred, Jr. of the Fiene Heights suburb went.

The family left on Wednesday, June 30, and arrived in Tulsa in just enough time for a gala double celebration — reunion and fourth of July festivities. During their Tulsa stay, they visited with Mrs. Witt's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Patten.

At reunion time there were other relatives to see . . . Mrs. Witt's brother-in-law and sister and their family, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Yoos of Wichita, Kan.; Mrs. Witt's niece Mrs. Fylvan and their family, Mrs. David Fylvan of Kansas City, Kan., and her nephew, Charles Patten, Mrs. Patten and their family of Kansas City, Kan. Naturally, there were more relatives to visit, but we could only name a few.

Come Monday, July 5, the suburban family was back on the road heading back to Lincoln.

But there is more . . . Mr. and Mrs. Witt and their sons, George and Fred, Jr., will have visitors this weekend and during the visit, there is a birthday in the air.

The special guests will be none other than Mr. and Mrs. Witt's son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Tad Dunham and their sons, David and Ted, of Ralson.

Mrs. Dunham will be celebrating her birthday on Sunday, July 25 with her family and the Witt family before she and her husband depart for Kansas City, Kan., for a mini vacation.

During Mr. and Mrs. Dunham's absence, David and Ted will be spending their time with the Witt family.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Kosman of Bishop Heights have been enjoying a special bundle this summer, their granddaughter, Miss Karie Kosman. Karie, who is 17 months old is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Steven Kosman who returned to Lincoln last May from Germany where Mr. Kosman was a tour of military duty after which he received his discharge from the service.

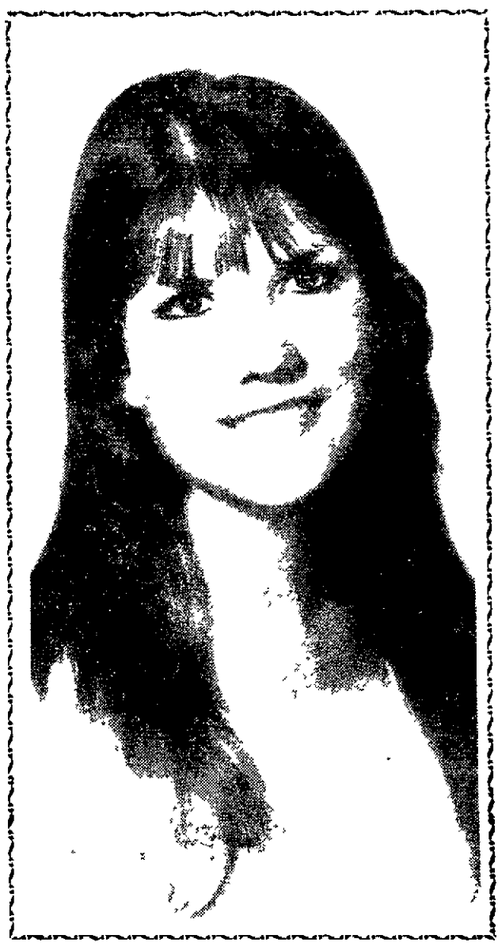

Last Sunday, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Kosman were right up front as they watched their grand-daughter's baptism. The maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Don Shriner were on hand as well, and Karie's godparents are here maternal aunt and uncle, Miss Carrie Shriner and Andy Shriner.

Recently Mr. and Mrs. Kosman hosted a welcome home party for their son and daughter-in-law when they entertained 35 guests at an informal dinner and an evening of visiting..

Ever since Robert Carpenter received his pilot's license early this summer, the Carpenter family has been up and about, leaving their Maple Village home for short jaunts to visit friends and family in nearby areas.

One of the first trips of the summer took the Carpenter family to Ames, Iowa, for a family reunion. Just last week, the landing site was Hastings, where the Carpenters visited with their friends, Mr. and Mrs. Art Paus. Needless to say, chief pilot for the trips has been Mr. Carpenter himself.

Mr. and Mrs. William Whitford have just returned to their Eastborough home from a two week trip to Livingston and Reed Point, Mont. The four Whitford children, Danny, David, Don and Delilah, were on board, of course. We might add that the family took their camping equipment, on the trip since camping out is one of the family's favorite activities.

MISS JANET BAILEY

Announcement is made this morning by Mr. and Mrs. Samuel D. Bailey of DeRidder, La., of the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Janet Sue, to Jerry Dale Gillam, son of Mr. and Mrs. Armin Griess of Lincoln.

The wedding will take place in DeRidder in August.

Miss Bailey is attending McNeese State College at Lake Charles, La.

Mr. Gillam also is a student at McNeese State College.

MISS DIANE WILLIAMS

This morning Mr. and Mrs. Silas R. Williams of Lexington make announcement of the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Diane Sue, to George Stephen Harger, son of Mrs. Golden Harger of Lincoln.

The wedding will take place on Saturday, Oct 9.

Miss Williams is a graduate of the Grand Island School of Business and now is careering in the offices of the State of Nebraska Department of Education.

Mr. Harger attended Fairbury Junior College and now is associated with a construction company in Lincoln.

Afternoon Wedding

The wedding of Miss Dorothy Eleanore Person, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Person of Wahoo, and Philip Warren Feese, son of Mr. and Mrs. George R. Feese of Alma, took place on Sunday afternoon, July 18, at the Bethlehem Lutheran Church in Wahoo.

The four attendants, including matron of honor Mrs. Victor Frana of LeRoy, Ill; bridesmatrons Mrs. Harold Oetken of Omaha and Mrs. James Hoke of Elk Creek; and Miss Linda Klawonn, the bridesmaid, wore alike frocks of sheer aqua nylon with floral patterned skirts of aqua and olive green nylon.

Donal Noonau of Pomona, Calif., served as best man, and the groomsmen and ushers were Russell Person of Fremont; Norman Person of Des Moines, Iowa; Harold Oetken and Dr. John Flocken, both of Omaha; Neil Feese of Alma, and Gary Goldekin of Naponee.

The bride appeared in a gown of organdy over taffeta. The Empire bodice was fashioned with a jewel collar and rose-embroidered kabuki sleeves. The embroidery in the rose motif was repeated to accent the A-line silhouette skirt which extended into a cotillion-length train. A bandeau held in place her veil of illusion, and she carried a cascade of white roses and gypsophelia.

The bride is a graduate of Immanual Hospital School of Nursing in Omaha, and Nebraska Wesleyan University. Mr. Feese was graduated from Wentworth Military Academy, Wentworth, Mo., and attended California State College at Long Beach.

Engagement

An announcement of interest is made this morning by Mr. and Mrs. Emery W. Nelson who reveal the betrothal and approaching marriage of their daughter, Patti, to Terry Schmitt, son of Mr. and Mrs. Cecil B. Schmitt.

The wedding will take place on Saturday, Aug. 28.

Miss Nelson is a senior at the University of Nebraska.

Mr. Schmitt is a graduate of the University of Nebraska and will enter the University of Nebraska College of Law in the fall.

"And This Little Piggy" Goes To Fashion

Hogs may be beautiful, but if they could only see themselves in pigskins fashions like the navy suit Thelma Boe made or the natural buckled jumper — little piggies might be more eager to have their hides tanned!

By GAIL HERSTEAD

"This little piggy went to market, this little piggy stayed home, this little piggy had roast beef, this little piggy had none," and this last little piggy found himself in best-dressed fall fashions.

Some of the most fashionable pigskin costumes no doubt were sewn by Mrs. Dirk Boe of Madison, who is the president of the Nebraska Porkettes. According to the Porkettes, this is the year to sew with pigskin, and it is no wonder, since 1971 marks the Chinese New Year 4669—"The Year of the Pig."

Once that pig gets his hide tanned, he may be seen in smooth, suede, or patent pigskin in more than fifty colors. He also will find himself stitched up into coats, slacks, skirts, dresses, vests, hot pants, jackets, and jewelry.

Mrs. Boe, better known as Thelma, has even designed an evening gown to be made out of 100 square feet of purple pigskin suede!

Each skin contains approximately two-thirds yard of material. So, dependent upon the pattern, of course, a skirt requires about three pigskins.

When laying out the pattern, make duplicate pieces for those sections such as the bodice or skirt, which involve two parts. Then before taping pattern pieces to pigskins, make sure that all lengthwise pattern markings are laid parallel to the backbone of the pigskin.

The pigskins are ready to be sewn now if the sewing machine is prepared. Thelma admitted that a heavier duty sewing machine works best, but there are specific precautions to be taken regardless of the machine.

First, insert a No. 16 leather point needle into the machine; set stitch length from seven to ten stitches per inch; thread the machine with silk thread; lessen the pressure because of the thickness, and check the tension balance on a pigskin scrap.

Since seams can not be let out, basting is important. In this case pins may be used outside the stitching line or, for safety's sake, one may use rubber cement, paper clips, or magic mending tape to fill the basting need.

The pressure foot is down and seams are sewn in the usual manner up to the end. Right here is where instead of backstitching, extra thread is allowed and the ends are tied-off. As in seams, darts are tied at the ends, the extra dart material is slashed, finger-pressed open and glued to the inside skin with rubber cement.

All seam allowances are finger-pressed, secured with glue, and then of all things—pounded gently with a mallet which can be purched in any hardware or auto supply store.

The folded hem should be no less than one inch and no wider than two-inches. Mark the fold line of the hem on the wrong side of skin with a ballpoint pen, apply rubber cement along fold line, fold up, finger press, and pound with a mallet.

For closures, velcro strips may be glued-on, or the invisible zipper style is easily adapted to the fabric. Machine-made, hand-made or bound buttonholes all are quickly done.

With the completion of the pigskin fashion, the article should be pressed with a warm iron over brown paper or a press cloth atop the leather. Remember — no steam pressing!

The easy-care skins resist water spotting if they are dried away from heat and brushed; non-oily spots can be removed with a pencil eraser and cleaning is accomplished with the brush, shoe cleaner or with periodic dry cleaning.

Although special sewing and care steps are taken, Thelma pointed out that the home sewer can do much to make her pigskin clothes unique with top-stitching, buckles, studs, fringe and color.

For information on where to obtain pigskins — just in case you're interested — write Thelma Boe, Box 412, Madison, Neb. 68748.

Books — "The Kings of Vain Intent"

BY THOMAS LASK
(c) New York Times Service

The theme of Graham Shelby's superior historical fiction is found in its title. For although the book is a chronicle, expertly put together, of the Third Crusade, of Richard the Lion Hearted's endeavors in the Holy Land and of the battles between Saracens and Christians, the idea it really expresses and illustrates is the way the ruling lords of Palestine, Europeans all, postured and jockeyed for power and wrestled with each other to the top of the greasy pole.

Under the banner of a religious crusade, these knights and their followers acted as they would have back home. Worse if possible. They came to carve out fiefdoms for themselves and kidded each other that they were serving God in the process. They measured out kingdoms they wanted to rule, people they wanted to govern, subjects they wished to tax. They were as touchy of precedent, honors and standing as if they had remained in their own boundaries. The allegiance of vassal knight and sworn retainer was to their immediate chief and not to the grand design. When a powerful prince died or departed the Holy Land, their men drifted away. These men followed a standard, not an idea. They were more like freebooters on the high seas than knights entered on a holy cause.

The differences between the massive, heavy-weighted Europeans and the mobile lightly armed Saracens are sharply underlined. The state of medicine, of hygiene, the state of society in general are artfully blended into the novel. One reason, I guess, that it works so well is that the author, a British writer still in his thirties, keeps within the ambiance of the period. Although he has his own emphasis and biases, and squeezes as much drama out of the events as art and historical license allow, he does not imbue the time with 20th Century values. He is not smarter after the events and he does not suffer from hindsight. In matters of substance, I bet "The Kings of Vain Intent" will square pretty well with the record. It opens shortly after the happenings that closed Shelby's earlier book, "The Nights of Dark Renown": the devastating defeat inflicted on the Europeans by Saladin. That victory not only destroyed an army but pushed the invaders back to the Palestinian shore. To salvage what they could of western honor and to recover the city of Jerusalem for Christianity, three great princes set out for the Holy Land. The Emperor Frederick Barbarossa died in transit and the demise soon thereafter of his second in command blunted the effectiveness of that army. Philip Augustus of France stayed a while, discovered that the climate in Palestine was far from salubrious and returned home, where he had lots more room for royal maneuvering.

Only Richard the Lion Hearted stayed long enough to make a reputation and leave a legend in the Holy Land. Richard was a stark 12th Century leader. No hero of romance. Just the usual grasping monarch, looking for ways to enrich himself and to show off his physical prowess He was embarked on a lofty spiritual quest, but this fact did not interfere with his stopping off in Sicily and Cyprus to conquer and plunder both those areas.

Involved in the larger plans of these three are the plans and fate of lesser men. Among them was Conrad of Monferrat, who wanted to be King of Jerusalem and who tore a woman from her husband and married her by force in order to strengthen his claim to the crown; Isabella, forced to bear his child though in love with another, Humphrey, her one time husband, who now was powerless to save himself from shame. The experiences and fate of Isabella tells volumes of what it meant to be weak and highborn in those days. A large varied group swirls around the main figures. We get only glimpses of Saladin and his court, but they are shown to be far more civilized, more sophisticated and more attractive than their opposites.

Shelby may not have added anything to the record, but he has animated it dramatically It's a pageant worth watching.

Books — "The Kings of Vain Intent"

BY THOMAS LASK
(c) New York Times Service

The theme of Graham Shelby's superior historical fiction is found in its title. For although the book is a chronicle, expertly put together, of the Third Crusade, of Richard the Lion Hearted's endeavors in the Holy Land and of the battles between Saracens and Christians, the idea it really expresses and illustrates is the way the ruling lords of Palestine, Europeans all, postured and jockeyed for power and wrestled with each other to the top of the greasy pole.

Under the banner of a religious crusade, these knights and their followers acted as they would have back home. Worse if possible. They came to carve out fiefdoms for themselves and kidded each other that they were serving God in the process. They measured out kingdoms they wanted to rule, people they wanted to govern, subjects they wished to tax. They were as touchy of precedent, honors and standing as if they had remained in their own boundaries. The allegiance of vassal knight and sworn retainer was to their immediate chief and not to the grand design. When a powerful prince died or departed the Holy Land, their men drifted away. These men followed a standard, not an idea. They were more like freebooters on the high seas than knights entered on a holy cause.

The differences between the massive, heavy-weighted Europeans and the mobile lightly armed Saracens are sharply underlined. The state of medicine, of hygiene, the state of society in general are artfully blended into the novel. One reason, I guess, that it works so well is that the author, a British writer still in his thirties, keeps within the ambiance of the period. Although he has his own emphasis and biases, and squeezes as much drama out of the events as art and historical license allow, he does not imbue the time with 20th Century values. Book Tells How to Knit Raglans

"RAGLANS UNLIMITED" is a book of concise and simple knitting directions for all basic raglan sweaters: Pullovers and Cardigans, with a choice of round, turtle or V-neck: even a choice of long or short sleeves in the lighter weights of yarn. As a matter of fact, you can make 416 different sweaters from this book without repeating!

This book gives all patterns worked from the neck down—the very popular method of knitting raglans which has heretofore been so hard to find in a range of sizes and for different weights of yarn. As most knitters know, or will be delighted to discover, this method of knitting a sweater gives a finished garment that requires an absolute minimum of finishing or putting together and eliminates entirely the necessity of "setting in" sleeves — a task which so many knitters find objectionable.

Instructions are given for all sizes ranging from 2 through 52. There are very few knitting instruction books available with these larger sizes for any style or type of sweater, much less raglans.

Also: the instructions are given for FOUR different weights of yarn: Fine weight Fingering Yarn; Medium weight Sport Yarn; Heavy weight Knitted Worsted and also for the Bulky weight.

Directions are written so that a complete sweater can be made without turning a page, with none of the usual tracking down of bits and pieces of information from page to page, to be put together like a jigsaw puzzle. This should appeal to the most experienced knitter, as it certainly will to the novice— and all degrees of skill in between.

"Raglans Unlimited' is not available in stores and can be purchased only through the mail by sending $2.00 (postpaid) to KNIT 'N NOTION, P O. BOX 161, Dept. 69, Fairless Hills, Pa., 19030.

Opening lead — king of hearts.

The ideal declarer tries to close every loophole before embarking upon the play of any hand where the contract could be in even the slightest danger if the adverse cards are badly placed.

Here is an extreme example of the art. Assume you're in five clubs and West leads a heart. Imagine also that you see all 52 cards. How would you play the hand?

If you played "normally," you would eventually go down one — due to the unfortunate lie of the cards. Let's say you won the heart lead with the ace, discarding a diamond, cashed the queen of trumps, then attemptied a spade finesse.

West would win and return a diamond. Whether or not you finessed you would eventually go down one after trying a second spade finesse. Your losers would be two spades and a diamond.

However, you can make the contract — and for practical purposes guarantee it — if you make the right play at trick one. Simply duck the heart lead and discard a diamond from your hand!

Now you cannot be stopped, even though West sits securely ensconced with the K-Q-6 of spades over your A-J-10-9. Let's say he plays another heart at trick two.

Discard another diamond on the ace, cash the ace of diamonds, ruff a diamond, enter dummy with a trump and ruff the table's last diamond.

Return to dummy with a trump, lead a spade and finesse. West wins but is stymied. Dummy has no more hearts or diamonds, so West's only choice lies between handing you a ruff or returning a spade. Whatever he does you are home because you made a farsighted and imaginative play at trick one that had the effect of closing all possible loopholes.

Abby: not only was she serious but also correct

DEAR ABBY: Yesterday a friend of mine came to visit and brought along her poodle that she treats like a mother would treat a child. Well, my 4-year-old son was playing with her poodle, and the poodle licked the boy on his mouth.

I became very upset over this and told my friend to please hold her dog so he wouldn't do it again. She said that she was the one who should have been upset as her veterinarian told her a dog's mouth is cleaner than a human's, and she actually said she hoped her dog wouldn't catch anything from my child! Was she serious?

IRRITATED

DEAR IRRITATED: She was serious. And also correct.

DEAR ABBY: When people write to you about vasectomy, please give them some up-to-date information. The operation should not cost $250 or require overnight hospitalization. Here in Colorado (as in most other places) it can be done for $75 or $100 in a doctor's office in less than 20 minutes. Many health insurance policies cover the cost, too.

Anyone who doesn't know where to get a sterilization, either male or female, can contact his local Zero Population Growth chapter, or Planned Parenthood, or write to Association for Voluntary Sterilization Inc., 14 W. 40th St., New York, for information and a list of doctors and clinics in their areas where it can be performed.

Planned Parenthood will do it for only a few dollars if that's all you can afford. Or for nothing, if you're really broke.

BEVERLEE IN BOULDER

DEAR ABBY: I have been badly shaken at times, but not quite so much as when I discovered birth control pills in the purses of both my daughters. (One is 21 and engaged and the other is 19 and going steady.)

I did not cause a scene, nor have I told their father. (He would probably throw them both out.) I feel as tho I have been completely wrung out.

I told the girls of my discovery and they were embarrassed. I didn't give them a sermon, I simply told them they were fools. Of course they said it was common practice these days, Is it, Abby?

I cannot punish them by disconnecting their telephones or grounding them from dating any more. What can I do?

DISAPPOINTED

DEAR DISAPPOINTED: You could throw them out, but what would that accomplish? Taking The Pill is not common practice among young, unmarried women, but since your daughters have apparently already made their decision to engage in premarital sex, isn't it better that they protect themselves against unwanted pregnancies than to gamble and lose?

I do not condone premarital sex, nor do I approve of mothers searching their daughters' purses.

WHAT'S BEST TO TAKE FOR

Dull, Throbbing Pain Of Nervous Tension Headaches?

Anyone who suffers from tension headaches knows only too well how the throbbing pain can dull efficiency, play havoc with nerves and slow you down.

What's best to take? Clinical tests by doctors on over 500 patients who complained of tension headaches proved Anacin® relieves nervous tension headaches just as effectively as the expensive leading prescription. Yet Anacin needs no prescription and costs far less.

Here is other convincing evidence of the effectiveness of Anacin. A survey of over 1,600 specialists in internal medicine showed twice as many doctors said they would recommend the Anacin formula to relieve pain over that of the other leading extra-strength tablet. Yes, twice as many doctors prefer Anacin's formula.

You can trust Anacin to relieve headache pain in minutes. Then its nervous tension and painful pressure on nerves go, too. Anacin lets you do a better job. Lets you function better.

Despite its great strength, Anacin is not habit-forming. You can take it without getting an upset stomach. It makes good sense to take fast-acting, extra-strong Anacin Tablets.

Mills Given New Revenue-Sharing Formula

©The New York Times

Washington — The administration has worked out some new formulas for distribution of the $5 billion that would be given outright to states and cities under its program of general revenue-sharing — formulas that would go far toward meeting the demands of big-city Democrats that financial needs of local governments be taken into account in distributing the money.

In theory, the administration has not yet endorsed its own new formulas. The Treasury Department worked them out in response to a request for technical help from some members of the House Ways and Means Committee, which is meeting daily in closed-door sessions to consider revenue-sharing legislation.

But committee members of both parties expressed the view that there was no doubt that the administration had revised its previous stand against incorporating a needs test into the formula for distributing the money among cities and other local governmental units.

Future Uncertain

Whether the change in the administration's position was enough to enable it to get the bill out of committee remained to be seen.

The committee's chairman, Wilbur D. Mills of Arkansas, has not changed his position of total opposition to any permanent program that would turn federal tax money over to state and local governments with few or no restrictions on the uses to which it is put.

So far as any public utterance of his is concerned, Mills has also not changed his position that any program of federal financial assistance should benefit only cities, towns and counties, not the states.

In a long talk Monday with Gov. Nelson Rockefeller of New York, however, Mills reportedly left the impression that he had changed his mind on this issue too.

The demand for a formula that would reflect the needs of various localities for federal financial aid arose when big-city Democrats on the Ways and Means Committee discovered that the administration's original proposal favored some wealthy suburban communities that imposed high taxes on their residents. The original formula was based, in part, on the amount of taxes raised in each locality.

Factors Added

The new formula that the Treasury has worked out would mitigate or eliminate this problem by incorporating two additional factors; the ratio of the per capita income in a locality to the per capita income in the state, and the taxes raised by the locality compared with the total income of individuals in the locality.

For New York City, the application of both parts of the formula would increase the money it received under revenue-sharing from $24.07 per capita, under the administration's original plan, to more than $30.

The Treasury's formula would eliminate one of the most glaring inequities in the administration's original proposal. That was the situation involving Beverly Hills, Calif., one of the nation's richest suburbs, which would have received $24.30 per capita under the old formula while its center city, Los Angeles, would have received $12.33 per capita.

The new formula would cut back Beverly Hills to about $6 per capita, while raising Los Angeles by about 10%.

Detroit Hires Blacks

Detroit (UPI) — The police department announced plans to increase the percentage of black policemen on the force from 13% to 45% by 1980 to match the city's current racial composition. In order to meet the goal, five of every eight recruits taken into the department from now until 1930 will have to be black, a police official said.

'Fiddler' Is Now Broadway's Top Long-Running Hit

New York (UPI) — A capacity audience was in the 1700-seat Broadway theater Wednesday night for the 2,845th performance of "Fiddler on the Roof," whiich gave it the long-run title for a Broadway musical.

The performance put "Fiddler" one up on "Hello, Dolly!," which took first place last September by ousting "My Fair Lady" as champion. "Fiddler," of course, will continue indefinitely.

The musical is the creation of librettist Joseph Stein, composer Jerry Bock and lyricist Sheldon Harnick, who based it on the notable Yiddish stories of the late Sholem Aleichem.

"Fiddler" has been produced so far in 31 countries in 16 languages. As of July. 1. The Broadway production, which cost $375,000, had returned to its 148 investors $3,476,250, a profit of 927%.

"Fiddlers" have grossed $450,600,000 so far in the United States. U

House Agrees To Wider Buses; Critics Warn Of Wider Trucks

©The New York Times

Washington — A bill to permit wider buses to operate on the nation's Interstate highways was approved Wednesday by the House.

The new width standard — 102 inches instead of the current limitation of 96 inches — would become effective no later than July 1, 1973, unless the secretary of transportation, on the basis of a study now under way, determined that wider buses created a safety hazard.

The bill now goes to the Senate, where the outlook for passage is uncertain.

Critics warned that passage of the wider-bus bill would lead to legislation permitting wider and heavier trucks, a goal long sought by the trucking industry.

"You can't distinguish between a wider bus and a wider truck," said Rep. Fred Schwengel, R-Iowa, a leader in the fight several years ago that prevented a "big truck bill" from reaching the House floor.

But sponsors of the wider-bus bill vigorously denied they were seeking "a foot in the door" for wider, heavier and longer trucks.

"We have but one purpose, and that is to make bus travel more comfortable and convenient for commuters so they will leave their cars at home," Rep. James Wright, D-Tex., told the House.

The bill would permit 102-inch-wide buses to operate on Interstate highways where lanes are at least 12 feet wide. Present law limits the width of both buses and trucks to 96 inches on Interstate highways.

The House passed the bill by voice vote, after first rejecting, 213 to 178, a move to recommit to the House Committee on Public Works.

Critics scoffed at arguments that the additional six inches would significantly enhance the comfort of bus passengers. Each seat would be widened by an inch, the aisles by two inches.

China Visits Planned

London (AP) — Denis Healey, the opposition Labor party's spokesman on foreign affairs, said he will visit Communist China in April 1972. The party's deputy chairman, Anthony Wedgwood Benn, is scheduled to visit mainland China in September.

Detroit Hires Blacks

Detroit (UPI) — The police department announced plans to increase the percentage of black policemen on the force from 13% to 45% by 1980 to match the city's current racial composition. In order to meet the goal, five of every eight recruits taken into the department from now until 1930 will have to be black, a police official said.

'Fiddler' Is Now Broadway's Top Long-Running Hit

New York (UPI) — A capacity audience was in the 1700-seat Broadway theater Wednesday night for the 2,845th performance of "Fiddler on the Roof," whiich gave it the long-run title for a Broadway musical.

The performance put "Fiddler" one up on "Hello, Dolly!," which took first place last September by ousting "My Fair Lady" as champion. "Fiddler," of course, will continue indefinitely.

The musical is the creation of librettist Joseph Stein, composer Jerry Bock and lyricist Sheldon Harnick, who based it on the notable Yiddish stories of the late Sholem Aleichem.

"Fiddler" has been produced so far in 31 countries in 16 languages. As of July 1. The Broadway production, which cost $375,000, had returned to its 148 investors $3,476,250, a profit of 927%.

"Fiddlers" have grossed $450,600,000 so far in the United States. U

House Agrees To Wider Buses; Critics Warn Of Wider Trucks

©The New York Times

Washington — A bill to permit wider buses to operate on the nation's Interstate highways was approved Wednesday by the House.

The new width standard — 102 inches instead of the current limitation of 96 inches — would become effective no later than July 1, 1973, unless the secretary of transportation, on the basis of a study now under way, determined that wider buses created a safety hazard.

The bill now goes to the Senate, where the outlook for passage is uncertain.

Critics warned that passage of the wider-bus bill would lead to legislation permitting wider and heavier trucks, a goal long sought by the trucking industry.

"You can't distinguish between a wider bus and a wider truck," said Rep. Fred Schwengel, R-Iowa, a leader in the fight several years ago that prevented a "big truck bill" from reaching the House floor.

But sponsors of the wider-bus bill vigorously denied they were seeking "a foot in the door" for wider, heavier and longer trucks.

"We have but one purpose, and that is to make bus travel more comfortable and convenient for commuters so they will leave their cars at home," Rep. James Wright, D-Tex., told the House.

The bill would permit 102-inch-wide buses to operate on Interstate highways where lanes are at least 12 feet wide. Present law limits the width of both buses and trucks to 96 inches on Interstate highways.

The House passed the bill by voice vote, after first rejecting, 213 to 178, a move to recommit to the House Committee on Public Works.

Critics scoffed at arguments that the additional six inches would significantly enhance the comfort of bus passengers. Each seat would be widened by an inch, the aisles by two inches.

Resolution Recommending Second Liquor License At Villager Vetoed

Mayor Sam Schwartzkopf announced Wednesday he has vetoed the City Council resolution which recommends approval of a Class C Liquor license to cover only the Aku Tiki Lounge at the Villager Motel convention center.

The Villager already has one license which covers the entire premises including the Aku Tiki.

Schwartzkopf said in his veto message that he concurs with Police Chief Joe Carroll that there is no need for an additional license at the Villager Motel complex.

"The issuance of two Class C licenses at the 52nd and O site would set an unfavorable precedent for the issuance of two Class C licenses to similar business operations for the city," he said.

The mayor said the corporation which holds the present license can take adequate management controls without the need for two separate managers operating under two licenses.

The council voted 4 to 3 to recommend to the State Liquor Commission to recommend approval. A week earlier the council had voted 5 to 1 to deny the application.

Bernard Hilgert, president of Cotner Investment Co., which holds the license, said two licenses are requested to better control operations. A violation would also not close down the entire liquor operations at the Villager complex.

Presently a violation at either the Aku Tiki, The Scotch, liquor store or restaurant could result in the temporary closing of all others. A separate license for the Aku Tiki would mean a violation there would only close that place temporarily and the same also for the remainder of the licensed premises at the Villager.

Voting for denial at the last meeting of the council were Mrs. Helen Boosalis, Merle Hale, and Steve Cook.

The council would have to come up with five votes next Monday to override the mayor's veto.

Theft Is Unusual

Lewiston, Idaho (UPI) — "Nothing unusual ever happens to me," was the way Ray Hatfield explained it. Hatfield's battered 1960 car disappeared July 10 but on Tuesday when he got up the car was back — and in much better condition than when it left. All four fenders had been repaired and painted to match the rest of the car, the seats had been sewn, and a tire had been repaired.

Body Of Lincoln Youth Recovered

Nebraska City — The body of Ricky Cadwallader, 17, of Lincoln was recovered Wednesday from the Missouri River in the Minersville area about five miles south of Nebraska City.

Cadwallader and three companions, all members of a corn detasseling crew, were swimming when the accident occurred. Other members of the crew formed a human chain and pulled the other three to safety, but Cadwallader was swept away.

He is survived by his father, Dean, of rural Lincoln; mother, Mrs. Phillip Becker of Lincoln; brothers, Steven stationed in Yuma, Ariz., Timothy and Kelly, both of Lincoln; sisters, Kim, Dawn and Judith, all of Lincoln; grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Kahler of Waverly and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Cadwallader of Stuart.

Light Industrial Zoning Is Sought For Proposed Indoor Tennis Court

The need for indoor tennis facilities was aired before the City-County Planning Commission Wednesday by Don Bergquist representing the Lincoln Racquet Club.

Bergquist appeared before the planning body with a proposal to rezone land in the vicinity of 56th and Old Cheney Rd. for a six-court facility to be housed in a metal building.

He said in his presentation that the facility would represent an investment of $400,000 and that the investors want K Light Industrial zoning so that the building could be used for alternate means should the tennis court project fail.

Planning Director Doug Brogden had recommended denial saying that the tennis court could be built by special permit which then would not permit industrial development.

Bergquist also said that only a small tip of the property would extend into the 100 year flood plain and felt that development should be allowed.

He commented in response to comments by Brogden about the designation of the area for industrial development that most of the property in the area is within the flood plain and that there is a county maintenance shop nearby.

The land proposed for the indoor tennis court, which would be the only one in Lincoln if built, is presently zoned A1 Single Family. Bergquist said he doubted anyone would build a home in the area.

"We are behind in the development of indoor and outdoor tennis courts," he said in remarking about the need for additional tennis facilities.

The commission, acting as the areawide clearinghouse for review of projects seeking federal aid, said that proposed projects for Waverly — a sewage treatment plant, water reservoir, village park and a comprehensive planning grant — are not in conflict with the comprehensive plan for Lancaster County.

A portion of the Railroad Transportation Study was also approved as part of the comprehensive plan.

Other actions:

—Approved as not in conflict with comprehensive plan as an areawide clearinghouse applications by Lincoln Action Program for planning programming funding, Nebraska Epilepsy League Inc. for a neurological evaluation program, Nebraska Commission on Aging for model project on alternatives to institutionalization of the elderly, State Highway Dept. construction projects and Nebraska Historical Society for historic preservation of the Syford-Lewis house on the University of Nebraska campus.

—Approved vacation of portion of R St. between 9th and 10th to permit development of a restaurant.

—Postponed hearing until August on change of zone from B Two Family to D Multiple at 20th and Euclid.

Boeing Considers Two-Decker 747

Seattle (UPI) — A Boeing aircraft official said Wednesday the firm is considering design studies for a two-decker, long-bodied 747 plane which could carry up 1,000 persons.

The design would remove the "hump" from the current production model. This, plus stretching the superjet's 231 foot body by a few feet, would permit doubling the current passenger capacity, he said.

Dear Customer,

The battle is in its last stages. Our upper level is shaping up beautifully. The color backgrounds are really something. Our men's and boys' departments are now in their permanent location. The new fixtures certainly display the merchandise in a more convenient fashion for your ease of shopping.

We are now concentrating on completing the new TV-Radio department; the hardware and electrical departments. When the dust settles in these two areas on the lower level, we can then start putting things together for our early August opening.

What a beautiful store it's going o be. New carpeting all over the store in different color combinations.

Business has been just great thanks to your patience and understanding. We are in the process right now of cleaning up all spring and summer goods — taking huge markdowns and passing the savings on to you. We must be clean for our August opening. And remember, The Consumer Is First At Wards!

Dellacroce Said 'Most Powerful Boss'

Washington (AP) — A mystery Senate witness said Wednesday organized crime has infiltrated Wall Street investment houses deeply, and he named Aniello "O'Neill" Dellacroce as "the most powerful boss in New York today."

The witness, who said he might be killed if his identity were revealed, said Dellacroce has taken over day-to-day crime syndicate affairs in New York from the aging Carlo Gambino, but remains a member of Gambino's organized crime family.

"His influence is enormous. His power is incredible," the portly 42-year-old former stock manipulator and stolen securities dealer said of Dellacroce.

Highest Levels

The witness, a long-time government informer, who testified under the name "George White," said complicity in security thefts and sales has reached the highest levels of Wall Street management.

Photographers were barred from aiming cameras at "White" in the guarded hearing room of the Senate Investigations subcommittee.

He said he once paid thousands of dollars to New York trial Judge Mitchell Schweitzer in return for court postponements, a lenient, "eminently satisfactory" sentence and favorable treatment from probation officers.

Chairman John L. McClellan, D-Ark., said of the witness' testimony: "I think the Justice Department and other agencies will be busy for quite a long time."

The witness named 62 underworld leaders and others he said are active in the disposal of stolen securities in an international conspiracy.

Long Sideburns

The witness, a portly man with long sideburns and dark glasses, said a lighter penalty in the case involving Judge Schweitzer cost him more than $100,000 in "fix" money and said $10,000 of it was paid to Nathan P. Voloshen.

Voloshen received a suspended one-year sentence last November following conviction of fraudulently using the prestige of the office of the speaker of the House to help his clients.

He was described as an old friend of former speaker John W. McCormack, who insisted he knew nothing of Voloshen's questionable activities.

Long An Informer

In his appearance before the Senate permanent investigations subcommittee, the mystery witness, who said he has for years been a government informer, said McCormack's office at Voloshen's request once intervened for him with the attorney general of Massachusetts.

He said Voloshen was unable to obtain a court postponement and, at the request of an influential underworld figure, returned the $10,000 he had been paid.

Judge Denies All

Reached at his home before leaving for what his wife said was a previous commitment out of town, Judge Schweitzer told a WCBS Radio reporter, "I'm completely denying the existence of any such circumstances."

He continued:

"I can't conceive of any motivation behind that statement. Sen. (Charles) Percy has made a statement that it's common street talk that I'm one of the best judges that money can buy.

"It is to be regretted that he didn't check it out with some of the other judges on my bench," added Schweitzer. "Certainly my superior judge would know after 36 years on the bench."

The robbers took an estimated $4,800 from both banks. No one was hurt.

CARC Director To Resign Post For Denver Job

Executive Director of the Capital Association for Retarded Children (CARC) Bill West will resign his post, effective Oct. 1, to accept a similar position with the Denver Association for Retarded Children.

CARC President James Stange made the announcement at Tuesday's CARC meeting.

According to West, the main reason he accepted the $14,000-a-year post with the Denver ARC is the challenge and potential program scope in the comparative population bases of Denver and Lincoln. His salary at CARC, before an anticipated July retroactive increase, is $11,500.

West has been with CARC since June 1968.

Chicago Drops Bid For 1972 GOP Convention

Chicago, Miami Beach and San Diego were reported to have been approved by President Nixon as possible sites.

The Democrats have chosen Miami Beach for their 1972 convention.

Proposed Standards For Day Care Criticized

By BOB GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

The Nebraska Welfare Board heard objections from the operators of day care centers Wednesday at a public hearing on proposed standards for the licensing of child care centers.

Several operators expressed misgivings about raising the age requirements of staff members from 16 to 20 years of age. Under the proposed regulation, day care centers could employ youths from age 14 to 20; however, they would be considered supplementary staff and would not be included in the staff-to-child ratio required by law of 1:7. This in effect would prohibit from an economic standpoint the centers from hiring youths.

Social Services chief Dick Schrader calmed the operators fears by noting that one of the new features of the standards is a waiver provision. This would mean that an operator could have youths included as staff members in the 1:7 ratio if he was granted a waiver of the staff requirement.

The revised standards provide that a regulation "may be waived under the conditions that the requested waiver may advance innovation and experimentation and extend services without loss of quality in the facility."

General counsel for the Welfare Department, E. D. Warnsholz, said that all suggestions and objections would be taken into consideration before the board finally enacts the proposed standards revisions.

Regarding fire safety regulations, Joe L. Pluta, state fire marshall, noted that the proposed revisions in the fire safety requirements would increase the capacity of some day care centers to 11 children that are currently restricted to 7.

The hearing covered 5 sets of standards: day care centers, day care homes, foster homes, child placing and caring agencies and group care homes.

Other revisions include the standards regarding foster homes. Under the proposed standards, the limitation on the number of foster children in one foster home was raised from 4 to 6. Also the upper age limit of 65 for a foster parent was abolished.

The significant change in the area of child placing standards is that an agency in any state adjacent to Nebraska may now get a license to place a child in Nebraska. Previously, Iowa agencies have legally placed children in Nebraska homes; however, they did so without a license.

Warren Urges U.N. Admittance For Red China

Belgrade (UPI) — Former U.S. Chief Justice Earl Warren urged Wednesday that Communist China be admitted to the United Nations as an essential step toward world harmony. He said U.N. membership should also go to North and South Vietnam, East and West Germany, and both Koreas.

Warren also told 4,000 lawyers and jurists attending the fifth International World Peace through Law Conference that U.N. members had failed to give the body standing forces to enable it to keep the peace.

Proposed Standards For Day Care Criticized

By BOB GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

The Nebraska Welfare Board heard objections from the operators of day care centers Wednesday at a public hearing on proposed standards for the licensing of child care centers.

Several operators expressed misgivings about raising the age requirements of staff members from 16 to 20 years of age. Under the proposed regulation, day care centers could employ youths from age 14 to 20; however, they would be considered supplementary staff and would not be included in the staff-to-child ratio required by law of 1:7. This in effect would prohibit from an economic standpoint the centers from hiring youths.

Social Services chief Dick Schrader calmed the operators fears by noting that one of the new features of the standards is a waiver provision. This would mean that an operator could have youths included as staff members in the 1:7 ratio if he was granted a waiver of the staff requirement.

The revised standards provide that a regulation "may be waived under the conditions that the requested waiver may advance innovation and experimentation and extend services without loss of quality in the facility."

General counsel for the Welfare Department, E. D. Warnsholz, said that all suggestions and objections would be taken into consideration before the board finally enacts the proposed standards revisions.

Regarding fire safety regulations, Joe L. Pluta, state fire marshall, noted that the proposed revisions in the fire safety requirements would increase the capacity of some day care centers to 11 children that are currently restricted to 7.

The hearing covered 5 sets of standards: day care centers, day care homes, foster homes, child placing and caring agencies and group care homes.

Other revisions include the standards regarding foster homes. Under the proposed standards, the limitation on the number of foster children in one foster home was raised from 4 to 6. Also the upper age limit of 65 for a foster parent was abolished.

The significant change in the area of child placing standards is that an agency in any state adjacent to Nebraska may now get a license to place a child in Nebraska. Previously, Iowa agencies have legally placed children in Nebraska homes; however, they did so without a license.

Warren Urges U.N. Admittance For Red China

Belgrade (UPI) — Former U.S. Chief Justice Earl Warren urged Wednesday that Communist China be admitted to the United Nations as an essential step toward world harmony. He said U.N. membership should also go to North and South Vietnam, East and West Germany, and both Koreas.

Warren also told 4,000 lawyers and jurists attending the fifth International World Peace through Law Conference that U.N. members had failed to give the body standing forces to enable it to keep the peace.

TIMBER LINES

Patience Catches Catfish

Have Patience! How often have you heard that remark? Quite a few times and always from members of the older set, right?

Well, often patience is the key to success. And that's true not only in business, but in fishing. Probably more so in fishing as the impatient often leave before the fish start to bite.

But during the summer hot months, patience is often hard to come by. The weather and humidity often wear an angler to a frazzle before he's even had any action at all.

And that's when jugs or setlines come into vogue. An angler can use jugs or setlines and avoid the heat but still catch decent size fish.

For some strange reason, however, jug fishing and setlines are frowned upon by certain members of the sporting set as being not quite cricket.

But that's like hunting quail without a dog because it's more sporting. There's absolutely no reason not to go jugging. The fish have just as much of a chance one way as the other.

The only problem is in finding a large enough lake where your jug won't be bothered by normal boat traffic.

Tackle No Problem

Good jugfishing gear isn't quite as unobtainable as novice anglers might think. As a matter of fact, you've probably got the makings for a good jug outfit laying around your home right now.

The one main problem with jug lines is in keeping them anchored. And that is easily solved by using two-hole bricks, scrap iron or anything that has a reasonable amount of heft to it.

A spool of heavy line for anchor cords, some heavy-test monofilament line for side leaders and a box of 1/0 hooks will put most jug anglers into the business. The jugs are simply a batch of bleach bottles the wife would ordinarily throw away.

Tie a marked line to one of the bricks and lower it over the side of the boat to determine the depth, then cut off a section of the heavy cord, tie one end through or around the weight and the other end through the jug handle. If the jug floats on its side, you're in business.

Bait depends on what you usually use when catfishing, but most of the luck recently has been on crayfish, shrimp and minnows.

The jug lines should be checked at least once every two hours but if you see the jug bobbing up and down, then it's a pretty good bet that there's a fish on the other end.

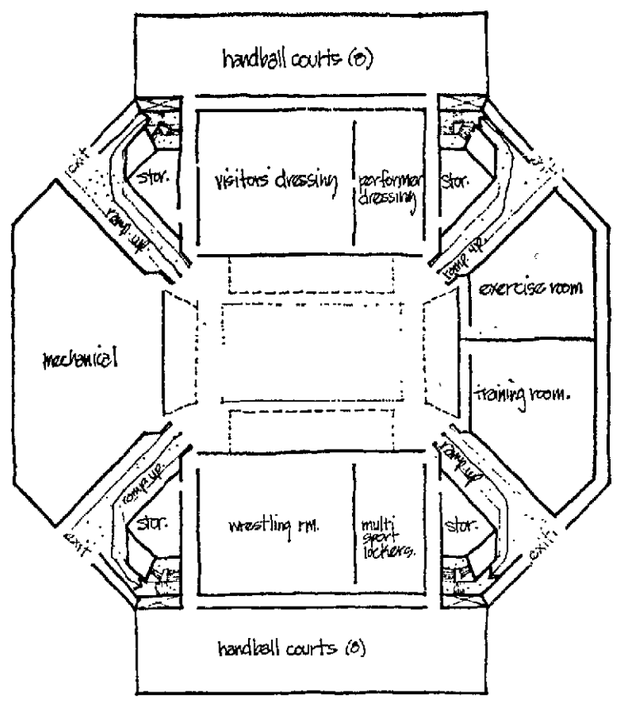

Only one other thing. State law requires that the owner's name and address appear on all jugs. There's also a two-hook limit per line and a 15-hook total limit.

More Timber Lines

And the next time someone tells you it isn't sportsmanlike to jug fish, give him a taste of his own medicine. Ask him how many fish he's caught.

After a week at the State Fairgrounds watching the losers bet on the horses (never saw a winner place a bet), it seemed like the pony players had more superstitions than any hundred trapshooters.

Bettors take special plans that the mutuel ticket (purchased from a certain window or a certain person) is placed in a certain pocket or billfold. Others carefully trim the corners off their programs and still others insist on placing $2 wagers at all three win, place and show window rather than use the $6 combination window set up for that purpose.

Architects' sketches of the proposed University of Nebraska multi-purpose building.

Plans For NU Fieldhouse Presented

By United Press International

Nebraska athletic director Bob Devaney appeared before the Legislative Council Executive Board Wednesday to unveil preliminary plans for the new NU Fieldhouse, and to urge speedy action on the project.

Devaney was accompanied at the meeting by representatives of the architectural and engineering firm of Davis and Clark Associates.

The firm was hired by the University's Board of Regents, some time before the 1971 Legislature enacted go-ahead legislation for the project, to do the preliminary work.

Devaney said he had no recommendations on which firm should eventually undertake the drawing up of final plans for the facility. It was noted, however, the University has an option with the Davis-Clark firm.

"I just think we should move as quickly as possible to get this thing in the works," Devaney told the board.

The board was told if action on the project would be initiated immediately, it would still be about two years away from completion.

Preliminary plans for the multi-purpose indoor sports facility call for the seating of 17,000 persons on the main floor.

In addition, there would be space provided for competition in wrestling, swimming, handball, plus weight and exercise rooms. Also included was office space for the athletic department staff.

On the main floor would be the basketball court, plus the possibility of indoor tennis courts.

Land for the facility has already been provided through negotiations between the University and the State Fair Board. Under the terms of the agreement, the fair board could utilize the facilities for some State Fair activities.

Another facet of the State Fair Board-University agreement was a provision for parking. The preliminary plan indicated space would be needed to provide paved parking for 4,000 vehicles.

During the meeting, Devaney said despite public opinion, the facility would not be used in the football program.

"This is an indoor sport facility," he said.

Calling it a fieldhouse tends to be misleading, he said. It should actually be called a coliseum, he added.

The board, which acts in behalf of the Legislature when it is not in session, did not take any formal action on the matter. It indicated the subject of architects for final planning would be investigated first.

Under the terms of the controversial go-ahead legislation approved by the Legislature, it has the final say over architects and plans.

The project is being funded from a nickel a pack hike in the state cigarette tax, which was unsuccessfully challenged during the session by a gubernatorial veto.

However, the legislation is now being challenged in the courts. Lincoln attorney Lawrence Sandberg has initiated a suit in Lancaster County District Court and has indicated he may apeal it to the Nebraska Supreme Court.

Besides the fieldhouse, the increase was also earmarked to pay for a state office building and a recreational building at the Beatrice State Home.

GEM'S PACKAGE WINS

. . . Gelding Takes Breeders' Special Stakes

By MARK GORDON
Star Sports Writer

When Gem's Package gets daylight, he really knows how to run.

The 3-year-old gelding led wire-to-wire but once jockey Wayne Anderson let him loose at about the quarter-pole of the mile Nebraska State Fair Breeders' Special Stakes Wednesday, he was never in trouble.

"I let him loose for about four or five jumps — just enough so he'd have some daylight and he really used it," Anderson said after the two-length conquest. "It's all right with me if he leads all the way — I just wanted to get him out in front."

While Anderson said he thought He's A People would give him the most trouble, it was rapidly-charging Beckon Call that came the closest in the second running of the $5,410 event.

He's A People ran second, although he was generally far back of the Jerry Kirby-owned charger. But he faded to fifth at the wire as Beckon Call dashed from sixth at the start and steadily moved to earn the place by two lengths over Wichita Charles.

Gem's Package led by six lengths into the stretch and then Anderson said he gently urged his animal on "just to keep his mind on his business" in the scamper for 3-year-old Nebraska breds.

"He's by far the best horse I've ridden," Anderson added. "I was on him when he broke his maiden last year in Lincoln and he's really coming along now."

In earning $2,097.50 for his David City owner, Gem's Package scored his third victory in the last four outings and increased his lifetime purse collection to $13,181.50. The win was his third in 13 starts this year with two seconds and two thirds.

Favored by the 4,495 patrons, Gem's Package, returned $3.80, $2.40 and $2.20 while Beckon Call earned $1,082 for owner C. L. Clapper of Lincoln and $3.80 and $2.80 and Wichita Charles returned $649.20 for owner Ed Luther of Wisner and $2.80 to backers.

"Even the best horses can get in trouble when they're behind and have to catch the leaders," Anderson explained. "That's why I like to get out in front."

Those customers who stayed with program number one Wednesday would have made a profit of $60.60 by putting a $2 win on the top horse in the eight races. Seven winners had the top number — only Jujan (number three) spoiled the streak, but in that fifth race, the number one horse was second.

Jockey Fred Ecoffey, the Fairgrounds leading rider, increased his margin over runnerup Anderson by steering Rollins Cadet in the fourth, Society Verna in the sixth and Rippolee in the eigth. He also guided Grace C. to a second in the fifth and Uncle Les to third in the first.

In today's feature, Make Contact heads a field of five 3-year-olds and up competing for a purse of $1,600 over a mile and 1-16 course.

Make Contact will carry top weight of 120 pounds while Mary Ann N will carry 115, Open Leaf gets 114 and His Pleasure and Bold Signal each get in at 113 pounds.

Aunt P. Getting Better With Age

I guess old age is helping me as it seems impossible that I could have such phenominal success at the Fairgrounds races this season.

Priscilla

I know this must be the best I've done in many a moon as the cool weather and fast ponies are helping me to add money to my cookies jar which has been barren for quite some time.

Wednesday both my little darlings came home. With Jujan returning $5.80 and Society Verna paying $3.20 I increased my $100 spree fund to $181.80.

Today, I am putting my little $2 win tickets on Peter Sir in the third and French Intrigue in the sixth.

Star's Selectors Right On Target At Track

Both The Star's Selectors correctly picked four of the eight Wednesday Fairgrounds races on top.

Randy Eickhoff picked Moon Fox, Rollins Cadet, Gem's Package and Rippolee while Mark Gordon tabbed Moon Fox, Society Verna, Gem's Package and Rippolee.

Brown Pays His Greetings

Santa Rosa, Calif. (AP) — Oakland's newly acquired tackle, 290-pound Bob Brown, is trying hard to impress the Raiders.

And the ex-Nebraska All-American surely did that when he broke a goal post with a blow of his forearm in the first training session.

Brown, who came to the Raiders from the Los Angeles Rams, uncoiled from a three-point stance to smash his arm against the padded base of a training camp goal post and knocked it loose from its concrete mooring as some 15 onlookers gaped.

The All-Pro tackle says he's anxious to dispel any notion he's a troublemaker or "won't co-operate."

"I'm going to keep my mouth shut, my eyes open and develop a good competitive attitude," he said.

The Raiders traded tackle Harry Schuh and defensive back Kent McLoughlan, since retired, for Brown.

New York — Doane College, with a 38-4-1 record and a 34.3 points per game scoring average over the last five years, stands second nationally to North Dakota State in the small college points per game statistics, according to the National Collegiate Sports Services.

NDS's figures over the five year span are 43-2-1 and 35.4 points per game, excluding any post-season bowl contests. The Bison are college football's winningest team over that period without a regular-season loss since 1966.

Tennessee State, West Chester, Morgan State; St. Olaf Grambling Wittenberg Alcorn A&M and Randolph-Macon round out the top ten in the points per game race.

Rauch Case Surprises McDole

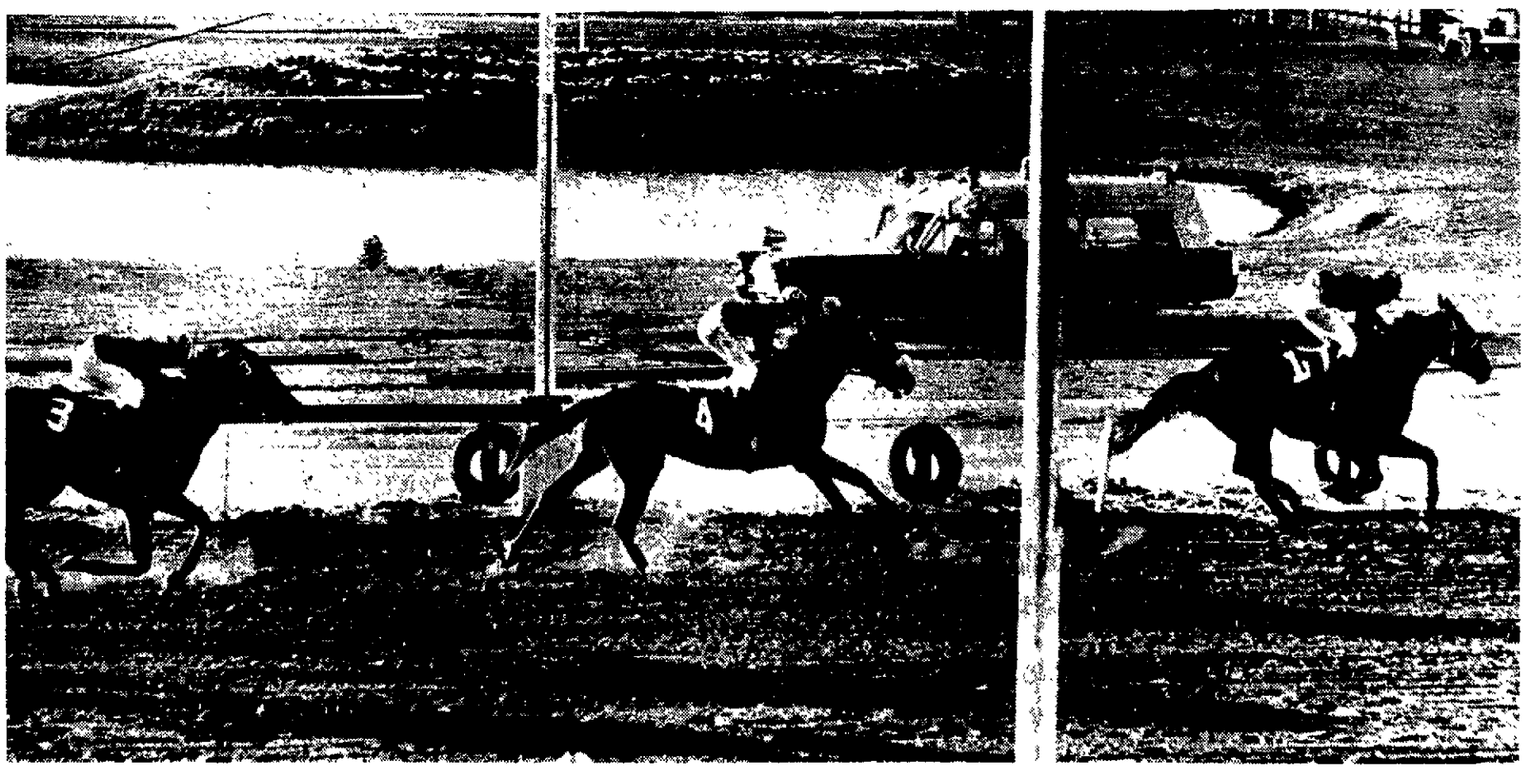

Carlisle, Pa. (AP) — Ron McDole, Washington Redskins defensive tackle, said Wednesday he was surprised at the resignation of his former coach, John Rauch, from the Buffalo Bills.

"I never had any problems with John. I had words with him, but nothing else," the former Husker standout said at the Redskins' National Football League training camp at Dickinson College. McDole was traded by Buffalo during the off-season.

"Paul and John had problems but I never did," McDole added. Earlier this month, on a Buffalo television program, Rauch criticized McDole and kicker Paul McGuire.

"John is a funny guy," McDole said. "I guess he was always sincere in what he did, but he was hard to talk to and his decisions were often difficult to understand.

"I was surprised he involved Paul and myself. Paul was retiring and I was gone. It doesn't make sense."

TIMBER LINES

Patience Catches Catfish

Have Patience! How often have you heard that remark? Quite a few times and always from members of the older set, right?

Well, often patience is the key to success. And that's true not only in business, but in fishing. Probably more so in fishing as the impatient often leave before the fish start to bite.

But during the summer hot months, patience is often hard to come by. The weather and humidity often wear an angler to a frazzle before he's even had any action at all.

And that's when jugs or setlines come into vogue. An angler can use jugs or setlines and avoid the heat but still catch decent size fish.

For some strange reason, however, jug fishing and setlines are frowned upon by certain members of the sporting set as being not quite cricket.

But that's like hunting quail without a dog because it's more sporting. There's absolutely no reason not to go jugging. The fish have just as much of a chance one way as the other.

The only problem is in finding a large enough lake where your jug won't be bothered by normal boat traffic.

Tackle No Problem

Good jugfishing gear isn't quite as unobtainable as novice anglers might think. As a matter of fact, you've probably got the makings for a good jug outfit laying around your home right now.

The one main problem with jug lines is in keeping them anchored. And that is easily solved by using two-hole bricks, scrap iron or anything that has a reasonable amount of heft to it.

A spool of heavy line for anchor cords, some heavy-test monofilament line for side leaders and a box of 1/0 hooks will put most jug anglers into the business. The jugs are simply a batch of bleach bottles the wife would ordinarily throw away.

Tie a marked line to one of the bricks and lower it over the side of the boat to determine the depth, then cut off a section of the heavy cord, tie one end through or around the weight and the other end through the jug handle. If the jug floats on its side, you're in business.

Bait depends on what you usually use when catfishing, but most of the luck recently has been on crayfish, shrimp and minnows.

The jug lines should be checked at least once every two hours but if you see the jug bobbing up and down, then it's a pretty good bet that there's a fish on the other end.

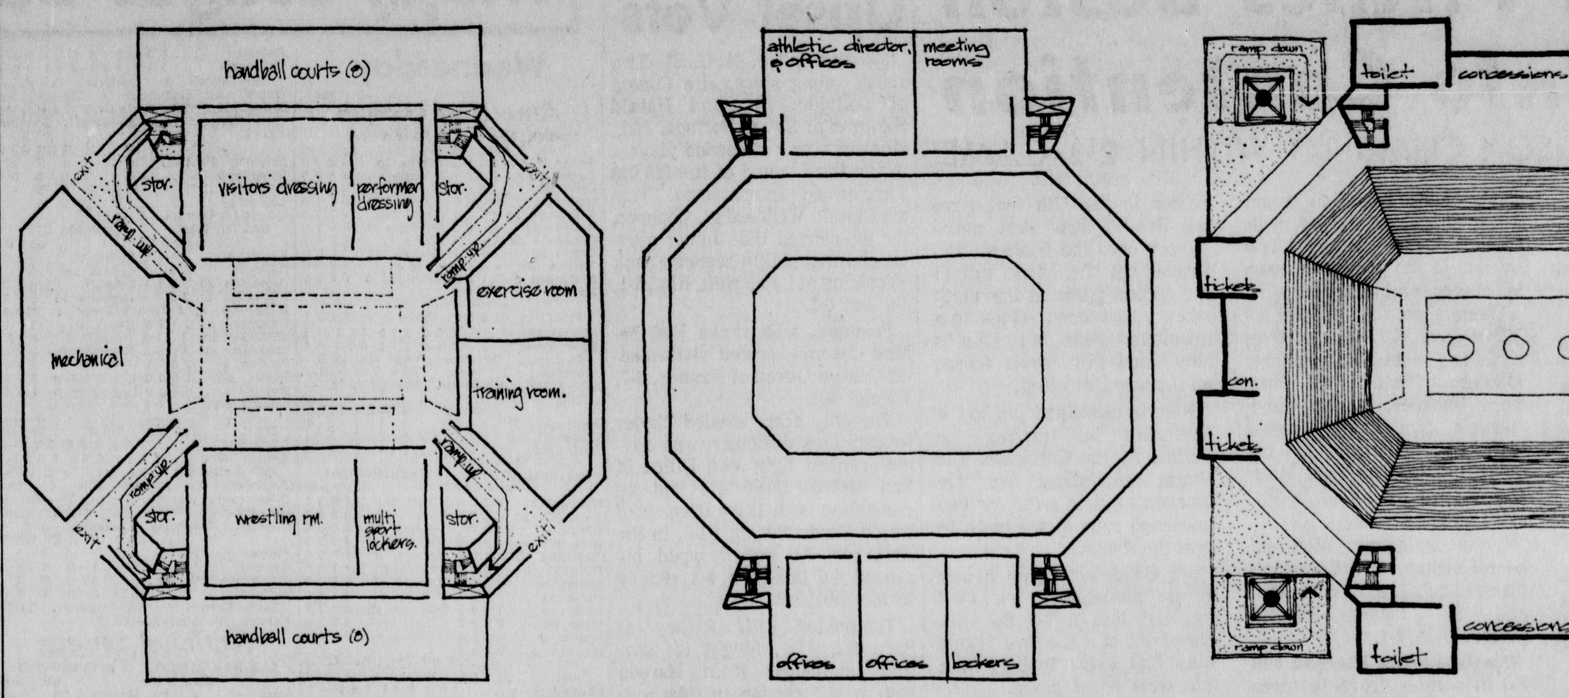

Only one other thing. State law requires that the owner's name and address appear on all jugs. There's also a two-hook limit per line and a 15-hook total limit.

More Timber Lines

And the next time someone tells you it isn't sportsmanlike to jug fish, give him a taste of his own medicine. Ask him how many fish he's caught.

After a week at the State Fairgrounds watching the losers bet on the horses (never saw a winner place a bet), it seemed like the pony players had more superstitions than any hundred trapshooters.

Bettors take special plans that the mutuel ticket (purchased from a certain window or a certain person) is placed in a certain pocket or billfold. Others carefully trim the corners off their programs and still others insist on placing $2 wagers at all three win, place and show window rather than use the $6 combination window set up for that purpose.

Architects' sketches of the proposed University of Nebraska multi-purpose building.

Plans For NU Fieldhouse Presented

By United Press International

Nebraska athletic director Bob Devaney appeared before the Legislative Council Executive Board Wednesday to unveil preliminary plans for the new NU Fieldhouse, and to urge speedy action on the project.

Devaney was accompanied at the meeting by representatives of the architectural and engineering firm of Davis and Clark Associates.

The firm was hired by the University's Board of Regents, some time before the 1971 Legislature enacted go-ahead legislation for the project, to do the preliminary work.

Devaney said he had no recommendations on which firm should eventually undertake the drawing up of final plans for the facility. It was noted, however, the University has an option with the Davis-Clark firm.

"I just think we should move as quickly as possible to get this thing in the works," Devaney told the board.

The board was told if action on the project would be initiated immediately, it would still be about two years away from completion.

Preliminary plans for the multi-purpose indoor sports facility call for the seating of 17,000 persons on the main floor.

In addition, there would be space provided for competition in wrestling, swimming, handball, plus weight and exercise rooms. Also included was office space for the athletic department staff.

On the main floor would be the basketball court, plus the possibility of indoor tennis courts.

Land for the facility has already been provided through negotiations between the University and the State Fair Board. Under the terms of the agreement, the fair board could utilize the facilities for some State Fair activities.

Another facet of the State Fair Board-University agreement was a provision for parking. The preliminary plan indicated space would be needed to provide paved parking for 4,000 vehicles.

During the meeting, Devaney said despite public opinion, the facility would not be used in the football program.

"This is an indoor sport facility," he said.

Calling it a fieldhouse tends to be misleading, he said. It should actually be called a coliseum, he added.

The board, which acts in behalf of the Legislature when it is not in session, did not take any formal action on the matter. It indicated the subject of architects for final planning would be investigated first.

Under the terms of the controversial go-ahead legislation approved by the Legislature, it has the final say over architects and plans.

The project is being funded from a nickel a pack hike in the state cigarette tax, which was unsuccessfully challenged during the session by a gubernatorial veto.

However, the legislation is now being challenged in the courts. Lincoln attorney Lawrence Sandberg has initiated a suit in Lancaster County District Court and has indicated he may apeal it to the Nebraska Supreme Court.

Besides the fieldhouse, the increase was also earmarked to pay for a state office building and a recreational building at the Beatrice State Home.

GEM'S PACKAGE WINS

. . . Gelding Takes Breeders' Special Stakes

By MARK GORDON
Star Sports Writer

When Gem's Package gets daylight, he really knows how to run.

The 3-year-old gelding led wire-to-wire but once jockey Wayne Anderson let him loose at about the quarter-pole of the mile Nebraska State Fair Breeders' Special Stakes Wednesday, he was never in trouble.

"I let him loose for about four or five jumps — just enough so he'd have some daylight and he really used it," Anderson said after the two-length conquest. "It's all right with me if he leads all the way — I just wanted to get him out in front."

While Anderson said he thought He's A People would give him the most trouble, it was rapidly-charging Beckon Call that came the closest in the second running of the $5,410 event.

He's A People ran second, although he was generally far back of the Jerry Kirby-owned charger. But he faded to fifth at the wire as Beckon Call dashed from sixth at the start and steadily moved to earn the place by two lengths over Wichita Charles.

Gem's Package led by six lengths into the stretch and then Anderson said he gently urged his animal on "just to keep his mind on his business" in the scamper for 3-year-old Nebraska breds.

"He's by far the best horse I've ridden," Anderson added. "I was on him when he broke his maiden last year in Lincoln and he's really coming along now."

In earning $2,097.50 for his David City owner, Gem's Package scored his third victory in the last four outings and increased his lifetime purse collection to $13,181.50. The win was his third in 13 starts this year with two seconds and two thirds.

Favored by the 4,495 patrons, Gem's Package, returned $3.80, $2.40 and $2.20 while Beckon Call earned $1,082 for owner C. L. Clapper of Lincoln and $3.80 and $2.80 and Wichita Charles returned $649.20 for owner Ed Luther of Wisner and $2.80 to backers.

"Even the best horses can get in trouble when they're behind and have to catch the leaders," Anderson explained. "That's why I like to get out in front."

Those customers who stayed with program number one Wednesday would have made a profit of $60.60 by putting a $2 win on the top horse in the eight races. Seven winners had the top number — only Jujan (number three) spoiled the streak, but in that fifth race, the number one horse was second.

Jockey Fred Ecoffey, the Fairgrounds leading rider, increased his margin over runnerup Anderson by steering Rollins Cadet in the fourth, Society Verna in the sixth and Rippolee in the eigth. He also guided Grace C. to a second in the fifth and Uncle Les to third in the first.

In today's feature, Make Contact heads a field of five 3-year-olds and up competing for a purse of $1,600 over a mile and 1-16 course.

Make Contact will carry top weight of 120 pounds while Mary Ann N will carry 115, Open Leaf gets 114 and His Pleasure and Bold Signal each get in at 113 pounds.

Aunt P. Getting Better With Age

I guess old age is helping me as it seems impossible that I could have such phenominal success at the Fairgrounds races this season.

Priscilla

I know this must be the best I've done in many a moon as the cool weather and fast ponies are helping me to add money to my cookies jar which has been barren for quite some time.

Wednesday both my little darlings came home. With Jujan returning $5.80 and Society Verna paying $3.20 I increased my $100 spree fund to $181.80.

Today, I am putting my little $2 win tickets on Peter Sir in the third and French Intrigue in the sixth.

Star's Selectors Right On Target At Track

Both The Star's Selectors correctly picked four of the eight Wednesday Fairgrounds races on top.

Randy Eickhoff picked Moon Fox, Rollins Cadet, Gem's Package and Rippolee while Mark Gordon tabbed Moon Fox, Society Verna, Gem's Package and Rippolee.

Brown Pays His Greetings

Santa Rosa, Calif. (AP) — Oakland's newly acquired tackle, 290-pound Bob Brown, is trying hard to impress the Raiders.

And the ex-Nebraska All-American surely did that when he broke a goal post with a blow of his forearm in the first training session.

Brown, who came to the Raiders from the Los Angeles Rams, uncoiled from a three-point stance to smash his arm against the padded base of a training camp goal post and knocked it loose from its concrete mooring as some 15 onlookers gaped.

The All-Pro tackle says he's anxious to dispel any notion he's a troublemaker or "won't cooperate."

"I'm going to keep my mouth shut, my eyes open and develop a good competitive attitude," he said.

The Raiders traded tackle Harry Schuh and defensive back Kent McLoughlan, since retired, for Brown.

Siebert Pitches Boston Back Into Contention

. . . RED SOX CLIMB TO WITHIN 2½ GAMES

By Associated Press

Sonny Siebert pitched the Boston Red Sox back into the thick of contention in the American League East Wednesday night.

The Red Sox climbed within 2½ games of the first-place Baltimore Orioles as Siebert stopped the Chicago White Sox, 6-1 and Kansas City whacked the world champion Orioles, 7-2.

Siebert, veteran right hander, won his fifth straight and 14th of the season in turning back the White Sox. Three RBI by Cookie Rojas and Lou Piniella's home run paced the Royals over Baltimore.

Willie McCovey walloped a grand slam home run in the ninth to give San Francisco an 8-4 victory over Pittsburgh. The grand slammer broke a 4-4 tie and climaxed a six-run Giant explosion.

Atlanta swept a doubleheader from San Diego, 8-7, in 11 innings and 1-0, with Hank Aaron hitting two homers in the opener to boost his career total to 620.

Siebert Pitches Boston Back Into Contention

. . . RED SOX CLIMB TO WITHIN 2½ GAMES

By Associated Press

Sonny Siebert pitched the Boston Red Sox back into the thick of contention in the American League East Wednesday night.

The Red Sox climbed within 2½ games of the first-place Baltimore Orioles as Siebert stopped the Chicago White Sox, 6-1 and Kansas City whacked the world champion Orioles, 7-2.

Siebert, veteran right hander, won his fifth straight and 14th of the season in turning back the White Sox. Three RBI by Cookie Rojas and Lou Piniella's home run paced the Royals over Baltimore.

Willie McCovey walloped a grand slam home run in the ninth to give San Francisco an 8-4 victory over Pittsburgh. The grand slammer broke a 4-4 tie and climaxed a six-run Giant explosion.

Atlanta swept a doubleheader from San Diego, 8-7, in 11 innings and 1-0, with Hank Aaron hitting two homers in the opener to boost his career total to 620.

Washington again beat Milwaukee, 6-1, on a five-hitter by rookie Pete Broberg, Minnesota shaded the New York Yankees, 2-1, on Steve Braun's ninth-inning single and the Chicago Cubs overcame the New York Mets, 11-7, helped by Ernie Banks' 511th career homer.

In other games Montreal beat Houston, 5-3, Cincinnati turned back Los Angeles, 6-2 and St. Louis defeated Philadelphia, 6-1.

Singles by Bill Freehan and Ed Brinkman drove in three runs in the 11th inning and gave Detroit a 6-3 triumph over California in the opener of a twi-night doubleheader on the West Coast.

Although Aaron hit two homers, it was Darrell Evans' homer in the 11th that gave the Braves their first game victory over the Padres. The Braves got their lone run in the second game in the ninth when Clarence Gaston misplayed Felix Millan's single and Pat Jarvis scored all the way from first.

Reggie Cleveland pitched a five-hitter in turning the Phillies for the Cardinals. The Expos capitalized on Joe Morgan's infield error for two unearned runs in the ninth to beat the Astros.

Sal Bando's two-run homer in tne ninth-inning pulled Oakland into a 3-3 tie with Cleveland and the two teams went into extra innings in a late west coast game.

Vida Blue, the A's ace left-hander trying for his 19th victory, had allowed eight hits —including Graig Nettles' two-run homer and Ken Suarez' solo shot—through the first nine innings.

Winston-Salem, N. C. (AP)—Two rising young stars, Jim Conors of Bellville, Ill., and Harold Solomon of Silver Springs, Md., stunned a pair of seeded players in the third round of the $25,000 Tanglewood International Tennis Classic Wednesday. Solomon, who ranks just behind Connors, ousted sixth-seeded George Goven of France, 6-7, 7-5 and 7-5.

The only other seeded player to run into difficulty was seventh-ranked Erik Van Dillen of San Mateo, Calif. He had an easy time with Billy Higgins of Ponte Verda Beach, Fla., in the first set, 6-0 but dropped his second 4-6 before a 6-3 victory in the third set.

Top-seeded Cliff Richey of Sarasota, Fla., fought off several challenges from Haroon Rahim of Pakistan to take a 6-3, 7-6, triumph.

Trevino Jack's Big Threat

. . . NICKLAUS VS. 'FRANKENSTEIN' IN WESTCHESTER MEET

HARRISON, N.Y. (AP) — As usual, Jack Nicklaus is the favorite in the rich Westchester Golf Classic starting Thursday but his role as the game's greatest performer is being jeopardized by a phenomenon he helped create—Lee Trevino.

Trevino, suddenly the brightest star on the tour, said it had a chat with Nicklaus that gave him the impetus that propelled him to an unprecedented sweep of the United States, Canadian and British Open championships.

"We'd played an exhibition down in Florida earlier this year," Trevino recalled Wednesday, "and Jack told me I just didn't realize how great I really was. He said when I did realize it, well, it'd really be something. He said I was good enough to be a really great player.

"He convinced me I ought to play in the Masters again.

"I thought about that talk a lot. Before that, sometimes, I'd play a bad round and get down, not really try as hard as I could. But I don't do that any more. I think that talk really helped me to be a better player."

Since that chat, Trevino has won five titles, beating Nicklaus in a playoff for the U.S. Open crown and thwarting Jack's bid for a successful defense of his British Open title.

He's vaulted past Nicklaus on the money list, leading with more than $196,000 to Nicklaus' $161,000 and is threatening Nicklaus' single season money winning record of $211,000

A victory here—and Trevino says he's primed for it—would put him far past the mark. This is golf's richest event a $250,000 total purse with $50,000 to the winner.

Nicklaus, a former winner here, is back from a week's rest and would like nothing better than a victory over the brash and breezy Trevino, who drew his biggest gallery — bigger than Nicklaus' following and even larger than that army following Arnold Palmer—in the pro-am.

Palmer, who skipped the British Open because he wasn't satisfied with his game, is back in action for the first time in two weeks.

Arrayed against them is one of the strongest fields of the year, with only Billy Casper, South African Gary Player and England's Tony Jacklin the major names missing.

Among the major challengers are Australian Bruce Crampton, the defending champion and winner of last week's Western Open, former winners Julius Boros and Frank Beard, and such standouts as Dave Hill, George Archer, Tom Weiskopf and Bobby Nichols.

Also on hand are Steve Melnyk and Lanny Wadkins, the British and U.S. amateur champs who are competing as professionals for the first time.

The 72-hole test will be held on 6,700 yard, par 72 Westchester Country Club course in suburban New York.

The final two rounds Saturday and Sunday will be televised nationally by Hughes Sports Network.

Chiefs Open Camp Today

Liberty, Mo. (AP) — The Kansas City Chiefs open their training camp today on the William Jewell College campus.

Coach Hank Stram will greet a squad of 77 players, among them 46 veterans.

Five additional players will be missing until later in the month. Four rookies, Elmo Wright, Wilbur Young, Mike Adamle and Chuck Hixson, are training with the College All-Stars for their July 30 game with the world champion Baltimore Colts in Chicago.

Willie Mitchell, a veteran safety, is involved with military duty and won't be available until his release July 24.

Stram expects to go right to work seeking a replacement for retired defensive end Jerry Mays and improving on all phases of the team's passing game.

The Chiefs finished the 1970 campaign with seven victories, five losses and two ties in the American Football Conference.

Ace No. 2 For Dana

Merlin Dana recorded his second lifetime hole-in-one at the Jim Ager Memorial Course Wednesday with an ace on the 146-yard No. 3 while using a 3-wood. Witnessing the shot were Carole Crate and Ron and Bob Anderson.

Hawley Signed, But Not Thomas

DALLAS (AP) — All-pro linebacker Chuck Howley signed a contract with the Dallas Cowboys Wednesday and left for the Thousand Oaks, Calif., training camp while halfback holdout Duane Thomas said he and the National Football League club are $50,000 apart.

"I'm asking $80,000 and that's cheap," said Thomas, who drew a salary of some $20,000 in 1970 when he was named NFL offensive rookie of the year. "After all, the Cowboys never made it to the Super Bowl without me and they never will again unless I play for them."

Howley, the 12-year veteran, quietly ended his five-day hold out and signed with club President and General Manager Tex Schramm. Both Schramm and Howley caught a plane to California. Howley signed a one-year contract with an option if he wishes to play next year.

Chicago (AP) — The Chicago Bears announced Wednesday they have traded Ron Bull, a nine-year veteran running back, to Philadelphia for an undisclosed National Football League draft choice.

Bull, 31, was the No. 1 draft pick in 1962 from Baylor University where he won All-American honors. The 6-foot, 200-pound blocking back was voted rookie of the year in his first season with the Bears.

Bull suffered a knee injury which required surgery early in the 1969 season but he returned last year to play 12 of 14 games. He carried the ball 68 times for 214 yards in 1970 for an average of 3.2 yards a carry.

This was slightly below his career average with the Bears of 3.66 yards per carry. Also known for his strong blocking, Bull has caught 163 passes in his nine years with the team.

Hawley Signed, But Not Thomas

DALLAS (AP) — All-pro linebacker Chuck Howley signed a contract with the Dallas Cowboys Wednesday and left for the Thousand Oaks, Calif., training camp while halfback holdout Duane Thomas said he and the National Football League club are $50,000 apart.

"I'm asking $80,000 and that's cheap," said Thomas, who drew a salary of some $20,000 in 1970 when he was named NFL offensive rookie of the year. "After all, the Cowboys never made it to the Super Bowl without me and they never will again unless I play for them."

Howley, the 12-year veteran; quietly ended his five-day hold out and signed with club President and General Manager Tex Schramm. Both Schramm and Howley caught a plane to California. Howley signed a one-year contract with an option if he wishes to play next year.

Chicago's Bull Now An Eagle

Chicago (AP) — The Chicago Bears announced Wednesday they have traded Ron Bull, a nine-year veteran running back, to Philadelphia for an undisclosed National Football League draft choice.

Bull, 31, was the No. 1 draft pick in 1962 from Baylor University where he won All-American honors. The 6-foot, 200-pound blocking back was voted rookie of the year in his first season with the Bears.

Bull suffered a knee injury which required surgery early in the 1969 season but he returned last year to play 12 of 14 games. He carried the ball 68 times for 214 yards in 1970 for an average of 3.2 yards a carry.

This was slightly below his career average with the Bears of 3.66 yards per carry. Also known for his strong blocking, Bull has caught 163 passes in his nine years with the team.

Schlesinger Is Nominated For Chairmanship Of AEC

(c) Washington Star

Washington — The White House announced Wednesday the resignation of Dr. Glenn T. Seaborg as chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission.

At the same time, President Nixon said he would appoint James R. Schlesinger, an assistant director of the Office of Management and Budget to replace Seaborg as AEC chairman.

The White House also said the President intended to nominate William Doub of Maryland to be a member of the AEC to succeed the late Theos J. Thompson for a five-year term that would expire June 30, 1976.

The chairmanship of the AEC pays an annual salary of $42,500. Doub, as a member of the AEC would receive $40,000 a year. Both appointments are subject to Senate confirmation.

JAMES R. SCHLESINGER

Former RAND Man

Schlesinger, a 40-year-old native of New York City, joined the administration in February, 1969 as assistant director of the Bureau of the Budget. When the bureau was reorganized as the Office of Management and Budget, Schlesinger became acting budget director. He has responsibility for budget aspects of national security and international programs.

Before coming to the White House, Schlesinger was director of strategic studies at the RAND corporation, Santa Monica, Calif. While at RAND "think tank" he was consultant to the Budget Bureau on atomic energy matters and directed a study on the control of nuclear proliferation.

Doub, 39, is a lawyer and is chairman of the Maryland Public Service Commission. He also is a member of the executive advisory committee of the Federal Power Commission.

Thompson, his predecessor on the AEC, died in a plane crash last November.

Served 5 Presidents

Seaborg was appointed chairman of the AEC by President Kennedy in 1961 and was subsequently reappointed by Presidents Johnson and Nixon. He also served in advisory posts under Presidents Truman and Eisenhower.

From 1958 to 1961, Seaborg was chancellor of the University of California at Berkeley.

During World War II he headed a group of scientists at the Metallurgical Laboratory of the University of Chicago that devised the chemical extraction processes used in the production of plutonium for the Manhattan project — the code name for the development of the atomic bomb.

SUCCESSOR

Kenneth W. Dam, 38, a University of Chicago law professor, will succeed James R. Schlesinger as assistant director of the Office of Management and Budget. Dam will deal with national security and international affairs.

Seaborg won the Nobel Prize in chemistry in 1951 at the age of 39.

Seaborg said he would return to his professorship of chemistry at Berkeley, but left the date of his resignation up to Nixon.

Fears Of Swine Fever Outbreak Mounting

Austin, Tex. (UPI) — Ranchers fighting a sleeping sickness epidemic that has killed 11,100 horses in Texas and Mexico were told Wednesday that swine fever — "the most devastating animal disease there is" — is loose in Cuba and could spread into the United States.

The new disease, African swine fever, does not affect humans but kills every pig it infects.

Dr. Fred Maurer, dean of research at Texas A & M University's College of Veterinary Medicine, said the fever threatens Mexico and is "a potential hazard" to the United States and Canada.

Worst There Is

"It's the most devastating animal disease there is," Maurer said. "It can wipe out the swine population of this country and there is no vaccine against it."

An official for the Agriculture Department in Washington said U.S. health officials are tightening their watch on ships and "anything that has touched Cuba" because of the outbreak of the swine disease on the island.

Although the United States does not trade with Cuba, Canada and Mexico, which do trade with the island 90 miles off the Florida coast, have taken steps to keep the disease from their shores, said Dr. Warren B. Ross of the USDA's animal health division.

Ross said although the swine fever does not affect humans and is not normally transmitted by them, humans could carry the disease on shoes or clothing that has contacted infected animals or meat.

Ross said the swine fever got to Cuba by infected food and pigs flown there from Europe.

Ports Alerted

"We have a telegram out to all our port stations, alerting them for anything from Cuba or ships that touch Cuban ports," Ross said. "This could mean destroying garbage from those ships, or preventing its being discarded here. It could mean seeing that the disease is not carried here on someone's dirty shoes or equipment or anything else."

The alert went to the Miami area, where 3,500 Cuban refugees arrive by airlift every month.

Dr. H. Q. Sibley, director of the Texas animal health commission, said if the disease spreads into Mexico — like the horse sleeping sickness epidemic did — the United States could not keep it out.

"It's just a matter of a while before we have it," Sibley said. "We're surely going to get it."

Ross said the only way to stop the swine fever is to destroy infected hogs and all the other hogs they have come in contact with.

"Already in two provinces of Cuba, we understand, they have had to slaughter 22,000 hogs, including 15,000 in Havana province and 7,000 in Pinar del Rio," he said. "We are not aware that the disease has spread to other provinces."

Reds Said Gaining Strength In Areas Evacuated By U.S.

©The New York Times

Washington — A new assessment of the internal security of South Vietnam by the U.S. Embassy in Saigon shows that the enemy is gaining strength in up-country areas evacuated by American forces as well as in parts of the densely populated Mekong River Delta.

The embassy survey, covering May and all but the last week of June, was transmitted to Washington earlier this month as the administration began a review of its Vietnam policy in the light of the new peace proposals submitted by the Viet Cong in Paris.

The contents of the survey were made available to the New York Times by official sources here Wednesday.

Senior administration officials who have seen the survey said the "deterioration" in security reported in many areas, the increase in terrorism and assassinations and a marked drop in enemy defections ot the Saigon regime raised fundamental questions about the success of the over-all pacification effort as U.S. troops continue to be withdrawn under President Nixon's Vietnamization policy.

233,300 On Monday

Under the withdrawal program the total of U.S. troops in Vietnam stood at 233,300 Monday, down from a peak of 542,500 in late February 1969, shortly after Nixon assumed office.

The chief conclusion in the report is that "the enemy continues ot affect adversely internal security in selected areas," although "the national picture reflects gradual internal security improvement."

Two of these "selected areas" are identified as Military Regions I and II in northern and central South Vietnam. Most of the American combat troops have been pulled out from these areas or are in the process of withdrawal.

Long Felt Pacified

Others include the marshy Kien Phong province west of Saigon and the Mekong Delta provinces of Dinh Tuong, Vinh Binh and Vinh Long, forming part of Military Region IV. This region has long been considered pacified and is defended entirely by South Vietnamese forces, with only U.S. advisers and air aupport.

The survey shows that in Military Region IV there are "sharp enemy reactions against pacification in Kien Phong by the North Vietnamese army and the Viet Cong," and it finds "enemy activity increasing in Dinh Tuong."

"Viet Cong in Vinh Binh and Vinh Long appear to be building up for an unknown major effort — possibly disruption of balloting," the report said, noting that the rest of the region's provinces "report satisfactory progress." Vinh Long is a heavily populated province southwest of Saigon.

Senior administration officials said there were mounting indications that the Communists planned to disrupt the South Vietnamese elections for the National Assembly next month and the Oct. 3 presidential election.

Most Serious Area

The security report shows that the most serious situation prevails in Military Region II, notably in Binh Dinh province in the coastal region adjoining the central highlands.

Describing the situation in Binh Dinh as a "serious control problem," the report emphasizes that domination of this province has historically been a Communist objective and the "keystone of their attempts to cut the country in two."

The survey reports that "the upper four districts are under enemy military pressure and he is working hard at slowly eroding government of (South) Vietnam control of the terrain and population."

"In the southern districts the government of Vietnam still has military domination, but the enemy has developed considerable political and psychological impact on the confidence of the people," the report says.

'Leadership Failure'

Discussing the Binh Dinh situation, the embassy survey notes that "The crux of the problem appears to be a leadership failure on the part of the government of Vietnam."

"The small enemy force is aggressively led and counterbalances the preponderantly superior friendly forces," the report says. "While the problem is serious, it is considered manageable."

Without elaborating, the survey reports that "on June 25 an allied plan to correct this situation was placed in effect."

Elsewhere, the report says the Viet Cong and the "Viet Cong infrastructure" — the Communist subversive apparatus — "have military, political and economic initiative in Binh Dinh."

In Phu Bon, a highlands province in Military Region II, the survey reports, "security decreased." It says "abductions" of local South Vietnamese officials are "up sharply."

'Enemy Activity Strong'

In the northernmost part of Military Region I, where American troops have been withdrawn except for the Da Nang area, the survey found "enemy activity strong" in Quang Ngai, Quang Nam and Quang Tri provinces.

In Military Region II, which encompasses Saigon, pacification programs show much progress, according to the survey, "but security deteriorated in several areas." Most American combat troops have left this region.

Officials here said all indications were that the enemy was concentrating on political and guerrilla warfare rather than on major military engagements.

In this context, they said it is a matter of concern that, as reported in the embassy survey, the rate of Communist defections under the Saigon regime's Chieu Hoi — "Open Arms" — program "is the lowest since 1968."

The survey also shows that reported acts of enemy "terror" are higher now than a year ago, except in the delta region. During May, it says, 2,143 persons were reported killed, wounded or abducted by "terrorists" and "the level of assassinations has continued with little variation over the last three years."

Man Who Dubbed Jiminy Cricket's Voice Dies At 76

Hollywood (AP) — Cliff "Ukelele Ike" Edwards, who gave Jiminy Cricket his squeaky tenor voice in Walt Disney's 1940 movie classic, "Pinocchio," is dead at the age of 76.

Edwards, a native of Hannibal, Mo., who was credited with selling over 74 million records in his lifetime, died alone, penniless and as a MediCal patient in a Hollywood nursing home Saturday.

His death wasn't made public until Wednesday. Officials at the home said he died of a heart attack and left no next of kin.

Edwards, credited with appearances in 107 motion pictures, got his start singing in St. Louis saloons. He had a trick voice and his talents on the ukulele gave him the nickname that stuck with him through his life.

In addition to playing Jiminy Cricket in "Pinocchio," he also sang the picture's Oscar-winning title song, "When You Wish Upon a Star."

Missing Phelps Welfare Funds Are Paid Back

Holdrege (UPI) — A Phelps County official said Wednesday all of the missing $1,600 in county welfare funds has been paid back.

The report was made by Orlo Fitch, chairman of the county commissioners, who said the county will not have to stand a loss in connection with the shortage turned up in an audit.

A county commissioners meeting has been called for July 27, to determine if any action will be taken in connection with the incident. State Welfare Director Lawrence Graham has said a member of his staff would attend.

The shortage turned up in the county's food stamp program, Graham said. He also said while the program is nationally administered by the U.S. Department of Agriculture, disciplinary action would come from the county and the state acting together.

Fitch refused to reveal the name of the person involved, saying a disclosure would hinge on whether criminal charges will be filed.

Malaysia Orders Boeing Aircraft

Kuala Lumpur (AP) — Malaysia Airlines Limited (MAL) has ordered six boeing 737-200 aircraft at a cost of about $125 million, MAL Chairman G. K. Rama Iyer said today.

The aircraft are expected to be delivered in October 1972 by which time the Malaysian airline, resulting from a split in Malaysia-Singapore Airlines, should get airborne.

House Pages Hired From Members' Kin

(c) Washington Star

Washington — The son of one congressman and the nephew of another have been hired for summer jobs as House Democratic pages.

In both cases, the congressional relatives were sponsored for the $563.92-a-month jobs by other House members who are close to both the relatives and the congressmen.

The summer pages are John D. Dingell III, 16, son of Rep. John Dingell, D-Mich., and Jim Landrum, 16, the nephew of Rep. Phillip Landrum, D-Ga.

Young Dingell, a scholastic whiz kid who has worked other summers in his father's office for free, was sponsored for the job by Rep. John E. Moss, D-Calif.

Young Landrum, son of the congressman's brother, Speck Landrum, was sponsored by Rep. John Davis, D-Ga. The page resides in Davis's Georgia congressional district.

The antinepotism law, adopted in 1967, prohibits congressmen from recommending or appointing their own relatives, including sons and nephews, to jobs in Congress.

But it does not prohibit members of Congress from sponsoring the relatives of other members.

The Fox Pulls Raid In Daylight

(C) Chicago Daily News

Chicago — The Fox, an anonymous pollution fighter, successfully staged a daring daylight raid on the Picasso statue in the Civic Center Plaza here.

While dozens of people strolled by, the Fox and two accomplices taped a four-foot poster to the front of the statue.

It showed Mayor Richard J. Daley with plans for a lake airport, and a U.S. Steel Corp. executive telling him, "Feel free to use the lake, Dick — we always do."

Then the trio melted into the crowd and walked away. Police could not find anyone who could identify the men.

This marked the first public appearance of the Fox since March, when he was almost caught in a police trap in Montgomery, Ill. At that time he left a message near a sewage outlet saying, "You are watching the Fox, but the Fox is watching you."

U.S. Steel has been the favorite target of the Fox's two-year war against polluters of Chicago-area rivers and streams and Lake Michigan.

Several times he has dumped boxes of dead fish, frogs and birds in the offices of firms he says are polluting Chicago's waterways. Each time he has evaded indentification and the police, leaving only the signature, the Fox. The middle letter is always represented the head of a fox.

MOST AMAZING HEARING AID
In the years of experience that the writer has been in the hearing aid business, the new MAICO Mark 100 behind-the-ear instrument is the most revolutionary advancement change he has seen.
It's amazing—It's astonishing—It's unbelievable—People who have worn it, can't believe their own ears—Most unwanted noises disappear—it makes "selective hearing" a reality.
We would be glad to compare it with any hearing aid now in use that is in a similar power range or even those that may have a greater gain—HEARING IS BELIEVING!
Call or write me for an appointment in our office or in your home for a Mark 100 demonstration. 713 Sharp Building—Lincoln, Nebr. Phone—432-1967.

Reds Said Gaining Strength In Areas Evacuated By U.S.

©The New York Times

Washington — A new assessment of the internal security of South Vietnam by the U.S. Embassy in Saigon shows that the enemy is gaining strength in up-country areas evacuated by American forces as well as in parts of the densely populated Mekong River Delta.

The embassy survey, covering May and all but the last week of June, was transmitted to Washington earlier this month as the administration began a review of its Vietnam policy in the light of the new peace proposals submitted by the Viet Cong in Paris.

The contents of the survey were made available to the New York Times by official sources here Wednesday.

Senior administration officials who have seen the survey said the "deterioration" in security reported in many areas, the increase in terrorism and assassinations and a marked drop in enemy defections ot the Saigon regime raised fundamental questions about the success of the over-all pacification effort as U.S. troops continue to be withdrawn under President Nixon's Vietnamization policy.

233,300 On Monday

Under the withdrawal program the total of U.S. troops in Vietnam stood at 233,300 Monday, down from a peak of 542,500 in late February 1969, shortly after Nixon assumed office.

The chief conclusion in the report is that "the enemy continues ot affect adversely internal security in selected areas," although "the national picture reflects gradual internal security improvement."

Two of these "selected areas" are identified as Military Regions I and II in northern and central South Vietnam. Most of the American combat troops have been pulled out from these areas or are in the process of withdrawal.

Long Felt Pacified

Others include the marshy Kien Phong province west of Saigon and the Mekong Delta provinces of Dinh Tuong, Vinh Binh and Vinh Long, forming part of Military Region IV. This region has long been considered pacified and is defended entirely by South Vietnamese forces, with only U.S. advisers and air support.

The survey shows that in Military Region IV there are "sharp enemy reactions against pacification in Kien Phong by the North Vietnamese army and the Viet Cong," and it finds "enemy activity increasing in Dinh Tuong."

"Viet Cong in Vinh Binh and Vinh Long appear to be building up for an unknown major effort — possibly disruption of balloting," the report said, noting that the rest of the region's provinces "report satisfactory progress." Vinh Long is a heavily populated province southwest of Saigon.

Senior administration officials said there were mounting indications that the Communists planned to disrupt the South Vietnamese elections for the National Assembly next month and the Oct. 3 presidential election.

Most Serious Area

The security report shows that the most serious situation prevails in Military Region II, notably in Binh Dinh province in the coastal region adjoining the central highlands.

Describing the situation in Binh Dinh as a "serious control problem," the report emphasizes that domination of this province has historically been a Communist objective and the "keystone of their attempts to cut the country in two."

The survey reports that "the upper four districts are under enemy military pressure and he is working hard at slowly eroding government of (South) Vietnam control of the terrain and population."

"In the southern districts the government of Vietnam still has military domination, but the enemy has developed considerable political and psychological impact on the confidence of the people," the report says.

'Leadership Failure'

Discussing the Binh Dinh situation, the embassy survey notes that "The crux of the problem appears to be a leadership failure on the part of the government of Vietnam."

"The small enemy force is aggressively led and counterbalances the preponderantly superior friendly forces," the report says. "While the problem is serious, it is considered manageable."

Without elaborating, the survey reports that "on June 25 an allied plan to correct this situation was placed in effect."

Elsewhere, the report says the Viet Cong and the "Viet Cong infrastructure" — the Communist subversive apparatus — "have military, political and economic initiative in Binh Dinh."

In Phu Bon, a highlands province in Military Region II, the survey reports, "security decreased." It says "abductions" of local South Vietnamese officials are "up sharply."

'Enemy Activity Strong'

In the northernmost part of Military Region I, where American troops have been withdrawn except for the Da Nang area, the survey found "enemy activity strong" in Quang Ngai, Quang Nam and Quang Tri provinces.

In Military Region II, which encompasses Saigon, pacification programs show much progress, according to the survey, "but security deteriorated in several areas." Most American combat troops have left this region.

Officials here said all indications were that the enemy was concentrating on political and guerrilla warfare rather than on major military engagements.

In this context, they said it is a matter of concern that, as reported in the embassy survey, the rate of Communist defections under the Saigon regime's Chieu Hoi — "Open Arms" — program "is the lowest since 1968."

The survey also shows that reported acts of enemy "terror" are higher now than a year ago, except in the delta region. During May, it says, 2,143 persons were reported killed, wounded or abducted by "terrorists" and "the level of assassinations has continued with little variation over the last three years."

Man Who Dubbed Jiminy Cricket's Voice Dies At 76

Hollywood (AP) — Cliff "Ukelele Ike" Edwards, who gave Jiminy Cricket his squeaky tenor voice in Walt Disney's 1940 movie classic, "Pinocchio," is dead at the age of 76.

Edwards, a native of Hannibal, Mo., who was credited with selling over 74 million records in his lifetime, died alone, penniless and as a MediCal patient in a Hollywood nursing home Saturday.

His death wasn't made public until Wednesday. Officials at the home said he died of a heart attack and left no next of kin.

Edwards, credited with appearances in 107 motion pictures, got his start singing in St. Louis saloons. He had a trick voice and his talents on the ukulele gave him the nickname that stuck with him through his life.

In addition to playing Jiminy Cricket in "Pinocchio," he also sang the picture's Oscar-winning title song, "When You Wish Upon a Star."

Missing Phelps Welfare Funds Are Paid Back

Holdrege (UPI) — A Phelps County official said Wednesday all of the missing $1,600 in county welfare funds has been paid back.

The report was made by Orlo Fitch, chairman of the county commissioners, who said the county will not have to stand a loss in connection with the shortage turned up in an audit.

A county commissioners meeting has been called for July 27, to determine if any action will be taken in connection with the incident. State Welfare Director Lawrence Graham has said a member of his staff would attend.

The shortage turned up in the county's food stamp program, Graham said. He also said while the program is nationally administered by the U.S. Department of Agriculture, disciplinary action would come from the county and the state acting together.

Fitch refused to reveal the name of the person involved, saying a disclosure would hinge on whether criminal charges will be filed.

Malaysia Orders Boeing Aircraft

Kuala Lumpur (AP) — Malaysia Airlines Limited (MAL) has ordered six boeing 737-200 aircraft at a cost of about $125 million, MAL Chairman G. K. Rama Iyer said today.

The aircraft are expected to be delivered in October 1972 by which time the Malaysian airline, resulting from a split in Malaysia-Singapore Airlines, should get airborne.

House Pages Hired From Members' Kin

(c) Washington Star

Washington — The son of one congressman and the nephew of another have been hired for summer jobs as House Democratic pages.

In both cases, the congressional relatives were sponsored for the $563.92-a-month jobs by other House members who are close to both the relatives and the congressmen.

The summer pages are John D. Dingell III, 16, son of Rep. John Dingell, D-Mich., and Jim Landrum, 16, the nephew of Rep. Phillip Landrum, D-Ga.

Young Dingell, a scholastic whiz kid who has worked other summers in his father's office for free, was sponsored for the job by Rep. John E. Moss, D-Calif.

Young Landrum, son of the congressman's brother, Speck Landrum, was sponsored by Rep. John Davis, D-Ga. The page resides in Davis's Georgia congressional district.

The antinepotism law, adopted in 1967, prohibits congressmen from recommending or appointing their own relatives, including sons and nephews, to jobs in Congress.

But it does not prohibit members of Congress from sponsoring the relatives of other members.

The Fox Pulls Raid In Daylight

(C) Chicago Daily News

Chicago — The Fox, an anonymous pollution fighter, successfully staged a daring daylight raid on the Picasso statue in the Civic Center Plaza here.

While dozens of people strolled by, the Fox and two accomplices taped a four-foot poster to the front of the statue.

It showed Mayor Richard J. Daley with plans for a lake airport, and a U.S. Steel Corp. executive telling him, "Feel free to use the lake, Dick — we always do."

Then the trio melted into the crowd and walked away. Police could not find anyone who could identify the men.

This marked the first public appearance of the Fox since March, when he was almost caught in a police trap in Montgomery, Ill. At that time he left a message near a sewage outlet saying, "You are watching the Fox, but the Fox is watching you."

U.S. Steel has been the favorite target of the Fox's two-year war against polluters of Chicago-area rivers and streams and Lake Michigan.

Several times he has dumped boxes of dead fish, frogs and birds in the offices of firms he says are polluting Chicago's waterways. Each time he has evaded indentification and the police, leaving only the signature, the Fox. The middle letter is always represented the head of a fox.

MOST AMAZING HEARING AID

In the years of experience that the writer has been in the hearing aid business, the new MAICO Mark 100 behind-the-ear instrument is the most revolutionary advancement change he has seen.
It's amazing—It's astonishing—It's unbelievable—People who have worn it, can't believe their own ears—Most unwanted noises disappear—it makes "selective hearing" a reality.
We would be glad to compare it with any hearing aid now in use that is in a similar power range or even those that may have a greater gain—HEARING IS BELIEVING!
Call or write me for an appointment in our office or in your home for a Mark 100 demonstration. 713 Sharp Building—Lincoln, Nebr. Phone—432-1967.

Corn Futures Prices Down 8-Cent Limit

Chicago (AP) — Factors interpreted by many traders as indicating the possibility of a bumper crop drove corn futures prices downward Wednesday on the Chicago Board of Trade.

The July option went off the board at noon, down the eight-cent limit in one day's trading.

The selloff in corn took impetus from continuing good progress of the current crop, favorable weather, and a University of Illinois report that corn blight is not likely to be any more than in 1970. This, coupled with a USDA report showing a 12% increase in corn acreage, was interpreted as indicating a bumper crop.

After the July contracts expired, corn prices steadied somewhat but still finished well over 2 cents below Tuesday's closes.

Wheat and oats followed corn downward in the forenoon, with July deliveries finishing 5¾ lower and 3⅝ lower, respectively, under profit-taking.

In the soybean pit, the tagend of Tuesday's precipitous downtrend — 7 cents off in the July option — ran its course in a few minutes and all options moved upward.

At the close, wheat was ⅛ to 5¾ cents a bushel lower, July 1.48¼; corn was 2⅛ to 8 cents lower, July 1.39⅛; oats were ⅞ to 3⅝ lower, July .66; and soybeans were ⅜ to 3½ cents higher, July 3.43¾

The New York Stock Exchange index of some 1,300 common stocks slipped 0.02 to 55.04. The Associated Press 60-stock average closed off .6 at 319.4. Industrials were off .8, rails were off .5, and utilities were off .4. Standard & Poor's 500-stock index closed off .04 at 99.28.

Of the 1,652 issues traded on the Big Board, 714 declined, and 610 advanced. New yearly lows were reached by 42 issues and highs by 33.

The most-active Big Board issue was Swift & Co., off ¼ at 44¾ on a volume of 166,900 shares. A 114,200-share block of the issue, the largest of the session, traded at 44¾.

The number of blocks of 10,000 shares or more traded on the Big Board declined to 82 from a revised 117 Tuesday.

The American Stock Exchange index dipped .04 to 25.53. Of the 1,111 issues traded, 491 declined, and 338 advanced. Volume rose to 3.12 million shares from 2.81 million shares Tuesday.

Fed Cattle Prices Up At Omaha

Omaha (AP) — Cornfed steers and heifers gained ground Wednesday as buyers were forced to compete for numbers.

An apparent shortage of well-finished cattle and a reluctance of direct sellers to let cattle go has factored in the recent upturn on the terminal market.

Steers were rated 25-50 higher with high choice or better over 1,100 lbs. generally at the full gain. Heifers were 25 to instances 50 higher, here again toppy grades over 950 lbs. getting the larger increases.

Bulk of the choice and prime steers offered went to the scales at 33.25-34.00, a part load of 1,178 lb. reputation fed Nebraska steers bringing 24.25 to lead the bargaining. Most choice beeves were at 32.00-33.25.

High choice and prime heifers 925-1,000 lbs. were reported at 32.50-32.75.

Butcher hogs went into an even tighter tailspin Wednesday as bids were cut 50 cents to 1.00 for a supply that was estimated at around 6,000. Bulk 190-240 lb. butcher ranged 19.00-19.75, around a load averaging 200 lbs. at 20.00. Sows were weak to mostly 25, instances 50 lower. clearing 16.75 and down.

Slaughter lambs were 25 cents up with choice and prime 90-110 lb. new crops scoring as high as 30.00.

Corn Futures Prices Down 8-Cent Limit

Chicago (AP) — Factors interpreted by many traders as indicating the possibility of a bumper crop drove corn futures prices downward Wednesday on the Chicago Board of Trade.

The July option went off the board at noon, down the eight-cent limit in one day's trading.

The selloff in corn took impetus from continuing good progress of the current crop, favorable weather, and a University of Illinois report that corn blight is not likely to be any worse than in 1970. This, coupled with a USDA report showing a 12% increase in corn acreage, was interpreted as indicating a bumper crop.

After the July contracts expired, corn prices steadied somewhat but still finished well over 2 cents below Tuesday's closes.

Wheat and oats followed corn downward in the forenoon, with July deliveries finishing 5¾ lower and 3⅝ lower, respectively, under profit-taking.

In the soybean pit, the tagend of Tuesday's precipitous downtrend — 7 cents off in the July option — ran its course in a few minutes and all options moved upward.

At the close, wheat was ⅛ to 5¾ cents a bushel lower, July 1.48¼; corn was 2⅛ to 8 cents lower, July 1.39⅛; oats were ⅞ to 3⅝ lower, July 66; and soybeans were ⅜ to 3½ cents higher, July 3.44¾

Indians Speak Against 1953 Termination Policy

Washington (AP) — Urban and tribal Indians jammed a Senate hearing room Wednesday to urge repudiation of a 1953 federal policy aimed at freeing Indians from ward status.

For some persons in the 1950s the policy meant getting the Indians off what they saw as the public dole; for others it was a chance to force unsophisticated Indians to sell their land and resources wealth, Leo Vocu said.

Vocu, executive director of the national Congress of American Indians, testified before the Senate Interior Committee, which is considering bills to express a new Indian policy.

"Land, water, minerals, oil, timber and virgin, untapped natural resources of Indian reservations in a nation otherwise rapidly depleting her resources — this is the 'stuff' of national politics on Indian matters," Vocu said.

"This is why the non-Indian is so ready to save us from ourselves or to 'make Indians first class citizens.'"

The experiences of tribes who actually did sever their federal ties intensified the anxiety of others, he said.

"Indian tribes seeing their neighbor tribe destroyed because they had been judged to be well-assimilated into the polluted water of the mainstream and, as a consequence, ready for termination, were fearful of making any real economic and social progress," Vocu said. "So they did not."

Robert B. Jim, chairman of the Yakima Tribal Council in Washington, said the termination policy is partly responsible for some of the dreary statistics of Indian life: 90% live in improper housing, 40 to 75% of the adults are out of work and the average death rate is 43, compared to 68 for whites.

"We have sent thousands of our youth to an urban society for which they lacked adequate preparation," Jim said. "These urban areas were even less prepared for them."

Sen. McGovern Apologizes For Griping About Strauss

Washington (UPI) — Sen. George S. McGovern, D-S.D., apologized Wednesday for accusing Democratic Party Treasurer Robert Strauss of violating his neutral status by helping Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, a potential rival for the 1972 presidential nomination.

"I regret that we did not check further before registering this complaint," McGovern said in a letter to National Chairman Lawrence F. O'Brien. "I further regret that the matter became public before you and I had a chance to discuss it."

McGovern had complained that Strauss was playing favorites for giving a reception in Dallas for Muskie when the Maine lawmaker went there to give a speech to the Texas Trial Lawyers Association July 1.

"I have since determined . . . Mr. Strauss offered no service to Sen. Muskie that he will not readily make available to me and other presidential candidates," McGovern wrote.

Record Sales, Profit Report For Goodyear

Akron, Ohio (AP) — Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co. reported record second quarter sales and earnings Wednesday, but said earnings from its base city plants in Akron were continuing to decline.

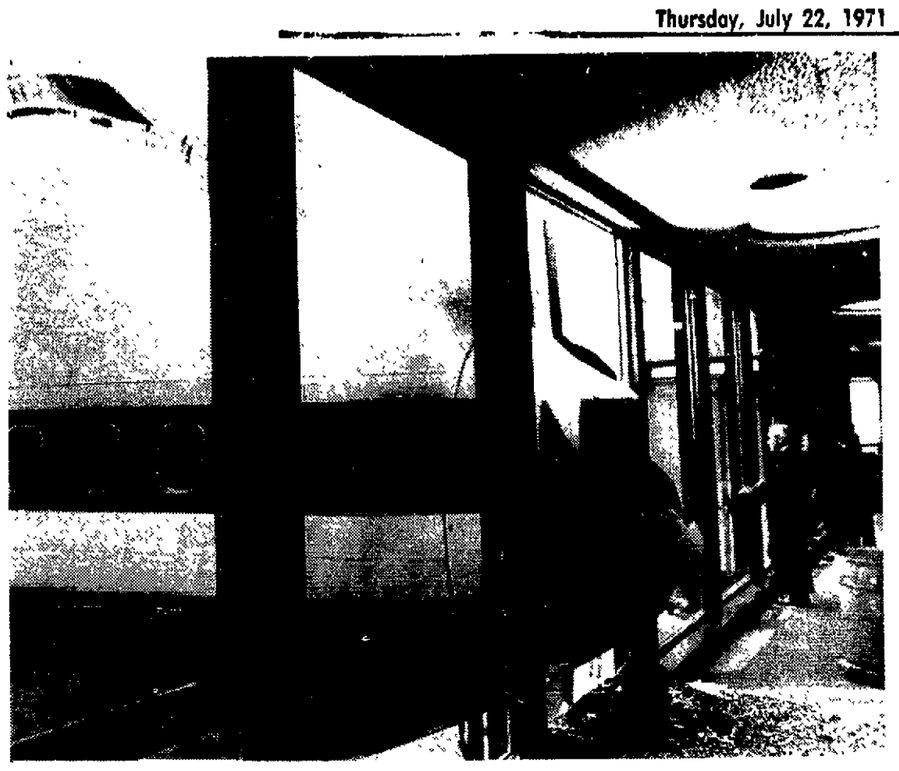

Second quarter sales of $954,213,000 were 16.3% above sales for the same quarter last year, Goodyear said, and earnings totaled $43,154,000 or 67 cents a share, up 98% over the same period in 1970, when first half figures were influenced by strikes in the rubber, automotive and trucking industries.

Net income from foreign operations during the first half of 1971 totaled $26,554,000, a gain of $2,832,000 which the company called "especially heartening."

Soviets Adopt Spock

Moscow (AP) — Soviet authorities have published a second Russian edition of "Baby and Child Care" by Dr. Benjamin Spock of the United States, the news agency Tass reported. The first edition sold out.

Fairmont Reports 25 Cent Dividend

Omaha (AP) — Directors of Fairmont Foods Co., have declared quarterly dividends of 25 cents per share on the outstanding $1 cumulative preferred stock and the outstanding common stock.

Both dividends are payable Oct. 1 to stockholders of record Aug. 27, Gordon Ellis, president, announced.

Capitol Phone Company Sale To LT&T OKd

Shareholders of Capitol Telephone Co., which serves some 10 small towns around Lincoln, voted Wednesday to liquidate their holdings and sell to the Lincoln Telephone and Telegraph Co.

John W. Kersten, director of the Martell area for Capitol, said the purchase price was approximately $2,600,000. This is $93,824 less than the amount offered in 1969.

According to Kersten, the sale to LT&T will not be complete for another 24 months.

"Lincoln Telephone and Telegraph will have to give extended area service to several small towns," Kersten explained. "Hickman, Firth and Cortland will have direct connections with Lincoln and this is expected to take about 24 months.

ORIGIN: ROCKERS
Experts agree rocking chairs are an American institution and some models date back to the 1750's. Though most people believe Ben Franklin devised it, some historians believe that earlier Americans built crude rockers of their own.

Indians Speak Against 1953 Termination Policy

Washington (AP) — Urban and tribal Indians jammed a Senate hearing room Wednesday to urge repudiation of a 1953 federal policy aimed at freeing Indians from ward status.

For some persons in the 1950s the policy meant getting the Indians off what they saw as the public dole; for others it was a chance to force unsophisticated Indians to sell their land and resources wealth, Leo Vocu said.

Vocu, executive director of the national Congress of American Indians, testified before the Senate Interior Committee, which is considering bills to express a new Indian policy.

"Land, water, minerals, oil, timber and virgin, untapped natural resources of Indian reservations in a nation otherwise rapidly depleting her resources — this is the 'stuff' of national politics on Indian matters," Vocu said.

"This is why the non-Indian is so ready to save us from ourselves or to 'make Indians first class citizens.' "

The experiences of tribes who actually did sever their federal ties intensified the anxiety of others, he said.

"Indian tribes seeing their neighbor tribe destroyed because they had been judged to be well-assimilated into the polluted water of the mainstream and, as a consequence, ready for termination, were fearful of making any real economic and social progress," Vocu said. "So they did not."

Robert B. Jim, chairman of the Yakima Tribal Council in Washington, said the termination policy is partly responsible for some of the dreary statistics of Indian life: 90% live in improper housing, 40 to 75% of the adults are out of work and the average death rate is 43, compared to 68 for whites.

"We have sent thousands of our youth to an urban society for which they lacked adequate preparation," Jim said. "These urban areas were even less prepared for them."

Sen. McGovern Apologizes For Griping About Strauss

Washington (UPI) — Sen. George S. McGovern, D-S.D., apologized Wednesday for accusing Democratic Party Treasurer Robert Strauss of violating his neutral status by helping Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, a potential rival for the 1972 presidential nomination.

"I regret that we did not check further before registering this complaint," McGovern said in a letter to National Chairman Lawrence F. O'Brien. "I further regret that the matter became public before you and I had a chance to discuss it."

McGovern had complained that Strauss was playing favorites for giving a reception in Dallas for Muskie when the Maine lawmaker went there to give a speech to the Texas Trial Lawyers Association July 1.

"I have since determined . . . Mr. Strauss offered no service to Sen. Muskie that he will not readily make available to me and other presidential candidates," McGovern wrote.

Record Sales, Profit Report For Goodyear

Akron, Ohio (AP) — Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co. reported record second quarter sales and earnings Wednesday, but said earnings from its base city plants in Akron were continuing to decline.

Second quarter sales of $954,213,000 were 16.3% above sales for the same quarter last year, Goodyear said, and earnings totaled $48,154,000 or 67 cents a share, up 98% over the same period in 1970, when first half figures were influenced by strikes in the rubber, automotive and trucking industries.

Net income from foreign operations during the first half of 1971 totaled $26,554,000, a gain of $2,832,000 which the company called "especially heartening."

Soviets Adopt Spock

Moscow (AP) — Soviet authorities have published a second Russian edition of "Baby and Child Care" by Dr. Benjamin Spock of the United States, the news agency Tass reported. The first edition sold out.

JUMBO JET ROLLS RIGHT IN

A 747 jumbo jetliner has its nose stuck into the terminal lounge at Los Angeles International Airport. It failed to stop — for reasons not revealed — as it rolled up to the terminal after a flight from Boston. No one was hurt.

Fairmont Reports 25 Cent Dividend

Omaha (AP) — Directors of Fairmont Foods Co., have declared quarterly dividends of 25 cents per share on the outstanding $1 cumulative preferred stock and the outstanding common stock.

Both dividends are payable Oct. 1 to stockholders of record Aug. 27, Gordon Ellis, president, announced.

Capitol Phone Company Sale To LT&T OKd

Shareholders of Capitol Telephone Co., which serves some 10 small towns around Lincoln, voted Wednesday to liquidate their holdings and sell to the Lincoln Telephone and Telegraph Co.

John W. Kersten, director of the Martell area for Capitol, said the purchase price was approximately $2,600,000. This is $93,824 less than the amount offered in 1969.

According to Kersten, the sale to LT&T will not be complete for another 24 months.

"Lincoln Telephone and Telegraph will have to give extended area service to several small towns," Kersten explained. "Hickman, Firth and Cortland will have direct connections with Lincoln and this is expected to take about 24 months.

Here is a practical little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is six or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add three. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures gives you.
